Cuban Officers Prepare to Defy New President

Barricade Established; Plan to Overthrow Grau San Martin.

Junta's Executive Sends Rebels Ultimatum to Surrender.

An expressed desire on the part of President Ramon Grau San Martin for friendship with America was followed by a formal statement in which Secretary Hull said the United States is prepared to welcome any Cuban administration "representing the will of the people of the republic and capable of maintaining law and order."

The new Cuban chief executive gave 500 army and navy officers in rebellion at the Hotel National 24 to 36 hours to meet his administration's terms. The officers are demanding that he retire.

A protest against the presence of American warships in Cuban waters and any hint of intervention was lodged here by the Anti-Imperialist League.

Senator Borah described Grau San Martin as a "man of high standing" and expressed hope he would be permitted to remain in office.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

Havana, Sept. 11 — President Grau San Martin tonight told Col. Horacio Ferrer that the 500 Army and Navy officers, in practical rebellion at the Hotel National, must come to terms with the new government within 24 or 36 hours.

Ferrer, Secretary of War and the Navy in the regime of Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, ousted by a radical junta of five which gave way to Grau San Martin, has acted as representative for the officers several times.

He formally presented a demand to the junta that it step down to make way for the return of De Cespedes last week. The junta refused to do so.

Officers Determined.

Returning to the hotel after his conference with the President, Ferrer declared the officers were determined to continue as long as possible to push their demands for the return of De Cespedes to the presidency.

"It is impossible," he said, "for these officers to return to their posts now. They can not be expected to take orders from their former sergeants."

Asked if there was any possibility of an open conflict, the colonel said: "I doubt it very much, but if the officers are attacked, they are prepared to defend themselves."

The officers, determined that "undesirables" shall not "steal the glory" for the overthrow of the Holy See Wins Fight for Jews

Nazis Pledge Full Rights for Catholic Group in Signed Concordat.

Vatican City, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Nazi Germany is pledged to admit Catholic Jews to full rights of citizenship under terms of a memorandum from the Holy See, accompanying the recent concordat with Berlin, it was revealed tonight.

The memorandum insisted equal treatment be accorded baptized Jews, despite the anti-Jewish campaign of Chancellor Hitler's administration in Germany. It objected to discrimination on grounds of race.

The Holy See also insisted baptized Jews were Christians, and that "any offense against baptized Jews is an offense against the Holy sacraments."

The memorandum added that non-Christian Jews must be treated humanely, in accordance "with Christian charity."

Victory Seen for Hitler.

Berlin, Sept. 11 (AP).—Ratification of the concordat with the Vatican so soon after it had been initialed was hailed in official circles today as demonstrating confidence in the stability of Hitlerism.

Government commentators said the move proved the Holy See had understood the scope and significance of Germany's latest revolution.

The Vatican reaffirmed recognition of the authoritary principle, it was said, by seeking loyal cooperation with the new German regime despite influences aiming at Germany's moral isolation.

Columbia Delegates To Confer on Leticia

Bogota, Columbia, Sept. 11 (U.P.). Robert Urdaneta and Guillermo Valencia, two of Colombia's three delegates to the direct negotiations with Peru regarding the Leticia dispute, will sail for New York September 19 to confer with Alfonso Lopez, Colombian delegate to the League of Nations, it was announced today.

Johnson Rejects Schoolroom Study Of NRA Doctrine

(Associated Press.)

Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, has rejected plans submitted to him seeking to spread the NRA doctrine through the Nation's schools.

This was disclosed yesterday by officials in connection with the private publication of a booklet designed to be sold to schools for interpreting the aims of the recovery campaign, including the NRA, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and other of the emergency organizations created by the Roosevelt administration.

NRA Swells Classes.

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—Approximately 1,130,000 New York City children more or less willingly returned to school today, 20,000 of them enrolled, officials said, because of the NRA's child labor plan.

Maine, First Of Dry States, Goes Wet, 2-1

512 of 632 Districts Voted 91,809 to 45,124.

Portland, Me., Sept. 11 (AP).—Maine, stronghold of prohibition since the middle of the last century, swept into the repeal column tonight to make the twenty-sixth in the march of States for overthrow of national prohibition.

With slightly more than four-fifths of the precincts reported, the vote showed a little more than the 2-to-1 margin which repeal leaders had predicted.

The vote from 512 of the State's 632 precincts was:

For, 91,809.

Against, 45,124.

Dry Concedes Defeat.

The wet victory was conceded by the Rev. Frederick W. Smith, superintendent of the dry forces, in a statement issued shortly before 1 o'clock.

Efforts will be made to have Gov. Louis J. Brann, a wet, call a special session of the Legislature to resubmit to the people that amendment which was written into the constitution in 1884.

Although the governor declined to commit himself, he did say that if 36 States voted for repeal of Federal prohibition and the matter of State prohibition came up, he "would handle it expeditiously."

Repeal leaders hailed the margin of victory as "leaving no room for doubt as to the sentiment of the people."

Clean Sweep of Delegates.

Repealists saw a clean sweep of the 80 delegates who assemble in convention on December 6 to take formal action.

The action of the supreme judicial court in handing over an advisory opinion to the Legislature that the convention must be "deliberative" in its nature gives the delegates the right and power to consider the problem at great length if they so desire.

The court also said the delegates could not be designated on the ballots as to their stand and consequently the names of the two opposing slates were arranged alphabetically without regard to opinions. This complicated the voting problem but did not stop the pledging of the candidate as the two opposing groups made up their slates and advertised them well through the newspapers and by small cards as voters entered the booths today.

Tropical Storm Warning Sent Atlantic Vessels

(United Press.)

A tropical storm of "considerable intensity" is driving west-northwest across the Atlantic from a point about 24 north, 63 west, the Weather Bureau advised last night. The bureau warned vessels in the storm's path.

Polish Fliers Seeking New Distance Record

Moscow, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Two Polish fliers, Filipovich and Levonevsky, seeking an airplane nonstop distance record, flew over Moscow at 7:07 tonight, on their way toward Siberia.

They left Warsaw this morning, bound for the Far East, hoping to beat the distance flight record set recently by Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi, French fliers.

Epidemic of Weddings Spreading in Germany

Berlin, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The new Nazi custom of mass church weddings has reached a new high, it was learned today.

At Leignitz, 259 couples joined in the chorus of "I do," while at Berlin, 137 other couples took the vows. Most of them previously had been married in civil ceremonies at registry offices.

Dollfuss Hits Nazis; Plans Fascist Rule

Leader Thrills Austria in Revealing Decision for Dictatorship.

Maps New Government on Lines Followed by Mussolini.

Vienna, Austria, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Chancellor Dollfuss astonished the nation today by declaring parliamentary government in Austria is dead and indicating he intends to establish a dictatorship along Fascist lines.

"Parliamentarism in Austria, as such, ended in the month of March," the chancellor declared, "never to come back again."

The soft-spoken little chancellor—he is not 5 feet tall—stirred 60,000 of his countrymen to a high pitch of excitement as he made this startling admission in a stirring speech at an open-air meeting, part of the "Fatherland Front" demonstration.

Amid wild shouting, Dollfuss declared:

"I shall not enumerate today the sins which are found especially in our own Parliament and our so-called democracy. Parliament eliminated and destroyed itself with its own demagogery and formalism.

Outlawed Forever.

"Such a Parliament, such a body as representative of the people, such leadership can not and shall not be again.

"During our fight on Marxism (Socialism) which could have been smashed faster than any one dared hope, a movement (Nazi) under the flag of nationalism attacked us in the rear, thus compelling the government while fighting on two fronts to keep its hand steadfastly in control of the state and take measures necessary in such difficult times."

Thousands heard his pronouncement of the Government's program as stealing the thunder of Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, by establishing a dictatorship in Austria along the lines of Fascism under Mussolini in Italy and compromising with Austrian Nazis, now outlawed.

For the first time, the Heimwehr (home guards) participated in a "Fatherland Front" patriotic demonstration, a gesture regarded as indicating Dollfuss is prepared to set up a Fascist regime.

Prince Ernest Starhemberg, head of the Heimwehr, declared on his return from Italy last week that

Autogiro Fliers' Bodies Recovered

Three Drowned in Lake Mishap Wash Ashore.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Bodies of Miss Majenta Gerard and two men companions were washed ashore near Indiana Harbor today.

Miss Gerard, Charles Otto and H. E. Manning lost their lives when their autogiro plunged into the lake last Wednesday. Until the bodies were found their fate had been a mystery.

Manning was said to be the world's champion distance parachute jumper.

More U. S. Relief Money Allotted to Maryland

To meet its slowly diminishing relief bills, Maryland has been allotted $1,400,000 of Federal funds, Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins said yesterday.

This sum will be taken from a Federal fund set aside for relief to States whose own resources are insufficient. Maryland will not have to match each Federal dollar with two of its own, as was done with a previous grant of $1,213,996. So far Maryland has received, including the present allotment, $2,613,996.

News of Deaths in Auto Crash Comes on Visit to Divorced Father.

Fifteen-year-old Betty Green returned sorrowfully to her home at Watervliet, N. Y., last night.

She was visiting her father, Thomas Green, Shoreham garage manager, when she received a message telling of the deaths of her mother and stepfather, Maj. Charles A. Schimelfenig, in an automobile accident Sunday in Troy, N. Y.

Since the divorce of her father and mother nine years ago, she had been living with her mother and stepfather. After attending the funerals, she will return to her father.

Maj. Schimelfenig was born in Indianola, Iowa, December, 1888. He graduated from the Military Academy in 1911, and had served in the Coast Artillery and Ordnance department.

During the World War he served as ordnance supply officer of the Second Army in France and as supply officer of the Third Army in Germany. He was cited by Gen. Pershing and decorated with the Purple Heart.

After the war, he served as chief of maintenance division, office chief of Ordnance, and on the general staff. He was a graduate of the Command and General Staff School.

From 1926 to 1930 he was on duty in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War. He was assigned to the Watervliet Arsenal in 1930.

Mexico Holds Flier In Money Cargo Loss

Mexico City, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Two police agents were en route to Mazatlan today to bring Mack R. Ayers, 32, American aviator, here for investigation into the disappearance of 15,000 pesos from his hydroplane.

The money, carried as cargo aboard Ayers' plane on a flight from La Paz, Lower California, and Mazatlan, was missing when the pilot, a passenger and a mechanic were rescued in the Gulf of California after a forced landing on August 29.

Cuban Workers Strike Protesting Mine Death

Santiago, Cuba, Sept. 11 (AP).—The federated workers called a 5-hour general strike today in protest against the killing of Manuel Lama, a miner, at the Christo Manganese mines Saturday. Merchants met to consider closing their places of business.

Secrecy Veils Police Search For Lost Girl

Retired Banker's Daughter, Missing Three Days, Leaves no Clues.

Continued secrecy last night marked redoubled efforts of police and private searchers for Miss Virginia West, 22-year-old daughter of a retired Kentucky banker, who mysteriously disappeared here last Saturday.

Although members of the family, who are at the Mayflower Hotel, scout the theory of kidnaping, police are following the procedure of Federal agencies in such cases.

High officials of the detective bureau are sworn to secrecy.

Miss West, who lived with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. West, in Middleburg, Va., came here with a young companion Saturday. They took rooms at the Mayflower.

Girls Separate.

In the afternoon the two young women visited a downtown movie. They decided to attend different theaters, agreeing to meet at the Mayflower by 4 p. m.

Miss West's companion returned to the hotel, and nearly two hours later a man's voice over the telephone in their room announced "Virginia would be home later." She has not been seen since.

Throughout Sunday an undercover search was conducted. Yesterday, for the first time, a secret meeting was arranged between police and the family.

Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, ordered a description of the missing girl broadcast.

Fear Foul Play.

Meanwhile, Miss West's brother, Walter H. West, jr., was summoned from his home in Philadelphia.

With the passing hours fear of possible foul play arose. Her parents scoffed at an elopement.

When last seen she was dressed in a gray ensemble. She is 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighs 118 pounds. She has dark brown hair, bobbed and caught in a knot at her neck.

Congress Member And Foe in Fight

Brown, of Kentucky, and Tax Opponent Clash.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 11 (AP).—A physical encounter between Representative John Y. Brown and State Representative James D. Via in a crowded corridor outside the House chamber, followed defeat of a whisky tax bill in the House today.

Via was leader of Gov. Ruby Laffoon's forces in the fight on the measure. Representative Brown, former Speaker of the State House of Representatives, had opposed the State administration program and advocated the whisky tax. Both are Democrats.

Reenactment of Train Wreck Assembles 4,000 Spectators

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP). The wreck in which 14 persons were killed last Tuesday night was partially reenacted on the eastern outskirts of Binghamton tonight.

The actual wreck, however, was not carried out. A wooden passenger coach, similar to the death car of the Chicago-New York Atlantic, was "spotted" at the point where the collision occurred and a locomotive with engineer Martin H. King at the throttle was backed around the curve to where he said he first saw the red light.

Another engineer backed a locomotive still farther back until the light could not be seen. Officials recorded the distances and ordered the trains removed.

More than 4,000 spectators, many of whom aided in removing the dead and injured from the splintered wreckage last week, lined the tracks to see the wreck reproduced and were obviously disappointed.

The most dramatic moment came before the officials appeared. A hush settled over the noisy crowd as No. 8 shot its headlight around the curve at approximately the same time the wreck occurred and clicked away toward New York. Twelve minutes later the Hornell-Hoboken milk train followed.

Officials observed the demonstration from aboard the coach and the locomotive. Besides railroad officers, representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the State Public Service Commission and local police watched the activities.

Dynamite Box Drops, Breaks Carrier's Neck

New Albany, Ind., Sept. 11 (AP). Fellow workmen fled as John Cecil Austin, 32, slipped and dropped a heavy box of dynamite he was loading on a barge here today.

The dynamite did not explode, but the box fell on Austin's neck and broke it, causing his death.

Green Spurs U. S. Workers To Fight Cut

Pay Reduction Attacked as Economic Loss to Government.

Federal Employes Urged to Resist Economy Program.

A militant counter-attack to recover benefits lost through Congressional economy yesterday was urged on the American Federation of Government Employes by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Charging the Government has suffered financially and lowered efficiency standards by wage cuts, dismissals and furloughs, the labor executive called on Federal employes generally to "fight back."

"I am not one of those who believes we are 'doing our part' by accepting pay reduction from the richest, most powerful government in the world," Green said at the opening of the federation's annual convention.

Rival Unis Dispute.

Twice during the day the gauntlet was flung down between the labor-affiliated A. F. of G. E. and the rival National Federation of Federal Employes.

Green replied to the attack of President Luther C. Steward, of the National Federation, last week. Green charged Mr. Steward with complacently accepting the 15 per cent cut. He charged the National Federation, which seceded from the American Federation of Labor two years ago, with "isolating" itself from the organization workers of the country.

John Arthur Shaw, retiring president of the American Federation of Government Employes, opened the attack on the unaffiliated National Federation of Federal Employes. He declared it an "autocratic body, more or less under control of a monarch" and defended Green from Steward's onslaughts. Officers of the National Federation had charged Green was not qualified to lead the Federal employe movement and had voted against reaffiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

Campaign Program.

Committees of the American Federation of Government Employes worked last night on resolutions and policies to be called up at a session at the Hamilton Hotel at 10 o'clock this morning.

The program as President Green sums it up:

1. A six-hour day and a five-day week in Government, without reduction in pay.
2. Immediate restoration of the 15 per cent cut.
3. A dismissal wage for Government employes.
4. Representation on the Civil Service Commission.
5. A court of appeals for Federal workers.
6. Optional retirement.
7. Scientific classification legislation.

Other resolutions are expected to ask repeal of "married worker" legislation, extension of the merit system, 30 days annual leave cumulative up to 90 days, a change in the method of compiling cost of living data and elimination of the personal equation in the efficiency rating system.

Green plans to lead the executive council of the A. F. of L. to the White House in the near future to ask abrogation of the 15 per cent pay cut.

Wife of Einstein Pleads for Mate

"A Savant Should Have Peace," Says Frau.

Le Coq-Sur-Mer, Belgium, Sept. 11 (AP).—Declaring "We have nothing to do with politics," the wife of Dr. Albert Einstein, in an interview at their villa here today, made an appeal in her husband's behalf.

Dr. Einstein has gone to England, fleeing reported Nazi threats against his life.

"A savant should be left in peace," Frau Einstein said. "Nobody knows what we have been through this last week."

Paris, Sept. 11 (AP).—If Dr. Albert Einstein is touched, hostages will answer for his life, Bernard Lecache, secretary of the International League Against Anti-Semitism, announced today at a meeting called for presentation of alleged proof of the innocence of those charged with burning the Reichstag building in Berlin last spring.

Texas Ranger Guard Suspect in Bond Theft

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 11 (AP). Guarded by Texas rangers, J. B. Morrow, alias Earl Clark, charged with conspiracy to receive and conceal $500,900 in government bonds stolen from the Continental Bank and Trust Co. of New York City, waived preliminary hearing today and was released on $15,000 bond. Morrow was arrested last week at Fairmount race track near Chicago.

British National Debt Listed at 35 Billion

London, Sept. 11 (AP).—The British national debt totaled £7,767,811,171 (equivalent to $35,227,000,000 at current levels) at the end of the 1932-33 financial year, according to a statement in the finance account today.

Law Threatens Price Gougers, NRA Slackers

Johnson Prepares to Act Against Dodgers of Codes.

Coal Agreement Near; Labor Unrest Speeds U. S. Action.

Convinced that a code for the bituminous coal industry will be agreed on in the next few days, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson is preparing to move against all employers guilty of violating NRA codes.

This decision was made known as Donald Richberg, general counsel of NRA, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, were warning of widespread industrial warfare unless employers accept the labor provisions of the Recovery act.

Reports of strikes and threats of strikes from many sections continued to come into NRA headquarters with the National Labor Board, headed by Senator Wagner, (Democrat), of New York, moving rapidly to bring at least temporary peace.

A public hearing will be held at 2:30 p. m. today on the objections of coal operators to the code proposed by Gen. Johnson. Disputed provisions will be turned over to committees to work out an agreement. This will take two or three days.

Miners More Uneasy.

Delay in completion of the code has caused increasing unrest in the field, and miners in southwestern Pennsylvania have threatened to take an indefinite "vacation" unless operators sign immediately. It was in this field that one was killed and several injured in the strike which was temporarily settled by the recovery administration pending determination of a code. Both United Mine Workers' officers and the National Labor Board are endeavoring to head off the latest strike, fearing others would follow.

From Cleveland comes word of agreement in the street car strike, but other disputes are engaging the Labor Board's attention, including the silk industry in New Jersey and other States, shoe industry around Brockton, Mass., grain elevator workers in Buffalo, millinery workers in Chicago, and complaints that officers of the Westinghouse Manufacturing & Electric Co., at East Sprinfield, Mass., were seeking to prevent organization of employes.

Most of those troubles could be avoided if employers would let their employes organize, said Dr. W. M. Leiserson, secretary of the board.

Warning of widespread trouble was given by Mr. Richberg in a speech before the Better Business Bureau convention here. He criticized lawyers who had advised clients improperly about the collective

NRA Holds Up Fixing Oil Rate

Roosevelt, in Conference, Indicates Action Later if Warranted.

(Associated Press.)

Federal price-fixing to stabilize the oil industry was said authoritatively to be viewed by President Roosevelt as unnecessary immediately, but will be done if conditions warranted.

The petroleum business and its NRA code were discussed by the Chief Executive, Secretary Ickes, the oil administrator; Hugh S. Johnson, and other Federal officials.

After this conference Secretary Ickes emphasized that the President's authority to fix prices would be used if necessary, but that no immediate action was contemplated despite appeals of the majority of the industry's planning and coordination committee.

Objections to fixing the retail price of gasoline were filed with Ickes yesterday by the Consumers' Advisory Board of the NRA, with Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, chairman.

Oklahoma Gas Raised.

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 11 (AP).—Retail gasoline prices were increased for the third time in less than two weeks here today. The 1-cent boost brings the increase to 2½ cents a gallon.

Third grade motor fuel now will be 17½ cents, the middle grade 19½ cents and the premium grade 21½ cents.

Norman, Home Again, Still Using "Alias"

London, Sept. 11 (AP).—Mantagu Norman may have made use of his "Prof. Clarence Skinner" disguise when he returned tonight from the United States. (That is the name under which the governor of the Bank of England often travels).

Disembarking at Liverpool, he was seen to enter a first-class compartment. When the train arrived in London several people were waiting for him, but he did not appear. Later it was learned at his home he had arrived.

Mill Profiteers Warned of Jail Provision In Crop Acts.

Administrator Peek Says Process Tax Rules Violated.

(United Press.)

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration last night threatened prison sentences and heavy fines for textile profiteers.

George N. Peek, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel, collaborated on a statement which said that some textile manufacturers were guilty of price gouging and the administration was prepared to go to considerable lengths to stop it.

Findings of Dr. Howe's economists, they said, revealed "wide disparity and laxness exists among textile manufacturers in billing retail merchants for increases above contract prices, which they attribute to processing taxes and employment costs under the NRA code."

Gives Exact Tax Figures.

Dr. Howe, reminding the "gougers" of the $1,000 fine and the year's prison sentence which the law provides, said when a man pays $1.41 for a pair of overalls, he has contributed only 8 cents in cotton processing taxes, and that the buyer of an 8-cent loaf of bread gives only half a cent toward the wheat processing tax.

"The public has every right to know the true facts about the cotton tax as well as the wheat tax," said Dr. Howe. "It amounts to only 4.2 cents a pound. Every housewife should note this figure."

Peek and Howe said most retailers were not attempting to profiteer. They made public a list, however, giving the average retail price in 22 cities on August 30 of four cotton commodities. The prices and the tax:

1. Cotton sheets, selling for $1.16 and carrying a tax of less than 8 cents.
2. Work shirts, selling for 85 cents, with a tax of 3½ cents.
3. Overalls, selling for $1.41, taxable at 8¼ cents.
4. Unbleached muslin, selling for 11½ cents a yard with a 1 cent tax.

Some 50 Per Cent Increases.

"Since these retail prices were gathered," said Dr. Howe, "advertisements in the press and trade letters report much greater increases than had occurred up to August 31. In some cases these advances amounted to as much as 50 per cent.

"To give the impression that these advances are wholly due to the processing tax is a gross misrepresentation of the facts.

"Every man in the trade knows exactly how much of the increases is actually due to the tax. They should not befuddle the public."

If he discovers any mistatements concerning increased costs have been deliberate and persistent, Dr. Howe added, he intends to file complaints with the Department of Justice. He said he hoped merchants would cooperate by advertising exactly how much of their retail prices go to the government for processing taxes.

Lindbergh Tunes Plane To Continue Travels

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 11 (AP). Col. Charles A. Lindbergh spent today inspecting his plane, in which he and Mrs. Lindbergh crossed the North Atlantic on an air mapping expedition.

It was believed the couple may leave tomorrow, but no hint was given as to the destination.

The Colonel was a dinner guest tonight of General Eric Virgin, chief of the Swedish air forces.

German Book to Tell Of Communist Menace

Berlin, Sept. 11 (AP).—The Anti-Communist League announced today it will issue a book containing proof that plans were underway for a Communist putsch at the time of the Reichstag fire last spring.

The league, composed of non-Nazi organizations, said the book is intended as a reply to the "brown book" and to show what dangers Germany and the world faced.

Hull Extends Guarded Offer To San Martin

U. S. Will Welcome Any Rule Indorsed by Cuban People.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Cordell Hull in a formal statement late last night said the United States is prepared to welcome any Cuban government "representing the will of the people of the republic and capable of maintaining law and order throughout the island."

"Such a government," the Secretary of State said, "would be competent to carry out the functions and the obligations incumbent upon any stable government."

Hull said his statement had been communicated to Ambassador Welles at Havana and met with the latter's full approval.

Expression of the State Department's attitude in this formal way came just before midnight at the close of a day in which both Hull and President Roosevelt intimated informally that recognition of President Grau San Martin's government hinged upon its gaining popular support.

Secretary Hull's View.

Hull's statement read:

"The chief concern of the Government of the United States is and has been that Cuba solve her own political problems in accordance with the desires of the Cuban people themselves. It would seem unnecessary to repeat that the Government of the United States has no interest in behalf of or prejudice against any political group or independent organization which today is active in Cuba. In view of the deep and abiding interest in the welfare of the Cuban people and the security of the Republic of Cuba, our Government is prepared to welcome any government representing the will of the people of the republic and capable of maintaining law and order throughout the island.

"Such a government would be competent to carry out the functions and the obligations incumbent upon any stable government. This has been the exact attitude of the United States Government from the beginning."

Protest Received.

At the White House, meanwhile, protest against the presence of American warships in Cuban waters and against any step hinting at intervention was made by William Simons, national secretary of the anti-Imperialist League of the United States. Louis M. Howe, secretary to the President, told him the United States had no intention of intervening.

Officials declined to comment on the statement by President Grau San Martin that his regime desired friendship with the United States but that it would insist upon entire freedom of action and would oppose any steps considered imperialistic.

Silence also met reports from Cuban sources that the new government might attempt to rewrite the Cuban constitution and eliminate the Platt amendment.

Plan for Dictator Bared in Austria

Austria must become Fascist along the lines laid down by Mussolini, rather than by Hitler.

"We stand in reminiscense today," Dollfuss said, "of one of the most significant historical events in our history. Liberalism has been followed by Marxism, both of which are materialistic.

"I wish to expose the sins of parliamentarism and so-called democracy.

"We are beginning a new era. The time of liberal capitalism is past, as also is the selfish, materialistic Marxism. Austria has no place for political terroristic absorption."

Strikes at Nazis.

His remarks was taken to refer to the Nazis.

"In the future we will be both Christian and German," Dollfuss continued, "and have a 'staendische' social order. The state without authority can not rise.

"We often have declared we wish the friendship of Germany, but this friendship must be honorable, otherwise it is worthless. We demand freedom in our own home."

Dollfuss' reference to a "staendische social order" was interpreted to mean a state built on the old system of guilds and chambers, much along the lines of Fascist Italy.

The German word "staende" means guilds, such as trades and workers had in the Middle Ages.

Nazi, Dollfus Truce Seen.

Berlin, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Possibility of an early truce between the Austrian Nazi party and Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, at Vienna, was seen here tonight.

The broadcast by Ernst Habicht, Austrian Nazi leader, at Munich yesterday, hinting possibility of Nazis entering the Dollfuss cabinet, if given opportunity, was taken as a significant gesture for a truce.

The suggestion was regarded as a test of sentiment and the chances of the Nazis and Dollfuss working out an agreement ending the strife, at least temporarily, which threatens to throw Central Europe into conflict.

Dollfuss was quoted as stipulating terms under which Austrian Nazis might be admitted into the government, and Habicht's hint was seen as a possible counter-proposal.

Permits Given to Import 500 Cases of Brandy

(Associated Press.)

The industrial alcohol division yesterday issued a permit for the importation of 500 cases of brandy for medicinal purposes.

Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the division, said the permit had been issued to the Schieffelin & Co., wholesale druggists of New York. He added that other permits for similar quantities would be approved later.

Hull Denies Welles Plotted With Cuban Army Officers

Secretary Backs Envoy Answering Foreign Press Charges.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Hull yesterday denied reports circulated in foreign newspapers charging that Ambassador Sumner Welles has plotted with disgruntled Cuban army officers at the Hotel National in Havana.

He read a statement from Welles which said:

"I have never spoken to any of the army officers in the hotel individually or in assembly.

"I moved to the National Hotel because my lease expired and I expected to sail on September 14 for the United States. There were no Cuban officers in the hotel when I moved there."

Welles also said the hotel is the residence of a number of Americans, and that Americans are interested in it financially.

Hull said Welles is continuing in his post at Havana for the present and may or may not return to the United States on September 14, as was planned originally.

The Secretary said such statements constituted an example of fantastic and absurd rumors and suspicions sometimes picked up in credulous sources.

Read to Talk In Balm Trial

Broker Expected to Tell of Friendship With Actress Today.

Los Angeles, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—His activity heretofore confined largely to pacing the corridors, Alfred C. Read, jr. Oakland stock broker is expected to take the witness chair tomorrow as the third "corner" of the love triangle, involving his former wife, Mrs. Marian Read, and Claire Windsor, blonde film actress.

The women have told their sides of the story in Mrs. Read's $100,000 alienation of affections suit against the actress. Miss Windsor said Read informed her when they met he was single, later confessed he was married but planned a divorce, and told her his wife had a violent temper and was "a son of a gun."

"I hate to testify against my former wife," Read has said. "I am going to do everything I can to help Miss Windsor, because she is innocent."

Secretary Swanson Arrives at Canal

Says U. S. Wants to Keep Out of Cuba If Posible.

Colon, Canal Zone, Sept. 11 (U.P.). Secretary of the Navy Swanson said on arrival here today the United States "wants to keep out of Cuba if we possibly can."

The Secretary said continued concentration of the United States Atlantic fleet in the Pacific had "no particular significance," adding the ships remained "simply because the Navy is there."

Swanson inspected the fleet's air and submarine bases during the afternoon. The Indianapolis passes through the canal tomorrow.

Cuban Army Heads To Defy New Rule

Machado regime, strengthened plans for the defense of their headquarters.

They increased their ammunition as employes of the hotel walked out after they had been threatened by forces opposed to the officers.

Meanwhile, Grau San Martin frankly expressed a desire for friendship with the United States and called upon Cuba "to turn her eyes" inward in announcing that he had secured five more men for his nonpolitical cabinet.

The officers, deposed by last week's coup of noncommissioned officers, had made their headquarters in the hotel for some time.

Hotel Grounds Patrolled.

Government troops have patrolled the grounds outside, but no attempt was made to increase the guard, although orders were issued that no more food should be carried into the building. Wives of the officers carried food into the building after the help walked out, leaving all the residents, including Sumner Welles, United States Ambassador, without service.

The officers later issued a proclamation addressed to the people of Cuba, which said, in part:

"The officers ask the people that before making accusations they analyze our situation thoroughly.

"Some of the people are saying the officers now in the National Hotel are trying to provoke American intervention. This is absolutely false, and the officers deny it categorically.

"The officers can not submit to orders of mutinous troops.

"It is impossible, under present conditions, to form a real government.

"We do not want to control the government and we do not want to provoke public disorders."

Not Anti-American.

"We desire American friendship," said the new president in a statement to the press, "based on the absolute liberty of Cuba. We never forget that American soldiers fought for our independence and we are grateful.

"We are not anti-American, but we are anti-imperialism in all its forms."

Three men were wounded in a pistol fight which followed a political argument at the Havana City Hall.

A five-hour general strike was inaugurated at Santiago at noon in protest of the killing of a manganese miner in the town of Cristo yesterday.

Reports from Camaguey said all employes of the Consolidated Railways of Cuba went on strike at noon. Previously Ruben Leon, member of the student directory at Havana, announced the Camaguey strike would not be inaugurated.

Rescue of U. S. Lost Airmen Ends Big Race

Van Orman and Trotter Found Exhausted in Canada.

Chicago, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Rescue of two American balloonists in Canadian wilds today ended the 1933 Gordon Bennett race.

With the finding of Ward T. Van Orman and Frank Trotter, all 12 men who left Chicago in six free balloons September 2 were accounted for.

Van Orman and Trotter, pilots of the Goodyear IX, had been down since September 3. They were hungry and exhausted when rescued.

Unofficial opinions were that the Polish entry, which landed about 1,000 miles away, in Canada, would be declared winner. Official announcement will come from the National Aeronautical Association.

It was believed the American naval entry, piloted by Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle and Lieut. Charles H. Kendall, won second honors. That balloon landed in Connecticut. Van Orman's balloon landed about 550 miles from Chicago. The race was for distance only. Settle's balloon went almost 900 miles before landing Tuesday.

Trouble Brings Aid.

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Ward T. Van Orman and Frank A. Trotter, missing balloonists, were found today after they cut down a telephone pole in the Canadian wilds to make sure searchers would reach them.

They lived on berries, suffered from ptomaine poisoning, wore through their shoes and their clothes were in ribbons.

"I never saw two men in my life so glad to see another human being," said James Barrett, lineman for the Ontario Hydro-electric Co.

Telephone line trouble led to discovery of the balloonists, and they caused the trouble for that purpose. Barrett found this note:

"This telephone pole was cut September 10 by U. S. Goodyear balloon team of W. T. Van Orman and Frank Trotter in the hope that repairmen would aid us in getting to civilization."

Barrett followed the line until he came upon the aeronauts.

Their bag, descending from a height of about 8,000 feet, struck a pine tree. The balloon was badly damaged.

1,000 Textile Workers On Strike in Alabama

Piedmont, Ala., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Approximately 1,000 textile workers were on strike in this section today, following a walk-out by employes of the Standard Coosa Thatcher Mills.

Today's strikers, around 600, joined 350 employes of the Profile Mills, at Jacksonville, who quit several days ago because of wage differences. The Standard employes were reported protesting against general conditions, including the wage scale.

Kiss Theft Costs English Lord $11

Girl Testifies to Tiff in Railway Coach.

Epsom, England, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Sir Leo Chiozza Money, former Parliament member, was fined 2 pounds 10 shillings today for annoying a young lady by kissing her. At current exchange 2 pounds 10 shillings is about $11.25.

Sir Leo, 63 years old, said he would appeal. Outside a crowd received him with hoots and boos. Police protected him.

Miss Ivy Ruxton, testified that the kissing occurred a month ago in a compartment of a railway car when the economist seized the girl in his arms, kissing her repeatedly, and she was forced to leave the train at the next station.

Settlement Is Reached In Cleveland Car Row

Cleveland, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A working contract between the Cleveland Railway Co. and the local Carmen's Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, was signed today in the presence of Charles B. Barnes, NRA labor mediator.

The pact brought recognition to the union for the purpose of collective bargaining, the major demand of the workers in their threat to strike last week. They withdrew, however, a demand for a 25 per cent wage increase, leaving this matter for arbitration later.

Britain Told to Watch NRA and Learn Lesson

Long Eaton, Derbyshire, Eng., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Sir Francis Goodenough paid high tribute to President Roosevelt's NRA program in an address here today, opening the British trade exhibition.

"The United States, under Mr. Roosevelt's courageous leadership," Sir Francis said, "is making the greatest experiment yet made in State control of business. I feel that we in this country must not be too proud to learn from the lesson which America may yet show us."

Farley Urges Huge Wet Vote For Maryland

Campaign Comes to Close With Luncheon Speech at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The campaign for repeal of the eighteenth amendment was brought to a close in Maryland today with a speech by Postmaster General James A. Farley asking for an "overwhelming" vote.

"There is no doubt in my mind as to what the outcome will be in Maryland tomorrow," he said, "but I am particularly anxious that the result in Maryland shall be so overwhelming that it will truly reflect the sentiment of all the voters of your State."

The Postmaster General's address was delivered at a luncheon, described as a nonpartisan gathering, sponsored by the Young People's Democratic League of Maryland.

Praised Nonpartisanship.

He praised this nonpartisan aspect of the campaign. He also praised the work of the younger citizens in the campaign, asserting "It is both gratifying and reassuring to participate in a movement in association with young citizens who are interesting themselves in important public questions. * * *

"We of the older generation made the mistake of permitting the eighteenth amendment to become part of the Federal Constitution. You of a new generation are correcting our error."

Says President Pleased.

Farley said President Roosevelt not only is "pleased with the rapidity with which the States are accomplishing ratification, but he is eager that we finish the task at the earliest possible moment so that in planning the national budget for the next and succeeding years he can estimate the proper return to the National Treasury of revenues from legitimate alcoholic beverages which now are going in the form of enforced tribute to the illicit traffickers of the underworld—the bootlegger and racketeers."

Drys Passing Word.

There was little else to signalize the close of the campaign. George W. Crabtree, superintendent of the Maryland Antisaloon League, said no antirepeal meetings were being held today, but that the drys were "passing the word down the line that the larger the vote the better for our cause in the future, and that a vote for repeal means a vote for the saloon." He said the wets had conducted a "deceptive" campaign.

The vote in the State tomorrow is for delegates to meet October 18. The slate includes delegates for repeal, against repeal and uninstructed.

Polls in Baltimore City close at 5 p. m., but in most of the counties they do not close until 7 p. m.

Minnesota Votes Today.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Repealists and prohibitionists have been waging oratorical contests in Minnesota the last few days on the merits and demerits of prohibition. Tomorrow the electors will determine who won, as this State goes to the polls to decide whether it shall join with more than a score of other Commonwealths which have repudiated the dry law, or whether Minnesota will be the first State to reject repeal.

Earlier estimates of a total vote of 700,000 have been revised downward in view of the weather forecast that presages cloudiness for tomorrow. The latest estimates place the total vote at 500,000, about half of the total vote in the last presidential election.

The repealists are confident, predicting a victory by a two or three to one margin. The prohibitionists, hopeful, have pinned their faith for a victory on a large vote

Colorado Seen for Repeal.

Gov. E. C. Johnson, of Colorado, in Washington, said yesterday of the repeal vote in his State today:

"My guess is that it will be a light vote, but that repeal will carry 2 to 1. Colorado is strongly back of President Roosevelt and considers this a vital part of his great program."

Denver, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Just what Colorado voters think of the eighteenth amendment will be written on ballots tomorrow in a special State-wide election.

For years Colorado was considered a banner prohibition State. At the general election last November, however, 233,311 voted to strike the State prohibition amendment from the Constitution. Vote against State repeal was 182,771.

Roosevelt Signs Salt Trade's Code

Substantial Job Gain Is Reported by Johnson.

(Associated Press.)

The salt-producing industry's code was signed yesterday by President Roosevelt. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, reported to President Roosevelt the code represented substantial employment increase.

Under the code the seven-day week is eliminated and workers are guaranteed one day of rest in seven.

Texas, Louisiana and West Virginia were defined as the South in the code, with the minimum wage there set at 30 cents an hour for men and 25 cents for women workers. In the rest of the country the minimum is 35 cents for male and 32 cents for female labor.

Texas Woman Legislator Turns Down Federal Job

Austin, Tex., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Miss Margie E. Neal, State senator from Carthage, said today she had declined an appointment as recorder for the Federal General Land Office, offered her by President Roosevelt.

Wet Majority In Montgomery Likely Today

Both Sides' Vote Will Be Light, With Drys More Active.

Montgomery County, Md., is expected to poll a large wet majority today in the special State election on repeal. Dry forces are putting forth every effort to get out the antirepeal vote, however, and expect to make a good showing.

Both sides fear the vote will not be near the total registration. The wets in many instances feel the victory is won and have not put forth any strong effort.

A mass meeting was held last night at Columbia Hall of the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, Md., by dry forces of Takoma Park.

The polls open this morning at 6 o'clock and will close at 7 p. m.

New voters who have reached the age of 21 while living in the county and new residents who have filed their intentions to become citizens of Maryland more than a year ago will be registered at the various voting precincts today. Transfers from one precinct to another also will be recorded. Persons who are to be registered today are urged to arrive early, as they will require more time to vote than those already registered.

To vote for repeal, the voter must mark each of the nine names on the first column of the ballot with an X. To vote against repeal, the entire second row must be marked. The third row of nine names is for unpledged candidates.

Warfare Speeded On NRA Violators

bargaining provisions of the recovery act.

"Labor's right to organize and bargain collectively has been repeatedly upheld by the United States Supreme Court," he reminded.

So-called merit provisions added to the collective bargaining provisions of the automobile code have been widely misrepresented, and one agency quoted a few words of the section to direct the meaning of the entire clause, he said.

"It is this form of misrepresentation which is endangering the success of the recovery act and which may bring trouble," he warned.

Organized labor did not escape his criticism. Labor leaders had misrepresented the law, coercing thousands into ranks of their unions with the statement that none but union members would benefit from the law, he said.

President Green warned that labor would fight further efforts to modify the labor provisions of the law. Tampering with the law will spread strikes, he continued.

The labor leader threatened to go before the country and demand shorter hours from industrial captains. Asserting that "reemployment has not been what it should have been," Green said "If we enter the coming winter with the 7,000,000 or 8,000,000 of unemployed now indicated, the labor movement can not guarantee that stability necessary to orderly industrial recovery." He added:

"Labor stated in the beginning, and even long before the recovery act became a law, that American industry required a 35-hour week if we were to recover from depression, but literally scores of modified reemployment agreements have established work weeks of 40 hours and more. Some have been as long as 50 hours.

"Today Washington is filled with the agents and lobbyists of great manufacturing enterprises and their Wall street financiers. Many of them have no conception, no idea, of the meaning of a new deal. They are trying again to restore the old deal. They are trying all of the old back doors and some new back doors and they find much help in these places. They have got too much there already."

The consumers' advisory board today renewed its efforts to have the master retail code held up pending study of its provision fixing a minimum 10 per cent mark-up in prices. The board also objected to any price-fixing which would increase the price of gasoline, pending thorough study.

California Woman Gets High Paid Postal Job

(Associated Press.)

The highest-paid woman acting postmastership went yesterday to Mrs. Nellie G. Donohoe, at Oakland, Calif.

The position carries a $7,000 annual salary. Mrs. Donohoe has been Democratic national committee woman of California since 1920.

Drys Brandish Snake Emblem To Mock Wets

NRA Slogan Paraphrased as "No Rum Again" in Convention.

A snake and a turtle gamboling on a pair of purple pajamas surmounted by the motto "N. R. A." (no rum again) was proposed as the battle flag of Virginia drys at the opening of the antirepeal campaign of northern Virginia at Falls Church.

The insignia was proposed by the chairman, R. L. Feldman, who produced the snake, the turtle and the pajamas. The turtle was christened "Jim," in honor, Feldman said, of prohibition's chief opponent. The snake skin represents all opponents of prohibition, and the pajamas, Feldman inferred, are similar to the ones worn by Postmaster General Farley during a recent telephonic address to a meeting in Denver.

Mrs. Howard M. Hoge, president of the Virginia W. C. T. U., had "Jim" removed from the platform. She advocated boycotting all stores where beer is sold.

O. G. Christgau, of the National Antisaloon League, said the wets were organized and that the drys haven't had time to get organized.

Another speaker, the Rev. H. M. Hoge, husband of the W. C. T. U. chieftain, said the preachers were afraid to talk these days and suggested that, as the eighteenth amendment was a child of the churches, they should take better care of it. He said temporary nonenforcement would be preferable to outright repeal.

Wets, Drys 'Sure' Of Prince Georges

Both Sides Claim Victory in Today's Balloting.

Predictions of a wet landslide in Prince Georges County were interspersed last night with hopeful broadcasts from dry camps as Maryland prepared to vote on the eighteenth amendment.

The polls will open this morning at 7 o'clock and close at 6 p. m.

"There is a growing sentiment in the county against repeal," said the Rev. B. P. Robertson, pastor Hyattsville Baptist Church. "The dry vote will be far greater than expected."

The majority of views expressed tend to show this part of Maryland against prohibition. Estimates ranged from 2 to 1 to 50 to 1 in favor of repeal.

"The State undoubtedly will be greatly in favor of bringing liquor back," State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer said. "But the landslide will not be as great as predicted."

An unusually light vote is expected.

Garbage Truck in Crash With Sedan; 3 Injured

Three persons suffered injuries in a collision yesterday between an Arlington County garbage truck and a private sedan at the corner of Glebe road and Alcova avenue in Arlington. William Stearn, 22, was driver of the truck, and Homer F. Cooper, 237 Deepwood avenue, Arlington, was operator of the sedan.

Two colored helpers on the truck, injured, were conveyed to Georgetown University Hospital by the Arlington rescue squad. Cooper, who sustained lacerations about the chest and legs, was taken to his home. Stearn was uninjured. There were no arrests.

Ickes Names 12 To Review Board

Washington and Virginia Men on Works Group.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Ickes yesterday appointed the Public Works Technical Board of Review of 12 to consider particularly difficult or controversial projects.

Members included Carey H. Brown, chairman of the Public Works Administration; Howard P. Emerson, Washington; Richard Sutton Buck, Crozet, Albermarle County, Va.

Ruthless Cuts In Bank Asset Values Flayed

Warning Sounded at Parley of Supervisors in Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—State bank supervisors were admonished today against needlessly sacrificing the interests of depositors in marking down the values of bank assets.

Robert C. Clark, of Montpelier, Vt., president of the National Association of Supervisors, told the organization's convention sound banking was essential, but that care should be taken in conserving old deposits, as well as in giving new depositors the highest possible degree of safety.

He asked for supervisors to guide them in evaluating assets, for advising bankers concerning policies, and for determining the strength of a bank.

Clark made no definite reference regarding State banks which have not reopened since the national banking holiday, nor in what way a more liberal policy in measuring the value of their assets might affect them.

Clark made it clear that he did not advocate reopening of banks for payment of deposits to such an extent that the country's financial structure would be in any way imperiled. He opposed insurance of bank deposits.

Quota Complaints Knot Sugar Code

Producers' Ideas Sought on Pact Increases.

(Associated Press.)

Domestic and other sugar producing areas have been approached to determine if they are willing to increase the proposed quota which Cuba and the Philippines would be allowed under the tentative sugar stabilization code.

Cuban representatives want their quota, now fixed at 1,700,000 tons, raised to 2,000,000 tons annually. The Philippines seek an increase in their 955,000-ton quota to 1,200,000 tons.

The litigation section of the Veteran's Administration, employing about 262 persons, yesterday was transferred to the Justice Department.

Roosevelt Gets Big Fish Without Hook and Line

(Associated Press.)

A 152-pound mounted tarpon was presented to President Roosevelt yesterday by a good will delegation from St. Petersburg, Fla.

Senators Fletcher and Trammell made the presentation. The President directed that the fish be placed in his office. A 24-piece band from the Southern city played during the presentation.

Spanish Crisis Appears Ended

President Approves New Cabinet and Factions Pledge Support.

Madrid, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The crisis in the Spanish government appeared solved tonight with announcement by Alejandro Lerroux that President Alcala Zamora approved his proposed new cabinet.

The Premier-Designate said all republican minority groups had pledged support of his government. The names of the new ministers will be made known tomorrow.

In view of minor disturbances in Madrid precautions were taken throughout Spain, but no serious reaction was expected.

More than a dozen persons were injured and about 25 were arrested here in two Communist demonstrations.

Code Rates Aviators As Professional Men

(Associated Press.)

The air transport code was revised yesterday by Deputy Administrator Malcolm Muir to exclude all pilots from wage and hour provisions, classing them as professional workers under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce.

This was demanded by the pilots. The operators had proposed minimum wages of $60 a week for pilots and less for copilots.

Secrecy Veils Veteran Claim Hearings Here

Board Would Avoid Any Scramble for First Consideration.

Secrecy is veiling hearings on disability claims of veterans in the Washington area, which opened yesterday.

The names of those whose cases are to be reviewed will not be published because some might insist that their cases be heard first, a board member explained. Hearings are kept closed for the same reason. It was intimated details of cases of unusual interest might be given to the press later.

All persons whose claims are to be reviewed have been notified and may appear or be represented. No time limit is placed on the presentation of the claimant's case.

Veterans' review boards were appointed throughout the country under that section of the economy act reducing disability payments. Congress was unable to agree on the treatment to be given "presumptive" cases, and the President solved the problem by leaving these cases to local boards. "Presumptive" cases are those of veterans who were given the benefit of the doubt when it was not sure their disability was due to their Government service.

Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of Veterans Affairs, reported recently about 60 per cent of veterans whose cases under review were dropped from the pension rolls as a result of the decision of the boards. Those dropped have the right of appeal to a higher board, however.

The board for the Washington region is headed by Isaac Gans. Other members are Maj. James Stewart Richardson, Joseph C. Fehr, Paul H. McMurray and Dr. William H. Kable.

Tear Gas Halts 400 in Jail Raid

Mob Balked in Attempt to Free 2 Mine Union Leaders in Utah.

Price, Utah, Sept. 11 (AP).—A mob of 400 persons stormed the Carbon County Jail here today in an effort to liberate two leaders of the National Miners Union, but was repulsed by sheriff's deputies who used tear gas bombs and fire hose. No one was injured seriously.

Fights occurred among officers and union sympathizers.

The union called an abortive strike of coal miners of Carbon County, which was ended after 300 pickets and sympathizers were rounded up by deputy sheriffs.

The mob tried in vain to disarm the guards, standing by the jail with rifles. Charles Guynn and Charles Wetherbee, charged with criminal syndicalism, are in jail here and officers said the attack was intended to free them.

Accused Father Quotes Scripture

Lord Took Child, He Says, at Neglect Trial.

Cleveland, Miss., Sept. 11 (AP).—Charged with manslaughter for the death of his 11-year-old son, allegedly from lack of medical attention, J. S. Chance was ordered released on $500 bond pending grand jury action. He set up a scriptural defense at preliminary hearing here today.

"The Lord gave us the child and the Lord took it when he saw fit; medicine would do no good," Chance said as he pleaded his own cause with biblical references and described how the boy, Hilliard Chance, had "eleven chills in eleven days."

The child died of pernicious malaria. Other members of the family, suffering from the same malady, have been given medical treatment since the father's arrest.

Hart Extradition Verdict Delayed

Return of Arch Criminal to Maryland Indicated.

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney today postponed until tomorrow his decision regarding the extradition to Maryland of Jack Hart, who twice escaped from prison there.

Courtney indicated he would not oppose extradition of Hart, but said he was "still considering" the case. He conferred with three men wounded by Hart in a poolroom shooting, which resulted in the fugitive's arrest.

Montgomery Ward Co. Officer Dies at Home

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—Robert G. Bear, 55, vice president and treasurer of Montgomery, Ward Co., died last night at his Evanston home. Bear played golf Saturday. He complained of acute indigestion and died shortly afterward. He was a native of Allentown, Pa. A widow and six children survive.

Portraits and Tablet Honor Confederates

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 11 (Spl.).—Portraits of the late Dr. John Jay Terrell, Confederate army surgeon, Thomas Rosser, Confederate general, were unveiled today in the courthouse at Rustburg. A bronze tablet honoring Col. Charles Lynch also was unveiled.

The portrait of Dr. Terrell is by Mrs. John A. Mahood, of this city, and that of Gen. Rosser by J. F. Fisher, of Baltimore.

NRA Refusals Invite Control, Richberg Says

U. S. Will Be Forced to Absolute Rule He Asserts.

Those who refuse to accept the rights of labor and capital are presenting to the Government the necessity of absolute Government supervision, Donald Richberg, chief counsel of the NRA told delegates to the nineteenth annual convention of Affiliated Better Business Bureaus, Inc., which opened yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel.

"We cannot hope to promote prosperity without taking labor into consideration," he declared. "Unstable labor conditions make a stable industrial machinery almost impossible. In some way, and in some fair manner, the rewards of industry must be equally divided among the masses. The products of industry can have no stable market among an impoverished mass of destitute industrial workers."

Richberg referred to the coal code problem as typical of the sort of labor problem the NRA is encountering.

Legislation to set up legal standards for food products which would give the Government similar control over these products as over drugs, was advocated by Dr. W. C. Campbell, chief of the Bureau of Foods and Drugs, of the Department of Commerce.

"The time has come when legislation is necessary to combat the flood of products into the market with false and misleading labels," Dr. Campbell said.

False assertions in advertising could be eliminated if professional standards for the advertising field were set up, Edgar Koback, president of the Advertising Federation of America, told the Better Business men.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper will speak at a banquet tonight at the Shoreham.

150 at Jockey Club Seized in Police Raid

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 11 (AP).—A large squad of police raided the fashionable Jockey Club here today, temporarily detained 150 men and women and finally released all except one man, who described himself as Cassius E. Pond, a musician. Pond was charged with gaming.

Police said the club had wire connections with the nearby Rockingham track in Salem, N. H., and several others.

Judge Trimble Dead in Denver

Judge Samuel D. Trimble, of the Tenth District Court of Colorado and a former resident of Washington, died last week at his home in Denver, it was learned here yesterday.

Judge Trimble, who was 69, was born in Georgetown, the son of Matthew D. Trimble, head of the National Grange.

As a young man he was connected with the Treasury Department here. He went to Colorado 40 years ago and served on the bench since 1918.

Confederate Pensions Will Be Raised Shortly

Winchester, Va., Sept. 11 (Spl.).—After having had their monthly stipend seriously curtailed for more than a year, Confederate veterans in this section have been notified their pension checks soon will be brought up to the 100 per cent level by reason of an act passed by the extra session of the Virginia Legislature.

Widows of veterans, however, will have to wait several months before reductions in their checks will be reinstated.

New Inflation Talk Brings Stock Boom

Alcohol Issues Lead Gains of 2 to 10 Points.

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—Renewal of inflation talk in Wall street circles today brought stock rises of from 2 to 10 points. Commodities also were higher, wheat going up more than 3 cents a bushel. Trading was active in all quarters.

Alcohol stocks were prominent in the upswing, led by National Distillers, which was up more than 11 points at one stage. Rails participated in the improvement, registering gains of from 1 to 3 points in some cases.

Bailey Gets Many Religious Tracts, and One Asks: 'Where Is Heaven?'

Oklahoma City, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Harvey J. Bailey's jail cell library was enlarged today with arrival of several religious tracts from a Los Angeles organization. A woman in Leavenworth already had sent him a Bible.

"Where is Heaven?" was the title of one tract.

Bailey, held for trial next week in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, is to be tried later as the gunman in the Kansas City Union Station massacre. Death will be asked in that case.

Congressmen Probing Crash

Death of Bumper Rider on Labor Leader's Car Draws Interest.

Several members of Congress are said to have interested themselves in yesterday's automobile accident at Beltsville, Md., in which Timothy J. McCarthy, 50, of Philadelphia, was killed.

Police say McCarthy had hitched a ride at Laurel on the rear bumper of a car belonging to Joseph Fay, of Newark, N. J. The car, operated by Pater Moczarski, 26, crashed into a culvert.

Fay, who is business agent of Local 825, International Union of Operating Engineers, was on his way here to attend an executive committee of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers, of which he is eastern representative. He was removed to Casualty Hospital, where his condition was reported as being serious. Moczarski was charged with reckless driving and released on $100 bond.

Soon after the accident a number of lawyers, among them were said to be several Representatives, visited H. M. Scott, acting coroner, at Laurel. They were reported to be acting in the interest of Fay and his chauffeur.

Catholic Charities To Hear President

Group to Hold New York Meeting in October.

President Roosevelt will address the nineteenth annual National Conference of Catholic Charities in New York City in October, the Very Rev. Mgr. Robert F. Keegan, president of the conference, announced last night.

The conference, held in conjunction with the Centenary of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, will assemble about 5,000 Catholic social workers from October 1 to 5. The President was invited to speak by His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes.

"The aim of the conference will be to direct the trained forces of all charitable and social welfare workers to close coordination with the President's views on national reconstruction," Mgr. Keegan said.

Official Raps NRA: Closing Dairy Firm

Code Worker to Shut His Plant and Retire; Sees Small Ones Doomed.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 11 (AP).—Benjamin A. Pearsall, head of a dairy products company, announced today he will close his plant and retire October 1 because he believes "the NRA is going to put the small business out of existence." His plant employs about 100 perons.

Pearsall founded his butter and milk firm in 1906 and expanded it into the manufacture of other dairy products, sandwich spreads, and salad dressings.

Lately he had been a member of the executive committee drafting codes for the mayonnaise, margarine, butter and milk industries and spent the last two months at Washington working over codes.

Father Honors Firemen For Saving Son's Life

Seattle, Sept. 11 (AP).—One year ago firemen of Truck Company No. 3 revived the newborn son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beatty by artificial respiration after hospital physicians believed the infant dead.

Today Robert, jr., paid a visit to Company No. 3 with a cake bearing the inscription: "To the firemen who saved our boy."

2 Big Parties Stagger Under Debt Burdens

Democrats Owe $524,292 and G. O. P. Carries $186,464 Deficit.

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic and Republican national committees reported to Congress yesterday that with the exception of small cash balances for operating expenses, their respective treasuries continued deep in the red.

The third quarterly report filed under the corrupt practices act listed unpaid outstanding obligations of the Democratic committee at $524,292.

The Republicans reported a deficit of $186,464. From June 1 to August 31 contributions to the Republican treasury totaled $29,590 and expenditures $30,426. Of the contributions, Andrew W. Mellon donated $25,000.

Receipts of $87,096 and disbursements of $90,593 were reported by the Democrats for the same period, leaving a cash balance on hand of $40,554, exclusive of the unpaid obligations.

The report showed that of the unpaid Democratic obligations the sum of $80,250 was due John J. Raskob; $42,100, Joseph P. Kennedy, and $10,000, Henry Morgenthau, all of New York City; $25,000, to R. M. Morrison, San Antonio, Tex.; $10,000, Breckinridge Long, Washington, D. C.; $17,500, M. L. Benedum, Pittsburgh; $10,000, W. K. Vanderbilt, New York City; $10,000, Vincent Astor, New York City; $10,000, R. H. Gore, Chicago; $10,000, Howard Bruce, Baltimore, and $10,000, Robert B. Meyer, New York City.

Youell in Capital For Prison Parley

Virginia Leader Conferring on Convict Industries.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—Maj. Rice M. Youell, superintendent of the State Penitentiary, was in Washington today for conferences preliminary to establishment of State-use industries in the Virginia prison system.

The prison labor system of the State had to be revamped under recent Federal laws and the codes, and Maj. Youell attended the conferences to see that the new system coincides with Federal requirements.

The extra session of the Assembly authorized the State Prison Board to expend $75,000 for self-liquidating equipment by which State-use goods may be manufactured in the system and about 600 convicts employed and taught mechanical trades.

Slain Girl's Chums Give Police Clew

Vague Description of Man Suspected Is Obtained.

Somerville, Mass., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—A vague description of a suspect in the slaying of 10-year-old Peggy McCarthy, found strangled in a Cambridge lot Friday, was in the hands of police today.

From the lips of playmates and young girls of the same age as the victim of what District Attorney Warren L. Bishop has called "the most brutal case" he has handled, they were able to describe the man sought as middle-aged and of foreign extraction. Otherwise, they were without a clew to his disappearance.

King of Iraq's Body Returned to Home

Brindisi, Italy, Sept. 11 (AP).—The British cruiser Despatch sailed for the Near East today with the body of King Feisal of Iraq, who died in Switzerland last week.

Military honors were rendered by a battalion of Italian infantry and members of the Air Corps. Official representatives of Premier Mussolini and King Victor Emmanuel were present at the embarkation.

Hospital Wall Falls In Spain, 2 Children Die

Granada, Spain, Sept. 11 (AP).—Two children were killed and six persons injured tonight when the wall of a hospital clinic under construction toppled over.

The architect and building officials were arrested.

Washington Scion Dies.

Westport, Conn., Sept. 11 (AP).—W. Lanier Washington, 68, descendant of two brothers of George Washington, died today at his home. He was stricken with a heart attack.

Admiral Gove, Retired in '14, Is Dead at 79

Long Career in Service Began in 1871 as Cadet at Naval Academy.

Death of Rear Admiral Charles A. Gove, 79, was announced by the Navy Department yesterday. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Admiral Gove took the dreadnaught U. S. S. Delaware to England on June, 1911, for the coronation of King Edward V.

He was born in Concord, N. H., on July 5, 1854, and began his long career in the service in 1871 when he was appointed to the Naval Academy by the President.

Admiral Gove served on the U. S. S. Topeka during the Spanish-American War. He was in the Bureau of Equipment at the Navy Department from November, 1903, to July, 1906, and a member of the general board shortly before the close of his active career.

He was commandant at the Naval Academy from 1908 to 1910. From 1912 to 1914 he was commanding officer of the Naval Training Station at San Francisco. He was appointed rear admiral and retired in December, 1914.

During the World War the admiral was recalled to active duty and served with the naval unit of the University of California. He was relieved in January, 1919.

Berserk Bulls Charge Crowd and Injure 20

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 11 (AP).—Ten bulls broke loose today in the nearby village of Sobral and charged into the crowd at the annual summer festival, injuring 20 persons, three of them probably fatally.

The bulls smashed articles in china shops, fancy stalls and cafes, and wrecked the bandstand. A barber killed one bull with a razor and the others were rounded up.

Auto Victim's Funeral Today

Cause of Crash Fatal to Five Oaks, Va., Girl Still Unknown.

Funeral services for Miss Carolyn Davidson, 18, who was killed Saturday night in an automobile accident near Vienna, Va., will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Holy Comforter Episcopal Church in Vienna. Interment will be in the Flint Hill Cemetery.

Miss Davidson is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Davidson, of Five Oaks; four sisters, Mrs. Virginia Whitesell, of Clarendon; Mrs. Bessie Dyer, of McLean; Mrs. Elva Dowering, of Washington, and Mrs. Ethel Frenzel, of McLean, and five brothers, Ray, of Fairmount, W. Va.; Wayne, of the U. S. Army; Clarke, of Falls Church; William and Woodrow Davidson, of Vienna.

Fairfax County authorities said the cause of the accident still is unknown. Louise Butler, of Vienna, the only occupant of the car uninjured, was unable to state what happened.

The other four passengers still are in Georgetown Hospital. They are Moser Duke, of Wheelers Mill; Gertrude Sauver, of Oakton; Millard Shifflet and Robert Williams, of Browns Chapel.

Torso of Woman Found at Detroit

Husband Who Pondered on "Perfect Crime" Hunted.

Detroit, Sept. 11 (AP).—The dismembered body of a woman, believed to be that of Mrs. Aurore McCann, was found in a ditch in Oakland County today. Authorities swore out a warrant charging her husband, Edward McCann, with her slaying.

The head, arms and legs were missing. A woman's legs and arms, subsequently identified by fingerprints as those of Mrs. McCann, were found a week ago in a field on the outskirts of Detroit. McCann has eluded a widespread search.

Acquaintances said he discussed with them crimes that made news, pointing out errors of the perpetrators and perfecting plans by which detection might have been avoided.

U. S. Student Aid Project Discussed

College Man Tells of Plan Similar to C. C. C.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 11 (AP).—The college student of the future may turn to Uncle Sam for finances instead of wiring "Dad," E. O. Holland, president of Washington State College, said today.

Dr. Holland said thought was being given proposals for a Federal aid set-up for students, similar to the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The plan still is in the formative stage, the educator said, and has not been submitted by the Administration.

Another Cloudburst Strikes in Colorado

Denver, Colo., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Another cloudburst struck between Colorado Springs and Denver late today. The downpour was heaviest near Sedalia where 300 automobiles were held up.

Denver was without gas tonight. The main pipe bringing natural gas into the city from Texas was broken in the storm Saturday.

National Open For Season of Spoken Drama

Miss Griffith, John Litel and Robert Ober Score in Coward Play.

"DESIGN FOR LIVING." The National Theater presents Corinne Griffith in a play in three acts and nineteenes by Noel Coward. Staged by Clifford Brooke; settings by Charles Squires.

Gilda ..... Corinne Griffith
Ernest Friedman ..... Clifford Brooke
Otto ..... John Litel
Leo ..... Robert Ober
Miss Hodge ..... Bernice Bartl
Mr. Birbeck ..... Karl Nielsen
Photographer ..... George Spievin
Grace Torrence ..... Edith Gresham
Helen Carver ..... Helen Dodge
Henry Carver ..... Freddie Sherman
Matthew ..... Burke Clarke

An enthusiastic audience that all but tested the capacity of the house heaped plaudits upon Corinne Griffith and her associate players for the consistent excellence of their work in the revival of Noel Coward's impertinent comedy, "Design for Living," with which the National Theater opened the new season of legitimate drama last night.

Necessarily stripped in large measure of the brilliance, the verve and the glamour lent it by the three distinguished players for whom it was especially written, and who appeared in its pivotal roles on the same stage last year, "Design for Living" last evening revealed itself more minutely than ever as a deftly articulated and flawlessly written bit of audacious fun.

Its recital of the vicissitudes in the life of a polyandrous young woman of the Paris studios, who loves very much a young artist and a young author, both of whom are equally devoted to her, but who marries a stodgy little Englishman for the sake of the security which, after all, she fails to find, is still the source of a delightful period of sprightly diversion.

It would be the part of overstatement, of course, to pretend that last evening's performance of this tricky play, excellent as it was, was on a parity with that afforded an earlier audience, scarcely more appreciative than last night's, by Lynn Fontanne, Alfred Lunt and Mr. Coward, but it would be no less the part of understatement to say that Corinne Griffith, John Litel and Robert Ober did not give an intelligent, fluent and amusing interpretation of their respective roles and of the play's climacteric situations.

This is distinctly a feather in their caps, for into the three parts of Gilda, Otto and Leo, Mr. Coward wrote a tremendous amount of pungent dialogue that depends in great degree upon the skill of the reader to achieve any effect whatsoever. In the early scenes of the first act a monotony of tone and theme seemed to threaten the fullest effect of Mr. Coward's rounded speeches and brittle repartee, but as the movement of the triangular romance progressed this threat was wholly dissipated and the play was accorded a breezy, buoyant and believable exposition.

Miss Griffith makes Gilda less the Spartan, almost one might say Pagan, character which Miss Fontanne etched with such bold strokes, than an ingenuous and only mildly assertive young woman who does not so much dominate circumstance as permit circumstance to dominate her.

John Litel in the role of Otto, formerly played by Mr. Lunt, and Robert Ober, in the Coward part, fairly approximate their predecessors in the scenes of most immediate importance to the successfully humorous effect of the three acts. Their tippling scene at the end of Act II remains a gem of cumulative absurdity and their small talk in the opening scene of the last act also maintains a high level of nonsensical humor.

Among the supporting players several old friends are prominently cast. Clifford Brooke is seen in the role of Ernest Friendman; Karl Nielsen, as Mr. Birbeck, the interviewer; Bernice Bartl, as Miss Hodge, the slavey; Burke Clarke, as Mathew, and Freddie Sherman, as Henry Carver, appearing only in the first scene of the final act—all members of the National Theater Players during the last spring season of that sterling organization at the National.

Edith Gresham and Helen Dodge are picturesque in other roles important to the last act of the play.

Charles Squires has provided "Design for Living" a group of stage settings that fall nothing short of the production given the piece upon the occasion of its American premiere by Max Gordon—indeed, the library scene is superior to Mr. Gordon's vista of towering bookshelves that were completely inaccessible without the aid of fire ladders.

Champagne Grape Price Soars as Repeal Nears

Penn Yan, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—The price of champagne grapes is soaring in the Lake Keuka country as wineries seek to outbid each other in anticipation of repeal.

Prices have leaped as high as $150 a ton for Delaware grapes, which is about twice the amount received by vineyardists since the advent of prohibition.

Sleep Deaths Mount to 122

Army of Noted Medical Experts Assembled to Battle Disease.

St. Louis, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—An army of renowned medical experts was marshaled here tonight in a desperate effort to check the growing loss of life resulting from encephalitis.

Despite every effort the toll of sleeping sickness continued to mount. Health officials registered the 122d death among the 735 cases reported here since July 30.

The death rate in all cases has been approximately 15 per cent, and among victims over 50 years of age it has been more than double that. It differs from previous epidemics in that most of its victims are beyond middle age.

Despite the array of medical scientists, health officials said "very little real progress" toward checking the disease had been made.

Two discoveries, neither of immediate aid, have been made. Dr. Margaret Smith, of Washington University, found the presence of virus in kidney tissues, proving the disease is of the virus type.

Saunders Hits Virginia's Gas Tax Rebate Act

Border Competition Plan Believed Illegal by Attorney.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—Attorney General John R. Saunders today held as "highly doubtful" the recent Legislature's act allowing reduction in Virginia gasoline taxes in border sections to meet competition with retail sale in contiguous States and the District of Columbia with a lower tax.

His written opinion was sent to Gov. Pollard at the latter's request.

The governor has not signed the measure, and tonight said he would give it further consideration.

The bill was designed particularly for the benefit of retailers in Virginia communities adjoining the District of Columbia, where there is a difference of 3 cents.

The act provided the State might absorb 2 of the 3 cents in a radius of 10 miles from the District border and 1 cent in the section lying between the 10-mile limit and a 15-mile mark.

Asserting the question of the constitutionality of the act "is highly doubtful," the attorney general said there are no decisions in the State to be used as a precedent.

He said the question hinged on whether the gasoline tax was a tax on property or an excise tax. He held that if a property tax, the rebate act was clearly unconstitutional, and if held an excise tax there still was doubt of legality.

Work Halted to Debate $8 Minimum Wage at Alexandria Plant.

Employes of the Century Manufacturing Co., Alexandria, numbering nearly 100, laid off work to decide whether to accept a minimum wage of $8 per week, for a 40-hour week on a piece-work basis.

The workers have been on a $12 minimum since August 1, but Sidney Weinman, son of the president of the company, said the firm will be forced to cut the minimum to $8 to meet competition. He said the piece-work scale has been raised slightly and fast workers can still earn their former wages.

The firm has been invited to sign the NRA agreement with a $10 minimum wage, but the management states that is impossible and that the company is waiting for the announcement of a code.

The employes have walked out three times since March.

Job Plan Told To Civic Group

Montgomery Federation Also Votes Support of NRA Program.

The Montgomery County reemployment agency opened yesterday in Rockville and received 109 applications, Chairman George W. Adams reported last night to the Civic Federation.

Plans to reduce unemployment through the agency were explained at the county organization's meeting by Judge R. Granville Curry.

Robert E. Bondy, chairman of the schools committee, expressed optimism that the Public Works Administration will assist in the $750,000 project of constructing 15 schools. There is $525,000 in county funds available for the work.

A resolution calling for the widening of Bradley Lane was tabled when bitter opposition developed from the floor. Samuel E. Stonebraker, of Bethesda, argued widening of the road would cut off the Chevy Chase Club's tennis courts. Demands for lower electric rates were referred to the lights committee.

The federation unanimously adopted a resolution supporting the National Recovery Act and the President's Reemployment Committee. Frederic P. Lee, president, had charge of the meeting, the first of the season.

Juanita Hansen Sues Adviser for $25,000

Los Angeles, Sept. 11 (AP).—Juanita Hansen, a noted actress of the old silent films, today sued Clarence M. Leavy, described as her financial adviser, for recovery of $5,000 in cash and $20,000 in Liberty bonds.

This represented a part of a $109,000 judgment Miss Hansen obtained against a New York City hotel three years ago for scalds received in a defective shower bath, she said.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

A CHEERING send-off was given Miss Beulah Myles and Francis O. Panneton, most popular woman and man in Government service, as they left by air yesterday for the World's Fair. They arrived in Chicago last night at 10:55 o'clock, having left the plane in Cleveland due to bad weather and proceeded by train.

Miss Myles took her mother, Mrs. Rose Myles, on The Post's all-expense week's tour to Chicago. It was Mrs. Myles' first plane ride, and she boarded the big air liner as calmly as getting on a street car.

Mr. Panneton's companion was Max Frank, who also works at G. A. O. Mr. Frank was campaign manager for Mr. Panneton during the Federal Diary Popularity Contest. Miss Geraldine Frost, of The Post staff, was the fifth member of the party. She will arrange details of tickets to the fair, shows, sightseeing trips and other entertainment in behalf of The Post for the party in Chicago.

No transatlantic voyagers were ever given a more enthusiastic farewell than the first prize winners in the Federal Diary contest. Friends and relatives, representing Government Departments, crowded the Washington Airport platform an hour before time of departure.

Miss Myles looked like a fashion model in her trim brown traveling togs furnished by The Post. Mr. Panneton, also in a new outfit bought for him by The Post, was as happy during the send-off as a sophomore returning to college.

Tomorrow will appear the first daily diary of The Washington Post's guests during their stay in Chicago.

Miss Janet Stevens and William E. Mitchell, runners-up in the Popularity Contest, will leave on a Norfolk & Washington Line steamer Friday afternoon. They, with a companion each, will spend the week-end at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach, as guests of The Post.

Jacob Jones Session.

Eighteen Federal employes attended the Advisory Council meeting of Jacob Jones Post, No. 2, American Legion, at the cottage of Mrs. Grace Keliher Mead at North Beach, Md. The hostess, formerly of G. A. O., surprised the party by announcing her marriage to Robert Mead, of North Beach.

The guests were:

Miss Mary Z. Weide and Mrs. Lucille Allan, Naval Operations.

Mrs. Belle K. Graves and Miss Estelle Richardson, Hydrographic, Navy.

Miss Jane Cox and Mrs. Edna P. Smith, Supplies, Navy.

Mrs. Harriet Fairall and Mrs. Helen Opitz, formerly of Supplies, Navy.

Miss Jane Breen, Mrs. Mary Tatspaugh, Miss Charlotte Berry and Mrs. Dorothy Brunken, Navy Yard.

Mrs. Kate K. Briggs, Finance, War.

Miss Genevieve Sparshott, G.P.O.

Mrs. Anna Frame, formerly with Navigation, Navy.

We Are Happy.

So many letters have come in from guests at the Federal Diary party, expressing appreciation for an enjoyable evening at Club Michel that space will not permit using all. This one from Mr. and Mrs. Robert O'Toole is a sample of more than a hundred. Mr. O'Toole is with Marine Corps Headquarters.

"Mrs. O'Toole, myself and our friends transmit through the Federal Diary our sincere thanks and appreciation to The Washington Post for the most wonderful evening we have ever spent in Washington. We also thank our many friends who helped make it possible for me to be a guest at the banquet and dance Thursday night at Club Michel.

"The dinner was delicious, the moon marvelous, the music divine and the crowd wonderful. It was just a crowd of Federal workers and their friends out for a good time. The necessary touch of dignity and decorum was added by the presence of the distinguished general manager of The Post, Mr. Eugene MacLean.

"The host, Morgan Baker, was here, there and everywhere at the same time. He was ably assisted by Miss Geraldine Frost, who demonstrated what the perfect hostess should do. Her cold reserve, like unto some queen waiting to be escorted to her throne, slowly melted and then she stole the show with her charming smile.

"As the success of your evening's entertainment depends somewhat on your company, we are grateful for ours. Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson were at our table. With them were Mr. and Mrs. Patten, who proved to be congenial companions.

"As to the contest winners, Miss Beulah Myles turned out to be an old friend of ours and we were more pleased at her success.

"Again, we enjoyed The Post's party and hope the Federal Diary will consider more of these get-togethers soon (now, we don't mean free entertainment)."

Today's Epitaph.

Cast a mournful tear for Pete McGurk,
Whose efficiency led the throng.
'Tis often said, "He was a good clerk,
But the pay cut just done him wrong."

Lawrence Douglas Addresses Women

Arlington Club Hears Road Talk at First Session.

Lawrence Douglas, Commonwealth attorney for Arlington County, addressed the first meeting of the Arlington Women's Club yesterday. He spoke on recent legislation pertaining to the county's participation in the Byrd road plan

Ben Smith, member of the Arlington County Board, spoke in favor of entering the State highway system. Mrs. Milton B. Payne, garden chairman, discussed fall gardening.

Following discussion of health efficiency in schools, the club went on record in favor of retaining Mrs. Norma Davies as school nurse.

Bladensburg Plans Flood Control Rally

Bladensburg, Md., town commissioners last night decided to call a meeting soon of nearby town officials to discuss flood control.

Edmonston, Riverdale, East Hyattsville, Brentwood, North Brentwood, Colmar Manor and Cottage City are expected to send representatives to the meeting.

Mystery Blow Fatal to Man In Montgomery

Police Believe Cranking Car Killed Melvin; Continue Probe.

Although relatives charged foul play, Montgomery County police last night believed the death of Charles I. Melvin, Gaithersburg, Md., was accidental.

Melvin died yesterday at Montgomery County General Hospital, Sandy Spring, from a fractured skull.

Police believed he was injured while trying to crank his car. Bloodstains were on the crank, indicating that he either slipped, striking his head, or was struck by the crank when the engine backfired.

Melvin first appeared Thursday at the Gude nursery at Westmore with his head cut. A watchman called police, but Melvin disappeared. He was found after a two-hour hunt and taken to the hospital, where he remained semiconscious until he died.

Relatives cited bloodstains on an ax in the back of the car, and say he was slain, but police pointed out that the stains were on the handle and not the blade.

Melvin is survived by his wife and seven children. A brother, William B. Melvin, patrolman of the Ninth Precinct here, charged foul play and volunteered his help. Montgomery County police will continue their investigation at the request of relatives.

Hyattsville Delays Sunday Movie Action

Action on a referendum on Sunday movies in Hyattsville was delayed until tomorrow by the town council last night. A proposed ordinance was referred to the police committee and Corporation Counsel H. Winship Wheatley, jr., for discussion today.

On complaint of former Senator Smith W. Brookhart, resident of Hyattsville, the council clerk was instructed to write the B. & O. Railway and the Washington Railway and Electric Co. about the condition of the Melrose avenue crossings.

Shell President Quits In Row Over Policies

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—A. F. Carter, president of Shell Eastern Petroleum Products, Inc., has resigned because, he said today, certain policies affecting the management made it impossible for him to give his best efforts to his work.

Another change in the Royal Dutch Shell group is the election to the presidency of the Shell Petroleum Corporation in St. Louis of Alexander Frazier, vice president, succeeding R. G. A. Vanderwoude, who has been transferred to New York.

New Device Traces Thought To Muscles as Well as Brain

Discovery Does Not Prove Athletes Best Thinkers, Scientist Asserts.

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—A method of detecting dreams and thoughts by electrical apparatus, which shows that muscles, as well as the brain, participate in thought, was reported to the American Psychological Association today.

"This does not mean," said Prof. Louis William Max, of New York University, who made the report, "that a good athlete is necessarily a good thinker, but it does indicate the muscles play a more important role in thinking than they are usually given credit for."

He uses sensitive instruments, which photograph electrical currents as small as one-millionth of a volt coming from the human body. These currents, he found, are generated in the muscles during thinking and other conscious states. They tend to disappear in sleep, but when dreams commence, the electricity again appears.

The currents were produced when arithmetic and other problems were being solved. The harder the problem, usually the greater the electric flow.

Simple reading often produced electricty in muscles, but it caused none at all in an expert proof reader. Similarly, counting x's and y's in an alphabetical series, which started the current in most persons, did not raise a single volt in this proof reader.

The records indicate that several dreams could take place in a consecutive two or three minutes. This, Dr. Max said, indicates that dreams may last longer than the "classic one or two seconds."

West Virginia Pastor, Wife Brutally Slain

Neighbor Stumbles Over Woman's Body, Fallen on Walk.

Ripley, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP). Beaten and shot to death, the bodies of the Rev. A. M. Eddy, and his wife were found at their home at Grace Fork today.

A neighbor stumbled over Mrs. Eddy's body as he left his home. He followed a trail of blood to the Eddy house where Eddy was found dead in bed.

Eddy, pastor of the Mount Hope Church of God, apparently had been shot to death while sleeping. Indications were his wife was awakened by the shots and fled wounded from the house.

She apparently had been pursued and shot again as she fled down the highway. Then, officers said, her assailant beat her over the head with a shotgun.

Session Backs Byrd RoadPlan For Arlington

Hugh Reid Names Group to Work for Election on County Issue.

Two hundred persons attending an open meeting at the Arlington County courthouse last night unanimously favored inclusion of the county in the Byrd road plan.

Hugh Reid, delegate to the Virginia Assembly, presided. At his request, Lawrence Douglas, Commonwealth attorney, spoke on the plan. He stated he was thoroughly in favor of the county joining.

A committee was appointed by Reid to gather petitions for a special election to decide whether the county would go in on the plan. Fred Gosnell and Benjamin M. Smith, county board members, spoke in favor of the plan.

Urgent need of county funds for the proposed sewerage system was pointed out by Harry K. Green, county commissioner of revenue. Under the Byrd plan, he said, the money could be obtained. Reid told the meeting that regular county improvement could be obtained more smoothly under the plan.

Fletcher Kemp, superintendent of schools, urged immediate relief for schools. Green replied that county funds now going to roads could be diverted to schools under the Byrd system.

East Falls Church Unit to Discuss NRA Tonight

The Citizens Association of East Falls Church, Va., will discuss the NRA campaign at a meeting tonight. Robert Smith Simpson, a member of the American committee that made a study of European economic and labor problems for the League of Nations, will speak. The meeting is open to all interested persons.

The Chamber of Commerce of Fairfax County, Va., will meet in the courthouse at Fairfax tonight to discuss legislation enacted at the special session of the State Assembly. The new county unit system adopted last week by the county board of supervisors will be a topic.

Pollard Aims To Sell State On Works Plan

"Big Push" Launched to Bring Virginia in Line on Program.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—An intensive drive to "sell" the Federal public works program to Virginia counties, cities and towns, and to private corporations as well was launched today by Gov. Pollard.

The object of the drive is to remove from relief rolls every able-bodied man in the State, and follow the Roosevelt program for returning prosperity.

The drive was launched formally late today in a meeting with his public works advisory board and other State officials, and citizens.

In starting the "big push," the Governor first combined the membership of the State Advisory Board and the State Planning Commission to conduct the "sales campaign." The combined group is to meet Friday.

Meanwhile, Gov. Pollard will communicate with the President to ascertain definitely whether he will exercise the executive authority given him to advance $16,000,000 to Virginia for highway construction purposes, despite the fact that the State is forbidden under its constitution to borrow money for such a purpose.

Until this is determined, State plans for this program will be held in abeyance.

Motorist Jailed On Speed Charge

Baltimore Man Unable to Pay $25 Fine.

Unable to pay a fine of $25 and costs for speeding, John Jones, Baltimore, was sentenced yesterday in the Laurel, (Md.), police court to 25 days in Marlboro jail.

James Raglen, Elkridge, Md., was fined $1 and costs for reckless driving. He was arrested September 2 when he collided with a car belonging to William Thompson. Similar charges against Thompson were dismissed.

Eddie Dean, 1536 Marion Court northwest, was committed to jail for 31 days on failure to pay a fine of $51 and costs on a charge of possession of whisky.

Trio Begin Job Of Protecting Bank Deposits

Examining 8,000 Outside of Reserve System Being Outlined.

(Associated Press.)

The three men who will supervise the issuance of banks' deposits took office yesterday and immediately began organizing for their task of putting the system into operation by January 1.

After a long conference, the three—Walter J. Cummings, chairman; E. G. Bennett and J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency—reiterated their intention of insuring as many banks as can meet their solvency requirements.

All member banks of the Federal Reserve system are automatically included in the pool from which the safety of a depositor's funds will be guaranteed up to fixed amounts. There are, however, some 8,000 nonmember banks which must be examined in the next few months. A corps of 1,500 qualified examiners has been mustered for this task.

Delay Urged Anew.

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—F. M. Law, president of the American Bankers Association, today described as a "wise course" the annual convention's action in urging postponement of the date when the provisions of the law requiring insurance of bank deposits become effective.

"It recognized as a present fact that we have, by law, the insurance plan—that we are confronted by a condition and not a theory," Law said. "It was felt, however, that the time remaining between now and January 1, when the first stage of the law goes into effect, was not sufficient to set up the plan on sound lines. The suggestion was, therefore, made for a postponement."

Reserve Staff Gains.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—George J. Seay, governor of the Fifth District Federal Reserve Bank, today said steps have been taken to facilitate an increase in its membership under the deposit guaranty law to become effective January 1.

Gov. Seay said the bank has increased its examination force to examine promptly banks applying for membership, but not those banks merely seeking Federal examination.

Turtle Cans

They Will Be Available Soon as New Industry Starts in Miami.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 11 (AP).—A new industry—canning of turtle meat—has started here.

A shipment of live turtles from Georgetown, Cayman Islands, arrived today by boat and was deposited at a canning factory to await butchering.

The 250 turtles weigh 200 pounds each.

Jelkes Blocked Again in Divorce

Plea of Condonation Fails Alabama Beauty.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The second attempt of Mrs. Eugenia Woodward Jelke, of Birmingham, Ala., to obtain a divorce from F. Frazier Jelke, wealthy New York broker, failed today.

Judge Charles A. Walsh, who denied the original divorce petition of the Jelkes, dimissed a motion of George P. Slade, counsel for the Alabama beauty, for divorce on the ground of condonation. He argued Jelke had condoned his wife's conduct in Chicago.

Charles P. Sisson, counsel for Jelke, argued the court did not have jurisdiction because both sides had arranged to appeal to the State supreme court. Judge Walsh said he weighed the question of condonation before his decison at the trial in May.

Silk Garment Strike Settled in St. Louis

St. Louis, Sept. 11 (AP).—Agreement to end the silk garment workers' strike, in progress here for a month, was reached today. Representatives of the union and the employers' group approved the agreement at a meeting with the St. Louis NRA mediation board. The agreement will affect about 1,500 workers and between 30 and 40 employers.

Lake Seamens' Strike Feared if Code Delayed

Ashtabula, Ohio, Sept. 11 (AP).—Fear that Great Lakes seamen might strike unless a lake code is adopted was expressed here tonight by Ivan Hunter, a union officer.

Lack of a code for lake workers, and present wage, Hunter declared, was causing trouble.

Mead to Seek NRA Basis in Post Office

House Leader Promises Aid to Mail Clerks.

Seattle, Sept. 11 (AP).—Representative James M. Mead, New York, chairman of the House Postal Committee, today told the annual convention of railway mail employees that his committee hoped to obtain the NRA basis for postal workers.

He added that no benefits should come to those "who left the service in time of need."

Responses to welcoming speeches were made by Representative Mead, A. A. Fisher, Washington, D. C., superintendent of railway mail service, and Mrs. John Gager, president of the Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Kahn Recovering After Fall From Window

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—Improvement in the condition of Mrs. Anne Whelan Kahn, former wife of Gilbert W. Kahn, was reported today at the Harbor Hospital, where she is recuperating from a fall from a window of her Park avenue apartment.

Dr. Benjamin Prince, Long a Teacher, Dies

Springfield, Ohio, Sept. 11 (AP).—Dr. Benjamin F. Prince, 92, vice president of Wittenberg College, died here today. Dr. Prince became a member of the Wittenberg faculty in 1856. He taught until his death.

Ford, Silent On NRA, Takes Over Command

He Slips Unobserved to Detroit, But Secrecy Is Denied.

Detroit, Sept. 11 (AP).—Henry Ford was back home today in personal command of his interests. He made no statement regarding his company and the National Industrial Recovery Administration.

Ford was back in Detroit before anybody outside the Big Bay, Mich., camp knew he had departed. Officials here said he and Mrs. Ford departed in full view of those at the camp and with no effort to conceal their actions.

A fellow camper said the motor magnate, in eluding questioners at the camp gates, rode out concealed under the canvas covering of a trailer attached to his car.

Ford today went into the same seclusion that marked his vacation. He conferred with company officials, including his son, Edsel.

Associates said for the present there will be no formal statement on the NRA automobile code, which the company has not signed.

Ford Bid Wins Over NRA.

Detroit, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The City of Detroit may purchase 99 new Ford automobiles, although the council recently resolved to do no further business with firms not qualified under NRA codes.

Robert W. Ford, Dearborn Ford dealer and a nephew of Henry Ford, submitted the low bid on 99 of 146 new cars to be purchased by the city.

Purchase of the machines from Ford will be recommended to the council. The city charter states that all orders must be awarded to the lowest bidder.

2 New Strikes Called; End Neckwear Walkout

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—Two strikes were voted today, one affecting 25,000 underwear workers who were expected to walk out at 10 a.m. tomorrow and the other tying up the cleaning and dyeing industry.

With the NRA acting as mediator, another strike—of 10,000 neckwear workers—was settled with a wage increase and shorter hours. The return to work will be effective tomorrow. The cleaning and dyeing workers call was ordered into effect at midnight tonight. The strike should tie up 30,000 workers.

Statutes Born In Crisis Face Test in Court

Supreme Court May Rule on Banking, Farm and Mortgage Laws.

(Associated Press.)

Tests that may bring rulings from the Supreme Court on three of the emergency laws of the Roosevelt administration already are in process of appeal to the highest court.

The cases involve State and national laws, ruling upon which would have direct bearing upon the court's view as to the legality of the emergency banking law, the agricultural act and the farm and home loan mortgage measures.

There is a distinct prospect that other cases might spring from the industrial recovery act. Legal authorities are predicting an immediate test of provisions of that measure under which the President might license industries that fail to comply with code provisions if the licensing powers are invoked.

Some experts believe, however, that the cases may be disposed of on jurisdictional questions which would relieve the tribunal of the necessity of passing on the controversy on its merits.

Recovery Aids In Conference At White House

Roosevelt Makes Sure Nation's Needs Are Being Met.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt canvassed the Government's credit agencies yesterday to make certain the Nations' needs are being met.

He spent three hours with men who control the billions of credit available.

The President realizes the difficulties met by small merchants in endeavoring to carry out NRA agreements without immediate credit. Government leaders are convinced the banks will meet the situation.

Eugene Black, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, expressed the opinion the banks were meeting this situation. Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, thought the banks could go a little stronger. The conferees said the word inflation was not mentioned.

Others in the meeting included Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of the Treasury; Henry Morgenthau, Jr., the governor of the Farm Credit Administration; Frank C. Walker, secretary of the Executive Council; J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, and Walter Cummings and E. G. Bennett, the two newly appointed members of the Bank Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Jones suggested that the NRA members form mortgage companies to get direct loans from the Reconstruction Corporation when their security was not adequate for bank loans.

Bride, Daughter Hacked To Death by Husband

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—A bridegroom of seven weeks hacked to death his bride and her daughter by a previous marriage today.

Police found Mrs. Lillian Kowalsczek, 40, and her daughter, Anna Nicholas, dead of ax wounds. The girl had been killed as she slept. They found Peter Kowalsczek, 42, clutching the ax. He surrendered.

Hearing of Six In Abduction Of Luer Begins

Lives of Woman and Five Men at Stake in Illinois Court.

Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 11 (AP).—A woman and five men went on trial for their lives today in the kidnaping of August Luer, wealthy Alton, Ill., packer.

The Federal Department of Justice stood at the shoulders of Madison County officials in the latter's efforts to send the defendants to the electric chair.

Mrs. Lillian Chessen, 50, of East Alton, who is inclined to plumpness, fanned herself with a printed court docket as she sat among the defendants. The State charges she pointed out Luer as a prospective kidnap victim.

Beside her sat her husband, Charles Chessen, also accused. Behind them were Christ Nicola Gitcho, of Madison, said to have written a ransom note, and Randol Norvell, professional bondsman, who admitted he was involved in the abduction. In the last row sat Percy M. Fitgerald, St. Louis former convict who admitted he was one of the kidnapers, and Mike Musiala, 77, in whose musty cellar Luer was held for six days before being released when ransom negotiations failed.

Strike Spreads As Coal Code Action Waits

10,000 Miners Now Out in Pennsylvania; Others May Join.

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 11 (AP).—With approximately 10,000 miners already out, danger of another widespread strike in southwestern Pennsylvania's soft coal fields appeared imminent tonight unless prompt agreement is reached on the coal code.

Approximately 25 mines were idle today as workers watched developments in Washington.

Leaders of the United Mine Workers of America called a meeting of local officers of districts 3, 4 and 5, representing about 60,000 men, for Wednesday, announcing that a decision would be made then on the strike question.

State police arrested 11 men, whom they say are striking miners, at the Salemville, Pa., plant of the Keystone Coal & Coke Co. today, following an alleged attack on George Connelly, 60, a mine deputy. The men are held on riot charges.

Last Chief Dies.

Bartlesville, Okla., Sept. 11 (AP).—George Falleaf, 80, last chief of the Delaware Indians, and a son of the Capt. Falleaf who commanded a company of Indian warriors in the Civil War, died yesterday at the Claremore Indian Hospital.

The Investment Problem.

In presenting its compilation of new capital flotations for the month of August, the Commercial and Financial Chronicle states that the new securities brought out were "so exceedingly meager that they call for no comment beyond noting the fact itself." New corporate issues amounted to only $14,049,613 for the month, and these were chiefly brewery issues. State and municipal issues totaled $31,549,916, exclusive of refunding issues, making the aggregate of all financing only $45,599,529. For the eight months to September 1, new capital issues fell short of $400,000,000, or less than half the total of the same period in 1932, and an insignificant fraction of the approximately $7,180,000,000 of new capital issues offered in the first eight months of 1929. The Chronicle then proceeds to note that financing by the United States Government continues unabated, and during August the Government did long-term or permanent financing considerably in excess of $1,000,000,000.

With due respect for the Chronicle, the showing is one that not only calls for comment but for a warning. Business recovery in the United States is well under way. Only the blind or the bigoted are prepared to deny the evidence of improvement presented by rising prices, increased manufacturing and trade activity, and various other indices of expanding business which have resulted in the reemployment of probably 2,000,000 men since the low point of the depression was reached last spring. Those who are anxious for a continuation of the recovery processes and hope for a sustained upward movement of prices and production know, however, that one of the major supports for a restoration of prosperity must be supplied by the long-term investment market which provides the funds for construction activities, creates a demand for the products of the heavy industries, and provides employment for an army of workers engaged in producing capital goods and equipment. Although a great deal has been said about the Federal Government taking the place of private borrowers, it is plain that governmental financing can at best supplement; it can never replace other investment outlets for the saved capital of the American people, so long as this country exists under a system of private enterprise.

It is a truism to say that investment activity rests upon public confidence. There is danger, however, that this commonplace financial maxim will be forgotten by those who think of recovery chiefly in terms of rising prices, indifferent to the shocks to investment confidence resulting from demands that the printing presses be put to work or some other form of inflation attempted. Those who plead for more money and more credit in face of the fact that our currency and credit resources would be superabundant, if adequately employed, are helping to prevent the effective utilization of these resources and to dry up the sources of investment funds by creating fears as to the future fate of the dollar.

The present gratifying evidences of increased consumer buying which appear to justify prior increases in manufacturing activity make it difficult to be patient with those malcontents who call for continuing inflationary stimulants to speed the recovery process.

Talk of inflation stimulates fear of the standard of value and causes speculative purchases based on such fear. What is now needed is not purchases based on fear, but investment based on confidence. Construction activities depend on the investment market and the mortgage loan market, and confidence as to the future value of money is a necessary precedent to renewed activity along the line that in the past has led the country out of depression and a condition of extensive unemployment. Permanent business recovery requires a combination of production of goods for immediate consumption and of capital goods needed to permit production to expand in accordance with the growing and diversified needs of an increasing population.

Maryland Highway Plan.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland has issued a statement concerning highway construction and methods of financing it which presents several novel features. The State already has $3,600,000 as its share of the Federal allotment for highways, but Gov. Ritchie holds that this sum is insufficient. At its last session the legislature authorized the sale of $4,000,000 worth of debentures, to be repaid by the State Roads Commission from the truck and license taxes, with authority to impose a bridge tax if necessary to meet the debt.

Gov. Ritchie now suggests that these debentures be turned over to the Federal Public Works Administration, to represent 70 per cent of the amount required by that administration to be raised by the States in applying for 30 per cent from the Government for public works projects. He states that he is advised that the Public Works Administration would be willing to make Maryland a road grant of approximately $1,200,000, which would be 30 per cent of $5,200,000, and accept the State's debentures for $4,000,000 as Maryland's 70 per cent of the balance.

If this plan should succeed, Maryland will have $8,800,000 for public roads. Gov. Ritchie voices his opposition to construction of superhighways at this time, holding that the State's interests can be served best by extending highways for the use of its own people. But if the additional sum contemplated is allotted, the Philadelphia road can be widened, and other thoroughfares much used by motorists of the District of Columbia and neighboring States would be improved.

Maine For Repeal.

With Maine voters registering a majority in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment there appears little chance that a single State will be listed in the dry column when the thirty-six necessary to abolish Federal prohibition have recorded their will on November 7. Maine voted for State prohibition in 1851 and the result of yesterday's election in this original bone-dry territory was awaited with unusual interest. Both wet and dry factions conducted an intensive campaign and on the eve of the voting both claimed a victorious outcome.

As a result of a decision of the State Supreme Court the Maine election was the most complicated contest yet held. Slates of delegates were voted for in each of the sixteen counties, the names of both wet and dry candidates being listed alphabetically without any distinguishing designation as to their stand for or against repeal. The court ruled that the repeal convention must be a truly deliberative body and not simply a convention to ratify opinion previously expressed at the polls.

While the official ballots carried no indication of the leanings of the eighty candidates named by each side, private lists and newspapers have made plain the attitude of the prospective delegates. The system resulted in some confusion and delay in determining the exact result, but the returns indicate that Maine has joined the unanimous procession of States favoring repeal.

Today three more States, Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado, elect delegates to their respective repeal conventions. Colorado is the only State in which the drys have claimed the possibility of winning. They have made a determined fight there to make the State the exception to the wet parade, claiming that the rural vote would offset sentiment for repeal in Denver, but in various States this expectation has been disappointed by the result of the farm vote.

Municipal Debts.

The debts of municipalities in the United States are estimated at $18,500,000,000 by the Public Administration Service of Chicago, which reports that about $1,200,000,000 of these debts are in default. An inquiry into the identity of the holders of municipal securities indicates that $4,500,000,000 are held by individuals with moderate or large incomes; $4,000,000,000 by corporations other than banks or insurance companies; $3,380,000,000 in sinking funds, trust funds, etc., of States and their subdivisions; $2,800,000,000 by banks; $1,000,000,000 by insurance companies, and the remainder by charitable and educational institutions, estates, fraternal insurance companies, individuals with small incomes, etc.

How to extricate municipalities from this enormous debt, ten times as great as their debt in the panic of 1873, is engaging the attention of many experts. The hardships of other depression eras are studied with a view to ascertaining how the municipalities worked out of their difficulties. Repudiation was altogether too frequent; but in many cases the cities refunded their obligations, effected retrenchments, reorganized their tax systems, and eventually paid their bonds.

Tax delinquencies, unbalanced budgets, real estate speculation, changes in the tax base, and poor administration are the principal reasons assigned for municipal defaults. In the great majority of municipalities the authorities are conscientiously and ably struggling with a problem of staggering difficulty, striving in every way to escape the stigma of default. In their case, as in all others affecting American conditions, it is hoped that national recovery will relieve the tension and enable the municipalities to reorganize their finances and finally pay off their debts.

Radio and Musicians.

The American Society of Composers comes to the support of the musical genius with a demand that something be done to secure for him remuneration which will compensate for the exercise of his talents. In a symposium issued by the society entitled "The Murder of Music," it is contended that, though several hundred broadcasting stations provide millions of listeners with both good and poor music, yet both music and musicians are in distress.

The composers find that the radio audience, which grew from 16,000,000 in 1925 to 60,000,000 in 1932, withdrew valuable patronage from piano, phonograph and other musical instrument manufacturers, causing severe reverses to many firms. Sound motion pictures ended employment for thousands of musicians and many concert artists lost their means of livelihood, while composers and publishers of sheet music have suffered proportionately. Simultaneously, it is claimed, the business of the radio has been expanding, its sales increasing from $165,000,000 in 1925 to the peak of $562,000,000 in 1929.

The pamphlet quotes publications of the Department of Commerce, the Committee on Social Trends, the National Broadcasting Company and other authoritative sources, to show that "music and its creators are being starved." The case of those connected with music, professionally and industrially, is not unlike the plight of carriage manufacturers and horse breeders when the automobile became popular. But the musicians hold that while a nation can exist without carriages, it can not do without music.

America certainly is not getting along without music. Many authorities believe a greater proportion of the population is enjoying more and better music than ever before through the instrumentality of radio. It would be unfortunate, nevertheless, were this medium to displace generally and permanently the pleasure of both amateur and professional performance. The problem of the unemployed musician and instrument manufacturer must be solved, as must the problem of all technologically unemployed.

"Brains Dying Out."

Is intelligence declining at a rate that endangers the safety of civilization? Dr. Hurst, of Cambridge University, has advised the British Association for the Advancement of Science that "brains are dying out." He points to the decreasing birthrate among the more intelligent families, and reaches the conclusion that unless encouragement can be given to more intelligent parents the general decline of intelligence will endanger civilization. He states as a fact that "the intelligence index of population is declining rapidly."

Dr. Hurst's alarm is as old as civilization. In one of the first books printed by Caxton, "The History of Chess," in 1474, the author lamented the vices of his age and contrasted them with the virtues of former ages, winding up by predicting the collapse of civilization unless the more intelligent could be induced to propagate their counterparts.

Much theory and little fact underlies Dr. Hurst's position. For example, he assumes that intelligent parents produce equally intelligent children, and that illiterate or stupid parents produce unintelligent children. What about Abraham Lincoln? What about thousands of other great spirits who sprang from unlovely and unpromising soil? The cases of transmitted superiority may almost be counted upon ten fingers, while the disappointing careers of the sons of famous parents are a byword.

Again, it may be asked, what is Dr. Hurst's index of intelligence? What is the test, and to what portion of mankind is it applied? An index that would be deemed infallible by one scientific investigator might be rejected by another equally intelligent.

Nothing is more common than the opinion that present tendencies are bad as compared with those of former eras. Men point to the Italian Renaissance or the Periclean age of Greece as the culminating point of human intelligence and genius. But there is no evidence to prove that human nature has changed since history began. The phenomenon of genius bursts forth when and where it pleases, in any age and in any country.

The Confusing Price Index.

From the Kansas City Star.

A world-wide improvement in business and rise in prices have been under way in the last few months, along with the gains that have been made in the United States. This fact is one of the reasons for hoping that the recovery in this country under the operations of the NRA will continue. In fact the rise in average prices has been greater abroad than in this country. A comparison of wholesale price indices, converted into the equivalent of the United State dollar and published by the Department of Commerce, shows that the wholesale price index of the United States in July this year was 4.5 points higher than in July last year. This compares with advances of 9 points in Argentina, 12 in Belgium, 11 in France, 26 in Germany, 12 in Poland, 18 in the United Kingdom, 8 in Canada.

The smaller general rise in this country than abroad is particularly surprising in view of the depreciation of the United States dollar, which, of itself, according to the theories of the inflationists, should have produced a rise of about 30 per cent in United States prices.

Despite the depreciation of the dollar, there are numerous commodities that are actually lower than they were a year ago when the country was still doing business with a gold dollar. Among these are: Livestock, meats, miscellaneous leather products, coal, gas, electricity, petroleum, motor cars and a group of miscellaneous products.

In view of the larger price advances abroad than in this country, it would seem that ample reason exists for expecting additional improvement in the United States under the impetus of the broad public support of the administration's aggressive recovery plans.

But the experiences of the last year raise doubts as to the efficacy of inflation as an aid to recovery and they also indicate the difficulties involved in the proposal to adopt a "stabilized dollar" based on the average of prices of commodities.

Influences that affect prices are so diverse and so complicated that any attempt to make a dollar represent an average of commodity prices would only increase the confusing relationships of values of tangible and intangible properties.

And the Ship Sailed On.

Letters to the Editor.

Reader Suggests That Poison May Cause Sleeping Sickness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Nearly every day one may read of the ceaseless search by the health authorities for the germ or virus believed by them to cause sleeping sickness, but so far their pursuit of the elusive microbe has proven futile, and probably will continue so as long as they stick to the overworked germ theory. Many of the medical men incline to the opinion that mosquitoes carry the disease, but this does not explain how previous outbreaks of the malady have occurred in winter.

Most of our medical men overlook the fact that all diseases are not caused by organisms; in fact, many ailments are caused by the action of inorganic chemicals.

Science has recently discovered that the rare element selenium, which occurs in certain soils of the West (and possibly near St. Louis), can be absorbed from the soil by wheat in quantities too small to kill the plant. When such wheat is eaten by animals, they sicken, waste away and die. The chemical is not believed to be fatal to humans, but until this is positively proved, the layman will do well to assume that it is.

Furthermore, it is now beginning to be believed that poisons used by farmers for spraying their crops to kill insects can be absorbed by the soil and taken up by the plants, and in such manner animals and human beings may mysteriously fall ill from the effects of some unsuspected and obscure poison.

The fact that the present epidemic of sleeping sickness is in the West, and a previous outbreak occurred in Spokane, Wash., a wheat center, is very suggestive to any one who gives the matter a little thoughtful consideration.

Lead in New Gasoline Said to Eat Metal in Motor Cars—Not Suitable for Lamps or Cleaning Fluid.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Can any reason be given for the gas and oil companies combining to supply gas with a certain amount of lead in it? This has recently been put over on motorists in at least this section of the country.

I have heard of a quite general agreement that, whereas the doped gas does give more power to the engine and greater freedom from carbon, it soon eats into and destroys the metal parts. Are autos too long-lived with the straight gas, and does the new code call for a more rapid replacement of the old cars?

Then, too, the doped gas can not be used for gasoline stoves or lamps, which are very common in country parts, nor for general cleaning purposes, either in the house or in the garage. It is poison stuff and can not be handled. H. J. P.

Pipe Smoker Says American Matches Are Inferior to Foreign Makes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Amid all the furor of enthusiasm for American products, the NRA and other combinations of the alphabet, I ask your consideration of the American match—cleverly constructed, like the Connecticut nutmeg, so that it will go out quickly upon striking and thereby increase the consumption of matches.

On behalf of the multitude of pipe smokers, who add so materially to the business of the match companies, I should like to enlist your aid in improving the quality of the American matches until they at least approximate the burning qualities of Swedish or even Japanese matches.

It is a sad commentary on American industry that their matches do not compare with the foreign product. C. R. THOMAS.

It Isn't a Sin to Loaf If the Alternative Is Making Mud Pies.

By Robert Quillen.

IDEAS outlive the conditions that justified them.

When life was primitive and machines were few and crude, industry was the greatest of virtues.

Every good man toiled from sun to sun because such toil was necessary to shield the community from enemies and hunger and cold.

The utmost that all could do was scarcely sufficient to plow enough ground, harvest enough wheat, catch enough fish or cut enough wood.

The idler was a traitor and a burden and deserved the condemnation of his neighbors.

It was necessity that made work a virtue. If people had been able to live without work, any kind of toil would have seemed silly. If wheat had grown wild in great abundance, would men have praised one of their number who labored in the hot sun to plow a field and plant some more?

Since necessity alone made work a virtue, it ceases to be a virtue the moment it is no longer necessary.

That is a truth the world has yet to learn. It still thinks man should earn his bread in the sweat of his brow. It still hopes to provide enough work to keep every man busy six days a week. At this moment the leaders of our country see no way to solve our problems except to provide more work.

But they are thinking in terms of another day. They haven't yet learned that the old scheme of things is ended. Machinery has made the old system as obsolete as the wooden plow.

The sooner we face the facts, the sooner we shall achieve the longed-for "recovery."

When one machine does the work of a thousand men, it must feed the men while they loaf. That is the whole story in few words.

If machinery has made ten million men idle, then the millions who still have jobs must work fewer hours and thus share their jobs with the ten million. There is no other solution.

If a mechanized civilization can provide only enough work to keep all men busy three hours a day, then three hours must become a day's work.

Loafing the other 21 hours won't be disgraceful. It is ignoble to loaf if your service is needed, but surely leisure is no less dignified than the business of sweating eights hours a day to produce more useless trinkets.

Comment of the Press

Flood Control Work.

Houston Post.

In construction of flood control projects the primary purpose is not to provide employment but to safeguard lives and property.

In allotting $40,000,000 for flood control work on the lower Mississippi River, the Public Works Administration is, happily, making jobs for about 34,000 men for a year, but what is even more important, it is creating protection from destructive flood waters for a large area inhabited by hundreds of thousands of people.

It is a good investment the Government is making along the lower Mississippi. One flood, such as that which occurred in 1927, wreaks damage to the extent of more than the entire sum that has just been allotted for flood control projects. Permanent protection from overflows will in time save hundreds of millions of dolars to the inhabitants of the lower valley.

Forgotten Women.

San Francisco Chronicle.

Homemakers are beginning to think that they are the "forgotten women." While industry and the Government are compiling codes to cut down the working hours of industrial employes no champion arises to reduce the long-drawn-out working day of the average housewife. The 40-hour week adopted by the cotton textile industry was attacked in some quarters as too long, but studies conducted by the Bureau of Home Economics show that for home workers the weekly work period ranges from about 52 hours to more than 61 hours.

Delinquents Lose Money.

Sleepy Eye (Minn.) Herald-Dispatch.

No taxpayer ever saves by not paying taxes when due. In the long run, delinquent taxes will mean higher taxes. The tax dollar that is not paid has a substitute in the public dollar that is borrowed, and this dollar draws a good rate of interest which in turn, the taxpayer must also pay.

With all good wishes in the world for Professor Moley's new editorial venture, we cannot refrain from wondering about the possibilities of success. It is a highly specialized job to conduct a successful publication of any kind. The same sort of flair and experience are required of an editor that are required in any other technical undertaking.

Paroled Criminals.

Minneapolis Journal.

Parole figures in the record of criminal after criminal captured or sought for new violations of the law. In most of the gangster roundups, in all recent kidnaping arrests and pursuits, some of the criminals named have records of imprisonment and parole.

Crime suppression and prevention is engaging attention over the country. Parole conditions deserve as intensive study as crime causes, if society is to be freed from the menace of further depredations.

The Late Dutch Minister.

Brooklyn Eagle.

The death of the Dutch Minister to the United States, Dr. J. H. van Royen, removes from our national scene a diplomatist who was one of the outstanding, if one of the least spectacular, personalities in Washington. His countenance might have furnished a subject for Rembrandt, his methods were characteristic of Dutch reserve and balance, his contacts were never effusive, but founded on a sincere faith in the good intentions of his fellow men.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

DUMM AND DUMMER ON CUBA.

"What do you think of Cuba?" asked Representative Dummer.

"Without Teddy, a beef scandal and the boys singing 'Good-by Darling, I Must Leave You,' it don't seem convincing," replied Senator Dumm sadly. "And I miss the pictures of fat American generals sitting under coconut trees and being interviewed by Richard Harding Davis."

"What's it all about anyhow?" asked Dummer.

"This time, as near as I can make out," replied the senator, "it's a case of Uncle Sam freeing Cuba from the United States and turning it over to some country like America."

"The papers are full of pictures of Marines kissing sweethearts good-by at the railroad stations as they start for Havana," said Dummer.

"Yes, but the attempt to revive the glamour of 1898 is artificial," declared Senator Dumm. "You can tell that the boys are only going to a vacation resort and that the girls are only worried for fear they will lose money at the Casino."

* * * *

"We have sent more warships to Cuba than we did during the Spanish-American War," said Dummer.

"I expect to hear that Richmond Pearson Hobson has performed some heroic exploit any moment," mused the senator.

"It don't seem like a real Cuban-American crisis without Hobson," admitted Dummer.

"We haven't the material we used to have for trouble in Cuba," said the senator. "And another trouble is that we, as a people, don't come to a boil the way we used to. In 1898 we threw out hats into the air every time a cavalry horse was saddled and yelled ourselves hoarse at the news that another cowboy had enlisted."

"What was the issue then?" asked Dummer. "I forget."

"The Cubans claimed they were not getting a square deal under Spain so we stepped in and gave them mismanagement under new auspices," explained the senator.

"We struck off the old shackles of Spanish militarism," put in Dummer.

"And substituted the diamond bracelets of American big business," said the senator. "We threw out a gouty Spaniard and put in a sugar daddy. We gave Cuba paved streets, higher gas bills, rotary club luncheons, exorbitant electricity rates, night clubs, jazz orchestras, wrong telephone numbers and all the other benefits of a civilized people."

"Including traffic lights, crooners and stock split-ups," added Dummer.

"Exactly," said the senator. "It was the American attitude that no menace to happiness and contentment was too good for her. We were princes of generosity. We ever introduced the stuffed ballot box, the corrupt caucus and the crooked election."

"But Cuba was happy, wasn't she?" asked Dummer.

"Sure she was happy. As long as prosperity lasted. But when hard times swept the world and all the nations began shouting for new deals the Cubans figured they might as well join the big parade."

"What will be the outcome?" asked Dummer. "Will America intervene?"

"I think she'll have to," concluded the senator. "After all we can't let all the vacation business go to Bermuda and the Bahamas."

Repeal is now certain. Well, it is going to be a hard job to teach Americans how to drink out of a glass again.

Gen. Johnson's troubles with the cloak and suit industry are trivial compared to what he is having with the coke and soot industry.

The headlines about Cuba are so familiar that it is difficult to keep from shouting, "Remember the Maine" and asking somebody to start, "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

The South Pole has signed the code and will get its Byrd.

AN OLD MAID SKIPPER.

The French ministry of merchant marine has granted a substantial pension to a woman of 70 who has spent the greater part of her life as a sailor. Mlle. Tual was known among the fishermen off the coast of Brittany as "the sailor girl," and gave them an example by her extraordinary energy and courage.

At the age of 12, she started accompanying her father on fishing expeditions off the stormy Island of Ushant, to the west of Brest. When her father died in 1906 she continued to go out with the fishing fleet, but her name was not officially inscribed on the list of the ministry of merchant marine, owing to her sex. After working for many years as a "hand" she obtained a vessel of her own and captained it most effectively.

Only five years ago, when she was 65, the "sailor girl" was still at the helm of her ship.

Just Folks.

Education.

I think that I would rather teach a child
The joys of kindness than long hours to spend
Pouring o'er multiple and dividend;
How differing natures may be reconciled
Rather than just how cost accounts are filed;
How to live bravely to its end
Rather than how one fortress to defend

Or how gold coins once gathered can be piled.
There is an education of the mind
Which all require and parents early start,
But there is training of a nobler kind
And that's the education of the heart.
Lessons that are most difficult to give
Are faith and courage and the way to live.

Grace Murder Cause 'Trivial,' Nurse States

"No Romance Involved," She Tells Prosecutor; Hearing Set.

Santa Cruz, Calif., Sept. 11 (AP). Police Judge Milton J. Coghlan today set Thursday for the preliminary hearing of Miss Frida W. A. Weltz, nurse accused of slaying Francis Joseph Morgan Grace, sr., capitalist, on the lawn of his home Saturday evening.

A coroner's jury brought in a verdict that Grace met his death "as the result of gunshot wounds in the chest."

During the inquest Miss Weltz sat with her head in her hands. She refused to reveal the motive for the shooting. District Attorney Frank Murphy said she had admitted planning to kill Grace since she was discharged as his nurse 18 months ago.

She told Murphy there was "no romance involved," and added, "the real reason would probably seem trivial to you."

Gas Blasts Kill Seven in Mine

300 Other Workers Are Saved by Rushing to Surface.

New Kensington, Pa., Sept. 10 (AP). Seven miners were killed and one was injured by explosions in the Barking Mine of the Hillman Coal & Coke Co. today.

Warned by the blasts, which occurred 3 miles from the mouth of the mine and 80 feet underground, 300 other miners rushed to the surface.

Coroner W. J. McGregor said tonight the two explosions, 20 minutes apart, were due to gas.

The men, five of whom were married, were carried to the surface by fellow miners.

Barron Collier Gets More Time on Debts

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 11 (AP).—A 30-day extension in time for confirmation of a plan for settlement of debts was granted to Barron G. Collier, millionaire advertising man, here today in Federal Court.

The petition for the postponement stated that since July 31, when the hearing was postponed to September 15, Collier and his counsel have been in continual negotiation with the creditors.

Former Convicts Must Register in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Sept. 11 (AP).—The Los Angeles City Council moved today to require the registration of all former convicts.

"This is the final step in our plan to squelch gangsterism," said District Attorney Buron Fitts.

The grand jury recommended the action at a meeting attended by Mayor Frank L. Shaw, city councilmen, county commissioners and law and enforcement officers.

U. S. Border Plan Goes To Senate in Mexico

Mexico City, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The protocol for rectification of the United States-Mexican border along the Rio Grande River near El Paso, Texas, today was sent to the Mexican Senate for ratification.

The preliminary agreement was signed six months ago by J. Reuben Clark, then United States Ambassador to Mexico, and the Mexican Foreign Minister.

Peru Peace Monument Proposed in Chile

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 11 (U.P.). President Arturo Alessandri today took under consideration a proposal by the Catholic Youth Congress that a monument of Christ be erected atop lofty Morro Hill at Arica to commemorate peace between Peru and Chile.

4 Drown as Car Falls Into Sacramento River

Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 11 (AP).—Two women, a man and a child drowned last night when an automobile left the levee and hurtled into Sacramento River.

They were Mrs. Norman B. Arnold, and daughter, 13, and Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Henry, all of Sacramento.

Alton Shumate Named Sergeant at Fairfax

Alton Shumate was appointed town sergeant of Fairfax last night at a meeting of the Town Council.

In a budget adopted for the coming year the tax rate for general town expenses was fixed at $1 on the $100 assessed valuation. The tax for fire protection was fixed at 10 cents on the $100 and for school improvements 35 cents on the $100.

Thomas Will Speak At Post Installation

Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma will address Victory Post, No. 4, American Legion, tonight at ceremonies installing officers of the post in Odd Fellows Hall, 419 Seventh street northwest.

Oscar G. Jones is the new commander. James A. Van Zandt, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, also will speak.

George C. Ward Dies; Was Noted as Engineer

Los Angeles, Sept. 11 (AP).—George C. Ward, 70, president of the Southern California Edison Co., and one of the foremost electrical engineers in the country, died today in a hospital from a heart ailment.

Radio Waves and Ripples

Mary Howard (top) is the young lady heard in the Octavus Roy Cohen murder mysteries three times a week over an N.B.C. network. A cold gave Betty Winkler (bottom) her big chance in radio. The auditioners like the nasal twang in her voice. On the right is Joseph Greenwald (left) and Lou Welch, who do three-a-week for N.B.C. as Potash and Perlmutter. Welch was Perlmutter on the stage for years. Greenwald played "Abie's Irish Rose" in New York and London.

IRVING CHANDLER, Clarendon, Va., is WMAL's latest find.

"He is a tenor without a falsetto note in his throat," said Arthur Godfrey, Breakfast Club man, and that is saying something these days when every third singer is a crooner.

Chandler is 20. WMAL already has picked him as one of its current audition contest winners.

The studios like tonight:

Mills Brothers, the Boswell Sisters and the "Mystery Girl" from Virginia, 6:30, 7 and 10:30, WJSV; Blackstone Plantation and the Fire Chief, 7 and 8:30, WRC; Gen. Johnson, Grover Whalen, Yasha Bunchuk and Maj. Bowes in NRA, 7:45, WMAL.

~~~

The first 300 persons writing for tickets will be given reserved seats to see Phil Spitalny do the Goldenrod Beer broadcast from the Willard at 7:30, Friday.

It is a contest idea quickly conceived in WJSV yesterday. Its purpose is to permit radio listeners to view what the studio people see every day.

Letters should be addressed to Spitalny, care of the station.

~~~

The studio people like Mrs. Roosevelt. There's nothing fussy about her. Twice she has declined the usual White House hook-up and has come in person to N. B. C., once without police or Secret Service escort. At her last appearance she came early and chatted amiably with employes. She went over the air without the aid of manuscript or notes. The studio people were uneasy. But there were no slips and everyone was impressed. Not one in five can do that.

~~~

Phyllis Elaine Sorkin, who began life last Sunday at 4:17 a. m., is the newest member of WMAL'S Breakfast Club. She's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Leonard (R. K. O.) Sorkin. Clubman Arthur Godfrey thought of having her recite the Gettysburg Address backwards as a part of her initiation ceremony this morning.

~~~

WJSV is auditioning a new program for a well-known coffee company. Heard yesterday were Rudy Schramm, the Three Maids. Bob Trout will handle it. A theme song, used last season when the program was being put on the air by one of the NBC stations, is to be retained.

Ripples.

The Marine Band still plays "Let's All Sing Like the Birdies Sing," though everyone else has given it up . . . Conductor Taylor Branson continues to average 2,000 fan letters a month, however . . . "If Jimmy Durante," writes a Broadway press agent, "hadn't been born with a quaint singing voice and an idiotic sense of humor, he would be a photo-engraver or a policeman . . ." or making horse collars, no doubt . . . another publicity writer blurbs: "Deems Taylor is a contributor of several articles in the latest edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica" . . . was "Peter Ibbetson" so bad? . . . A New York company will run down new songs for program directors . . . which should save them the wear and tear of finding old ones on their own . . . "Grand Hotel" is to be the title of a radio play series . . . but they'll be nothing like the Vicki Baum novel and play . . . will Al Jolson get on his knees to dramatize the Life of Stephen Foster for Paul Whiteman Thursday?

Lamson Loses Major Point In Death Trial

Court Bars Testimony by Noted Criminologist on Blood Found.

San Jose, Calif., Sept. 11 (AP).—The defense lost a major skirmish today in the murder trial of David A. Lamson when the court virtually barred all projected testimony by Dr. E. O. Heinrich, noted blood criminologist, as to his interpretation of blood spots in the bathroom where the accused man's wife, Allene, died.

Photographs taken by Heinrich about two weeks after the May 30 tragedy in the Lamsons' Stanford University campus cottage were submitted by the defense with the idea of contradicting prosecution testimony and to advance the suggestion that Mrs. Lamson may have met death from an accidental fall, rather than from an iron pipe wielded by her husband as the State charges.

Defense Attorneys E. M. Rea and Maurice Rankin fought hard to override the prosecution objections, but Judge R. R. Syer ruled out the photographs.

Convicts Elude 300 Possemen

None of Group Which Shot Way Out of Louisiana Penal Farm Caught.

Angola, La., Sept. 11 (AP).—Eleven convicts who shot their way out of the State penal farm here Sunday, had eluded 300 possemen and 30 bloodhounds tonight and were believed scattered over Louisiana and Mississippi.

The convicts, armed with weapons seized from the prison armory, were described as desperate characters. If caught they will be charged with slaying two guards and wounding several persons in their break.

While the convicts were fleeing through canebraks and swamps, the wife of one of them was arrested in New Orleans on suspicion of having smuggled the weapons the convicts used in making the first break.

The prisoner, Marion Russell, 21-year-old wife of James Russell, admitted having visited her husband at the prison two weks ago, but denied she carried any weapons to him.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ruprecht, of Upper Montclair, N. J., and their daughter, Miss Doris Ruprecht, are at Wardman Park Hotel for several days.

Mrs. Baldwin D. Spilman, of Warrenton, Va., is a guest at the Association of Junior League headquarters in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

Underwood & Underwood.

Among the popular members of the service group are Miss Mary Elizabeth Damon (left), Mrs. William Barksdale (center) and Mrs. Forrest Sherman (right). Miss Damon, subdebutante daughter of Mrs. William Mull, wife of Commander Mull, U. S. N., is an attractive addition to the Navy juniors. Mrs. Barksdale, wife of Lieut. Barksdale, is a member of the charming group at Fort Myer. Mrs. Sherman and Lieut. Comdr. Sherman are at Alban Towers. She is one of the new hostesses of the Navy group.

Detroit Girl, Capital Man Are Married

Miss Mary Jane Doyle Is Bride of R. L. Underwood; Will Live Here.

A marriage of much interest to Washington was that of Miss Mary Jane Doyle, daughter of Mr. Thomas J. Doyle and Mrs. Marie R. Doyle, of Detroit, and Mr. Richard Laskey Underwood, son of Mrs. Margaret Laskey Underwood and the late Mr. Lineas D. Underwood, of Washington.

The ceremony, which took place Saturday, September 9, at high noon in the rectory of St. Paul's Catholic Church at Grosse Pointe Farms, was charming in its simplicity. The Rev. Father John F. Dowdle officiated in the presence of the members of the two families and a few intimate friends.

The bride's gown was of ivory satin made on princess lines, without ornament, and having a slight train. Her long tulle veil was held by a wreath of tiny orange blossoms and she carried a small bouquet of gardenias.

Miss Helene Nichols, of Detroit, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a flowered chiffon frock in blue and apricot colors on a white ground. Her large organdie hat had a narrow band of blue velvet, and she carried an arm bouquet of blue delphinium and bebe chrysanthemums in apricot shades.

Mr. Frederick R. Leisen, of Detroit, was Mr. Underwood's best man.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony, served on the terrace of the home of the bride's father, on Kenwood road, Grosse Points Farms, after which Mr. and Mrs. Underwood left by motor for New York to sail for Bermuda. They will be at home after October 15, at 4707 Connecticut avenue.

The bride, who is a member of an old Detroit family, attended Miss Porter's School, at Farmington, Conn., and made her debut several seasons ago at a ball at the Detroit Country Club. She is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Underwood is a graduate of Phillips Exeter Academy, at Exeter, N. H., and attended the Engineering School of the University of Michigan. He received his LL.B. degree at George Washington University and is engaged in the practice of patent law. He is a grandson of the late Mr. Richard H. Laskey, for many years one of Washington's most distinguished lawyers, and is a descendant of William Wirt, Attorney General throughout the administrations of Presidents Monroe and John Quincy Adams.

Maj. and Mrs. Fortescue Return to Long Island.

Maj. and Mrs. Granville Fortescue and their daughters, Miss Rion Fortescue and Miss Helene Fortescue, have gone to their home, Wildhome, in Sayville, Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt Wells and their daughter, Miss Mary Wells, are spending some time at the Hotel Warwick, Philadelphia.

Mr. Rufus Putnam 3d has returned from New York, where he was a guest of Mr. William Sauers in his penthouse apartment on West Eighty-second street.

Mrs. Cecile M. Gregg, of Whittier, Calif., is passing some time at the Carlton, accompanied by Mrs. H. C. Holdsworth, also of Whittier.

Prof. and Mrs. Earl Dean Howard, of Evanston, Ill., are living at the Wardman Park Hotel. Prof. Howard is assistant to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator.

Miss Hilda C. Foster, of Charles River, Mass., has been the guest for a few days of her sister, Miss Susan Foster, at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton van Valkenburg have given up their residence in Washington and are at the Hotel Dennis, Atlantic City, for an indefinite time.

Culpeper Wedding Of Interest in City

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 11 (Spl.).—A quiet marriage, one of special interest in Virginia and Washington, was solemnized last evening when Miss Mary Katherine Thompson became the bride of Guy H. Smith, of Washington. Dr. Kensey Johns Hammond, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, officiated in the presence of a group of near relatives in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. William Yancey.

There were no attendants. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Gregg A. Thompson, of Culpeper. She is the daughter of Sayre Thompson, of Lakeland, Fla., and the late Mrs. Kate Newhouse Thompson, of Culpeper.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Washington.

Vice Consul Takes Bride To New Post

Miss Katherine Hill Wedded to Mr. Reginal Brogonier, Jr.; Go to China.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Hill have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Katherine Starbuck Hill, to Mr. Reginald Bragonier, jr., of Baltimore, Md. The marriage took place on September 8, in New York.

Mr. Bragonier is a member of the Foreign Service and will sail shortly with his bride for Canton, China, where he will assume his duties as vice consul.

Mrs. Bragonier is a graduate of Stagathas School, in Philadelphia, and of Smith College. Her parents now divide their time between Bermuda, where they spend the winters, and Nantucket Island, where they have a summer home.

Mr. Bragonier attended the Gilmartin Country School in Baltimore, and is a graduate of Yale University. He is a member of the Yale Clubs of New York and Baltimore, and of the Maryland Country Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Ogg Return to Wisconsin.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Ogg returned yesterday to Madison, Wis., after a visit of several weeks in Washington. Dr. Ogg is a writer of note and has a chair of political science at the University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. Ogg entertained a group of women at luncheon on Saturday at Normandy Farms in farewell to her many friends.

Dinner Given For Diplomat

Mr. Macauley of Irish Free State Honored.

Hot Springs, Va., Sept. 11 (Spl.). The diplomatic colony still continues to be well represented at the Homestead and many brilliant parties were given in the colonial dining room last evening in honor of Mr. William J. B. Macauley, Charge d'Affaires of the Irish Free State, who is here for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ingalls, jr., of Cleveland, entertained at dinner, their guests being Miss Evalin Brodie, Miss Elsie Warrington, Mr. Dan Ingalls, Mr. John Warrington and Mr. Sam Higginbotham. Mr. H. Fry Drayton, of Penllyn, Pa., entertained the Rev. Ambrose and Mrs. Beavin. Mr. and Mrs. John E. McKelvey's guests included Mrs. George A. Kelly, Miss Frances Miller and Mr. William Fanshawe, while other hosts included Mrs. R. S. Reynolds Hitt, Mrs. Calderon Carlisle, Miss Gertrude Myer and Mrs. C. W. Waterman. An informal golf tournament was a feature of the colony today, and the diplomatic visitors from Washington all participated.

Victory Ball Will Be Held November 10

Proceeds From Annual Affair in New York Will Go to Needy Veterans.

The annual Victory Ball will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, this winter on November 10, under the auspices of the American Legion Welfare Committee of New York County, and the entire proceeds will be donated for the benefit of welfare and employment relief for needy veterans and their families.

Many Washingtonians annually attend this brilliant ball and several members of official and diplomatic society will serve as honorary patrons, including President Roosevelt, the Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Ronald Lindsay; the Ambassador of Belgium, M. Paul May; the Ambassador of Italy, Signor Augusto Rosso, and the Ambassador of France, M. Andre de Laboulaye.

An unusual program of entertainment is being planned by Kenneth M. Murchison. The ball will be opened with the massing of the colors, in which members of the military units of New York will take part. Following this ceremony, there will be a colorful presentation, "Armistic Day in Paris."

Miss Carrie Hart has returned to Washington and is at Wardman Park Hotel for the season.

Mrs. O. D. Bayard, Mr. Norman Underwood and Miss Anne Underwood were dinner guests last evening at the Little Tea House.

Mint May Be Used In Variety of Ways

There are other ways to use mint than in a julep. It is delicious as a substitute for parsley on potatoes. Mix the chopped mint with melted butter, and a dash of lemon and use as a sauce to pour over potato balls.

A jar of mint syrup will add variety to your fruit cocktails and punches. Wash a good-sized bunch of mint—enough to give two cups of leaves. Strip the leaves and chop fine. Mix ½ cup water and ½ cup sugar and boil 5 minutes. Remove from fire, add chopped mint and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Mash mint against sides of the pan with a spoon, to extract as much flavor as possible. Cool, add a little green coloring if you wish, and strain through a cheese cloth. Keep in the ice box in a covered jar. Chilled pineapple juice with a little mint syrup added makes a delicious cocktail for the first course at dinner.

Manboucher Makes Suit for Film Star

Because tailored suits are the favorite costume of Katherine Hepburn, film star, one in heavy light gray flannel has been especially designed for her by Manboucher, famous French dressmaker. The jacket has a narrow collar and tight sleeves, with a novel lin-button fastening arrangement. The long-sleeved blouse is of dark blue rough wool with blister bubbles woven into the material.

Iron "Fussy" Parts Of Garment Last

When ironing dresses with fussy frills, it is best to iron the thinnest parts of the garment first, then the parts less liable to muss while the ironing is being finished, and the fussy parts last. If any section becomes too dry to iron well, sponge them slightly as you come to them.

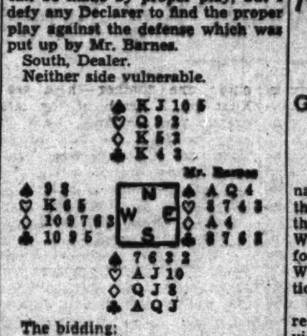
Something New in Defense.

I have frequently said in these columns that defensive play is the hardest part of Contract Bridge. Even in these days of advanced Contract all possible defensive variations have not been figured out and very often some expert player produces a type of play which is entirely new.

On the hand below Mr. Mitchell Barnes, of New York City, defeated the contract by one of the most brilliant pieces of analytical reading that I have ever seen. The defense is not foolproof as the hand actually can be made by proper play, but I defy any Declarer to find the proper play against the defense which was put up by Mr. Barnes.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	North
3NT	Pass

The bidding was fantastic to say the least. South's one-spade bid is almost incomprehensible and the only explanation I can think of is that North and South were playing a system according to which they could not bid notrump without a tremendously powerful hand. North's bidding was quite normal and the chances are that almost any team would have reached the same contract.

The play that developed was extremely interesting. West opened his fourth-best diamond and Mr. Barnes, sitting East, played the 4-spot on Dummy's deuce. This was the beginning of a spectacular campaign. Declarer won the trick with the 8-spot and led a low spade, playing the Ten from Dummy. Mr. Barnes again ducked. This was an exceedingly fine play. Mr. Barnes knew that the Declarer would not dare lead diamonds from the Dummy, as for all he knew the hand with the five diamonds also held the Ace of spades. He certainly would not lead spades, as this would seem to sacrifice a trick. Therefore the next lead was bound to be either hearts or clubs. Whichever it was, Mr. Barnes held four cards in that suit and three reentries with which he was certain that his "thirteener" could be established.

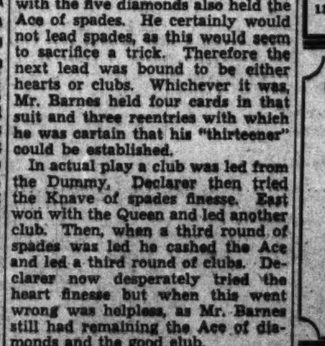
In actual play a club was led from the Dummy. Declarer then tried the Knave of spades finesse. East won with the Queen and led another club. Then, when a third round of spades was led he cashed the Ace and led a third round of clubs. Declarer now desperately tried the heart finesse but when this went wrong was helpless, as Mr. Barnes still had remaining the Ace of diamonds and the good club.

It will be noted that if the Declarer decided to take the heart finesse immediately, Mr. Barnes would play the 8 and West would lead the suit right back upon winning with the King. This is the only way in which the contract can surely be defeated and is deserving of the highest credit possible.

Tomorrow's Hand.

What should be the final contract on the hand below?

East, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

"Angel Skin" Satin Worn for Evening

Ultra chic is an evening gown of nude-colored "angel skin" satin, featuring molded lines and an interesting inverted pleat in the front of the skirt. The shoulders and neckline are outlined with heavy braid of angel skin satin, calling attention to the very high front and decollete back. The girdle is distinguished with a cluster of brown cire satin and crepe flowers. The wrap of all-over beaded chiffon is trimmed in sable, and brown satin evening sandals complete the costume.

Mrs. Worrell At Convention

G. A. R. Ladies' Vice President Goes to St. Paul.

Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, national junior vice president of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, and past president of William H. Beck Circle, has left for St. Paul as the delegate from Washington to the national convention, September 17 to 25.

On her return trip, Mrs. Worrell will stop in Dubuque, Iowa, to visit Mrs. Lillian Clark Cary, editor of the Bugle Call, and in Chicago to visit Miss Abbie K. Kurtz and attend the Century of Progress Exposition.

Mrs. Worrell has just finished the NRA consumer's campaign as captain of the Columbia Heights Unit.

Silver Shines If Well Washed

Careful Cleaning in Soapy Water Eliminates Necessity of Vigorous Polishing.

The periodic "to-do" which most excellent housekeepers make over cleaning the family silver could largely be dispensed with if systematic everyday cleaning rules were followed.

Silver carefully washed in clear, soapy water, rinsed in very hot water and wiped dry, will always have a nice luster. Occasionally, it may be boiled in a bright aluminum pan, or in a pan containing several small pieces of zinc, or in a special silver pan, with salt and soda. These methods afford special cleanliness, but do not polish.

If silver must be polished, spread on paste, powder or special polishing soap with a soft cloth. Use a brush for engraved pieces. Rub discolorations vigorously. Wash carefully in hot, soapy water to which ammonia may be added. Scald and wipe dry. Polish with a soft flannel cloth.

Tinware for Cooking.

When "breaking in" tinware cooking utensils, be careful to grease them slightly and warm them slowly without burning and they will not rust so easily. Dry them thoroughly after each washing and do not try to keep them bright. The latter is an unnecessary waste of time and energy.

One Simple Item 'Makes' Dinner Party

Connecticut Avenue Store Suggests Little Bottles for Appetizers.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

In the spring a young man's fancy is likely enough to turn to thoughts of love, but in the fall you can wager it's parties he's going to be thinking of. And why not, indeed, with all the young buds waiting to blossom forth from their family trees in the gayest and most impressive manner possible?

If you're planning a dinner party, by all means garnish the affair with something out of the ordinary, something that will make it stand out in your guests' minds as one among many. And to do this it isn't necessary to consult a ways and means committee. Simply lend us your ears.

Friends, countrymen, and Washingtonians, you know about a certain gift shop on Connecticut avenue? Ask the proprietor to show you the little boxes of blown-glass bottles which have the place-card tabs tied around their necks. They're the things for your dinner party!

Fill them with something or other in the line of appropriate appetizers and as soon as your guests are seated propose a toast. If the contents are what they should be, don't worry about the success of your party.

Despite the usual September hot spells, which cause us to swelter in our new fall frocks, the frosty days will be upon us soon. If we're wise, as we women pretend to be, we won't be caught napping when it does come. We'll have our winter cover ready at hand. If there are purchases to be made in this line, now's the time. A downtown store has some soft, downy comforts that fairly make you sleepy to look at them. Take, for instance, those with heavy sateen covers, printed centers and plain borders. They're warm and light weight. You can buy these from $3.95 to $12.50. The cheaper ones are wool filled, the others, down.

Accessories in house furnishings are as important this year as accessories to milady's dress. With a little careful choosing, you can give your living room an entirely new atmosphere without changing anything except the small knick knacks. If you decide to do this, be sure to see the hand-hammered aluminum ware on display in a large Connecticut avenue store. There are numerous pieces you'll probably decide you can't do without. The individual ashtrays—among the handiest things you can have about a room—are examples of expert workmanship. It will only take a second, so call and ask where. Then drop by and see them.

With the hot weather, the vacations and numerous forms of amusement which have offered themselves this summer, it's no small wonder you have slacked your bridge game. However, winter will see you back in form again, with bridge engagements dotting your calendar. Why don't you take advantage of the bargain in cards which a downtown store is offering? For $1.25 you can buy four decks, green, blue, black and orange, treated with a silhouette design. Or, if you prefer, two decks with ship scenes. By way of suggestion, don't you think these last would make appropriate gifts to your Army cousins?

Before the time comes to go down and buy gifts, it's easy enough to see appropriate items and mentally tuck them away in your mind. But just let the day arrive when you must call up or go down to pick something out and you're at a loss. If you want something appropriate for your college friends, who will be leaving town soon, you shouldn't let this chance slip to purchase the metal bookends, padded and artistically covered, holding a package of square note paper. These are neatly wrapped in cellophane and come in red, green or brown. The price? Only 59 cents.

A lamp designer said to himself: "They say variety is the spice of life. Why not make it the selling point of lamps?"

Thereupon he set to work to create something out of the ordinary. The result of his efforts justifies itself. If you've never seen a wooden lamp with a pilot wheel on the side, and a parchment shade, you have something in store for you. You're guessing at the price? Missed! It sells for the princely sum of 98 cents.

You've bought jars for your pickles and preserves, but have you bought one for rose leaves? If not, see those of Chinese design, boasting all colors in the spectrum, on sale for 65 cents, 85 cents and $1, according to size.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of the Woman's Department of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Modern Woman Unabashed Seeker After Beauty—Not So, 30 Years Ago

Emile Beauvais, Washington Authority, Says Shorn Hair Responsible.

"Women Need No Salon Care Before 25 Nor After 60," He Asserts.

For every 10 women who let the hair dresser, masseuse or style consultant into their home by the tradesman's entrance 30 years ago, thousands of women today candidly go forth to the public beauty salon for advice and assistance, says Emile Beauvais, dean of Washington beauticians and president of the National Hair Dressers and Cosmetologists Association.

"Thirty years ago, for a woman of position to be seen coming from a 'hair dresser's shop,' yesterday's equivalent of today's 'beauty salon,' would really have amounted to a scene," punned the pleasant, square-shouldered, dynamic French authority on women's looks.

"It simply wasn't done."

How Times Change!

Change in women's style of hair dress, quite as much as the shift in social opinion on the fitness of women's appearance in public, is responsible for the difference, in Emile's opinion.

"In those days," he smiled, "women wore a great deal of artificial hair. Puff, curls, switches and so on. Naturally, they disliked the thought of undressing the head in public.

"As conservative women gradually yielded to the convenience of coming to the beauty salon, with its advantageous equipment, shops had to maintain the strictest privacy with regard to booths.

Privacy Nonessential Now.

"Nowadays, privacy is almost nonessential. The beauty salon has become, in some measure, a rendezvous for women, who visit with each other to while away the tedium of treatments of one sort or another."

The quick-speaking Frenchman has found, too, that whereas, a quarter of a century ago it generally was the woman of considerable wealth usually, "the society woman," so-called—who availed herself of professional advice and assistance in care of hair, skin, nails and figure, today she is in the minority. Business and professional women, college girls and shop girls, with their eyes on the rapidly-rising standard in women's looks, are alert to the necessity of gilding Nature's lily.

35 Starts Fading Period.

"Up to the age of 25, the average woman has what we might call, 'the beauty of the Devil'," laughed Emile, from his desk in his health-and-beauty salon, "Emile's," which occupies four floors at 1221 Connecticutt avenue.

"She doesn't have to do much about it. She simply enjoys its possession.

"And from 25 to 35, she has what might we call, sleeping beauty. Only in rare instances has the lyric youthful quality of her girlhood looks held over.

Underwood & Underwood.

EMILE BEAUVAIS.

"This is potentially woman's most attractive age. Her personality is enriched through knowledge and experience. But she may be termed a sleeping beauty, because she is not always awake to the need of physical beauty in throwing her personality into relief.

35 to 45 Danger Time.

"From 35 to 45 is the dangerous age for woman's beauty, unless she has forestalled her enemy, time, with intelligent attention to health and grooming.

"It is around the age of 40 that women patronize beauty salons in greatest number. She does so to hold her husband, perhaps, to keep pace with her friends, for her own inner satisfaction, sometimes because she finds herself with time on her hands after crowded years devoted to her growing family, or for making a place for herself in business.

"After the age of 60, women don't seem to care so much. What they seek of life from then on has little in common, perhaps, with what we call beauty."

Here his interviewer noted a mental objection. On entering the salon, one's eye had been caught by the picture of a bent old lady who had surely accomplished her three score and ten, entirely clad in expensive black—from imposing hat of Queen Mary type, with veil and neckband of velvet, down to smart and comfortable black ties—chatting animatedly with a manicurist who finished her pretty nails with a rosy pink.

Another Beside Her.

Next to her sat an erect, assured white-haired woman, in the smartest of white costumes, whose age could never be guessed at less than 60, likewise lending herself to the manicurist's art.

Life had evidently taught them something that had to do with physical grooming.

Emile has discovered that women in general are opposed to long hair, regardless of what the stylists may argue.

"Women today demand comfort before anything else," he affirmed. "They simply refuse to adapt themselves to uncomfortable fashions. And the hats of today are not constructed to accomodate a knot of hair. The modern restless demand for variety has something to do with it, too, I think. Women have found that clipped hair lends itself to a half dozen coiffures, as well as to the wearing of a wig, occasionally, a fad which has been accepted by the smartest women.

All Can Be Beautiful.

"Any woman can be beautiful in her own way," Emile believes. "And nearly every woman could look 100 per cent better than the Lord made her, if she'd only work with the material He gave her."

Emile was spokesman for the National Hairdresers and Cosmetologists Association recently, in a successful appeal to the NRA for the right to draft a code regulating the practice of beauty culture in the United States.

Ten days' hearing on the code will begin within a few days, after which Emile expects to get away for his annual trip abroad to discover and study new methods and styles in hair dress and beauty culture.

Aside from establishing maximum and minimum working hours and regulating hours, the code seeks to establish recognition of beauty salons and barbar shops as distinct industries. The Department of Commerce has hitherto listed them under one head.

What Today Means

"VIRGO."

If September 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 to 8:15 a. m., from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. and from 3:45 to 5 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 2:15 to 2:45 p. m. and from 6 to 6:40 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to make you act impulsively and with a total disregard of logic or reason; a misstep today will not be easily retracted. People generally will not mix well on this date and in their contacts with one another will appear shallow and unresponsive. The engagement between lovers consummated today will stand a good chance of being broken before reaching the altar.

The child born on this September 12 will be quite naive, and in all probability will cause much embarrassment to his parents by his frequent artless remarks. The child will probably look for a good deal of attention, particularly from his mother; take care not to do too much for him; he must gradually learn to stand on his own feet.

If September 12 is the date of your birth, you are perhaps a person who is not as open and frank as you might be; do not take this in the sense that you are inclined to be dishonest or underhanded, for that is not at all the case. You are simply tempted at times to withhold facts or to state them in such a way as to make them seem more advantageous to your cause than they really are. You are somewhat of a bluff. You like to appear really more important than you are. You allow yourself to be impressed by people and you like to impress others by telling them of the people of importance that you know and the things of interest and note that you do. You can never be counted on to do the set thing, and regardless of how outlandish may be a move of yours, you can to your own satisfaction justify it. Very often you put the cart before the horse, decide what you want to do in a certain case, then proceed to think up arguments and reasons to justify your action. People do a lot for you.

Born on September 12 you no doubt feel great responsibility to your mate and your children. You will not be hasty in entering into marriage; your wedded days should be happy ones and from your offspring you should derive great happiness and comfort. You will probably prosper in business and your career will be hectic, with possibly many reverses. Old age should see you comfortably fixed with little to worry about.

Successful people born on September 12:

Elia Parker Needham, inventor.

Richard J. Gatling, gun inventor.

Charles Dudley Warner, journalist and author.

William Sprague, manufacturer and governor of Rhode Island.

Charles W. Super, educator.

Oyster Fanciers Salute Season With Big Bowls

You've got to get going early in September, say the oyster enthusiasts, if you're going to have your fill before the "R" months have slipped past. Actress Dorothea Wieck would even get going early on a September morn. For she says she likes oysters so much she could eat them for breakfast.

The devotion of most folks will stop short of that. But it will lead them to thumb through favorite old recipes—to see how they can do best by oysters, in dozens of dishes. In oyster cocktails boasting that popular, bitey sauce . . . in big, crisp oyster fries with cabbage salad . . . in deep-dish oyster scallops . . . and especially in big bowls of oyster stew puddled with butter.

Oyster Stew.

For that good old stand-by oyster stew, here's how to proceed: Pick over 1 pint medium oysters (about 2 dozen) to make sure they aren't hiding bits of broken shell. Strain the juice for the same reason—there should be 2 cups of it. Then gently heat oysters, juice, and 3 tablespoons minced celery, till edges of oysters curl. Meanwhile melt 2 tablespoons butter in top of double boiler, blend in ½ tablespoon flour, slowly add 2 cups rich, hot milk, and stir till slightly thickened. Next add ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and the oyster mixture. Cover pan and let stand (not cook) a few minutes to blend flavors.

Pleasant variations in seasoning such a stew (according to your own taste) are: A dash of Worcestershire sauce added to oysters while cooking in juice; ½ teaspoon onion juice; a few grains of nutmeg. Use half cream and half milk if you'd like a richer stew.

De Luxe Fried Oysters.

Now for the kind of fried oysters that always make me think of old-fashioned church suppers when the best cooks in town got together to outdo one another—these are it: First get 2 dozen of the largest oysters you can find. Look them over carefully for bits of shell. Then dry them between towels, spread them out on a big platter and sprinkle them with 1 teaspoon salt, and ⅛ teaspoon pepper (mixed). Next, roll each oyster in flour (you'll need about 1 cup of it), taking care to shake off excess flour. Then beat up 2 eggs with a fork, and 2 tablespoons cold water. Dip each oyster first in this mixture, then in fine, dry bread crumbs (you'll need about 2 cups). Fry them in deep fat, hot enough to brown an inch-cube of bread in 60 seconds. Drain on unglazed paper. Serve piping-hot, with fresh-cut lemon. (Lemon is just about the best pal an oyster has!)

Doctor Finds Good and Bad Growth Time

Children Spurt in Some Years; Sun May Be Cause of It All.

(Associated Press.)

Little Johnnie may outgrow his last year's pants much faster in some years than in others, Government scientists have discovered, and the sun may be to blame.

There are good growing years and bad growing years for children, a study by the Public Health Service shows. In the good growing years, some mysterious influence sends all youngsters between the ages of 6 to 15 spurting upward in height and weight. In bad growing years they gain considerably less.

One cause of the good and bad growing years may be changes in the amount of energy from the sun that reaches the earth, says Dr. Carroll E. Palmer. Trees and plants seem to be affected, too.

Tree Rings Show Changes.

Climate changes from year to year in the ancient past can be traced accurately by the different thicknesses of the annual growth rings of trees that were growing at that time.

The sun may influence growth through the number of hours of sunlight reaching the earth, the number of hours of cloudiness, amount of rainfall and average humidity, Dr. Palmer suggests. All these things may operate to speed up or slow down children's growth.

The strange changes in growth rates were discovered by Dr. Palmer in a study of the weights of school children in Hagerstown, Md., over a period of seven years. All were white and native born, but came from all classes of well-to-do and poor families, indicating home environment had no effect on growth.

In 1922-23 They Grew.

The period from May, 1922, to May, 1923, was a good growing year, but the same period for 1924-25 was a bad growing year. Then came another good growing year between May, 1926, and May, 1927, especially for girls. During the 1922-23 period, the boys gained 5 per cent and the girls 8 per cent more than the average yearly gain for the entire seven-year period over which the study was made. But in the bad growing year, 1924-25, the boys gained 3 per cent and the girls 9 per cent less than their own average.

When the good growing year of 1926-27 rolled around, the boys made a spurt of 5 per cent and the girls 6 per cent more than their average. In these three years there was a growth variation of as much as 15 per cent. The effect of the poor growth year seemed to be more generally distributed among all the children. So far as is known, there were no depression conditions in Hagerstown during the poor growth year, 1924-25, which might account for the slowing up of growth.

"It is reasonable to believe a great number of correlated variables were associated with the observed variation," says Dr. Palmer in his report. "On the side of the physical or climatological characteristics of the different years, it is conceivable that the amount of solar energy, in terms of total hours of sunshine, hours of cloudiness, amount of rainfall, average humidity, and so on, is related to the growth differences.

"On the side of the socio-economic characteristics of the years of observation, it is reasonable to suppose that the amount of unemployment, per capita wages of the employed, &c., might be associated with the growth trends. From the point of view of hygiene and public health, it is of importance to consider mortality rates, incidence of epidemic diseases, fluctuations of endemic diseases, efficiency and effectiveness of school hygiene and similar variables."

The Family Marketer

Strawberry Apple and Crab Variety Lure Marketer; Prunes Are Cheap.

We weren't told what kind of apple tempted Eve, but we wouldn't wonder if it had been the luscious-looking strawberry apple. What housewife can pass them by as they lie in neat piles along the market aisles? Who can resist their tender, golden glow, their irregular, red streakings, as though nature had changed her mind after creating them gold, and hastily daubed each one with a bit of red?

They're excellent eating apples, appealing both to your sense of beauty and your less aesthetic palate. Those on the market now are worthy representatives from Washington State. They sell six for 25 cents.

Greenings Unexcelled.

Not half so attractive in appearance, but not to be excelled for pies, sauce and baking purposes, are the Northwest greenings. Their hardness and tartness make them general favorites for cooking. Give them a try in an old-fashioned apple Pupton.

Make pudding with apple pulp, bread crumbs, butter, eggs and sugar. Bake in a plain mould, and serve with a fruit syrup (hot).

The original apple of this country is the bitter crabapple. The first of the species would hardly recognize the modern members of the family. For instance, those on the market today, commonly called the strawberry crabapple, resemble their forbears only in size, still retaining their midget proportions. Don't let their mellow deep red color lead you into thinking their taste corresponds. They're decidedly sour, but ideal for preserves and jellies. They sell 3 pounds for 25 cents.

Prunes are Cheap.

Washington State is not only supplying the market with apples, but prunes as well. Why not take advantage of their low price, 15 cents a pound, and turn some into jelly. You'll need 4 cups of juice, 7½ cups sugar, ½ bottle Certo.

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly about four pounds fully ripe fruit. Do not peel or pit. Add 1 cup water and juice of 1 lemon. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add Certo, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. This will make about 11 8-ounce glasses.

The price of okra (15 cents a quart) remains unchanged, but its quality is the very best. Ignore the past and the future, and buy now.

Zinc Oxide Helps Growth of Lashes

One per cent zinc oxide ointment will stimulate the growth and beauty of the eyelashes. Rub a little into the lashes at night, and in the morning cleanse the eyes with an eye wash or a boric acid solution. Be sure that you use 1 per cent oxide for the treatments, as a stronger preparation might be irritating to the eyes.

What's in Fashion?

Fall's New Dressy Shoes Hang Out N. R. A. Sign

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where styles of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, Washington Post, on request.

Have you joined an NRA group? No—we are not referring at the moment to the blue eagles in store windows. But to those fashionable women who subscribe to the code of New Right Accessories . . . a fashion rule even more rigid this season than before.

And the rightness of the new dress-up shoes is one of the first things that will strike you when you examine them.

They aren't too dressy, because the dresses they are designed to be worn with aren't all tricked up. But they are dainty and feminine looking. And apt to be trimmed a little.

Low-Cut Oxfords.

If you are devoted to oxfords (and they are certainly comfortable as well as flattering) you'll probably stop right there the minute you're shown a pair. For oxfords, so long only sports or tailored shoes, are now one of the smartest dressy types.

But they must be low cut . . . with but one or two eyelets . . . and they are usually trimmed up a bit by a combination of suede-and-kid, suede-and-patent or all kid or all suede with some dainty dressmaker details.

Satin Oxfords.

Most formal of all the oxfords is the new satin one. If you choose this, it will be to wear with a satin dress or with other satin accessories, such as gloves or beret.

The sketch at the top shows one type of dressy oxford. It is suede with bands of patent outlined by silk fagotting (one of those dressmaker details we just mentioned).

Oxfords are so much in fashion a whole daytime shoe wardrobe could be made up of them. But everyone likes variety so probably you'll want pumps or sandals, too.

Plain or Trimmed.

If you have a quite elaborate afternoon dress, you can't do better than to wear the perfectly plain opera pump with it. But with less elaborate dresses, a pump with some simple trimming is the right accessory.

The sketch at the bottom shows one of the simplest . . . just eyelets through which grosgrain bows are laced in front.

And sandals are still smart. The semiopen type rather than the real open shank, is more comfortable for fall days. The one sketched has a simple trim of pinhole perforations.

This sandal, by the way, is one of the American-designed shoes chosen by Schiaparelli for her French models to wear during the presentation of her latest collection.

Feet Exercises.

And while we're on the subject of shoes, how do your feet feel? Better than they used to, we wager, if you're taking the feet exercises described in our recent leaflet. And if you aren't, but want to, send us the coupon which explains how to get this helpful leaflet.

Stuffed Pepper au Gratin.

For a stuffed pepper dish that's a meal in itself, here's how to proceed. Into 6 peppers prepared as directed, stuff this mixture: ¾ cup hot, cooked rice, 1½ cups cooked meat chopped fine, 1½ cups soft American cheese cut thin, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup chopped onion (lightly browned in 3 tablespoons butter), 1 egg slightly beaten. Top with ¼ cup fine, dry crumbs mixed with 1 tablespoon melted butter, and bake 20 minutes at 350 F.

Stuffed With Macaroni.

It's tomatoes in that time-honored trio with macaroni and cheese, and this is how it goes. First, melt 3 tablespoons butter, blend in 2 tablespoons flour, stir in 1 cup milk, and cook smooth and thick. Remove from fire and add ¾ cup American cheese cut fine, 1 cup cooked macaroni or spaghetti, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Stuff the tomatoes prepared as directed, top with ¼ cup fine crumbs mixed with 1 tablespoon melted butter, and bake 20 minutes at about 350 F. Then place stuffed tomatoes on platter, and surround them with 2 more cups of cooked macaroni or spaghetti. To give a final grand flip of flavor to this dish, sprinkle over the macaroni 3 tablespoons chopped parsley that you've first browned delicately in 3 tablespoons butter and ¾ teaspoon paprika.

18 States Join in Cooperative School Tests

Valuable Data Is Obtained Through Work, Education Official Says.

Eighteen States now have cooperative testing programs for their high school pupils, it is pointed out by Dr. David Segel, specialist in tests and measurements, in a new Office of Education bulletin.

Increasing popularity of cooperative testing is due, Dr. Segel says, to the fact that "the work of the individual students in one school can be compared with the work of the students in all schools. This intimate comparison tends to bring about a better understanding of the achievement and ability of the pupils in a given area."

In addition to the State cooperative testing services there are six national testing programs. One of these national services, the college board entrance examination, gave examinations to 19,929 high school pupils in 1932.

In some of the States even greater numbers of pupils take part in the cooperative testing programs. More than 190,000 examinations in 34 subjects were given to Minnesota high school pupils in 1932.

Reasons Explained.

The chief reasons for giving cooperative tests, Dr. Segel points out, are six:

1. Tests give scholastic endeavor attention such as is centered on physical competition of various sorts between schools. Scholarships in colleges are often awarded to individual winners. Comparative results also serve to make grading more accurate.

2. Some of the examinations emphasize applications of principles to the solution of problems rather than specific bits of facts which could be learned through force of memory. The result is a freeing of the teacher from too great dependence upon the textbook.

3. For many years such tests have been used in determining admission of students to college.

Records Are Valuable.

4. Records of the growth of an individual over a comparatively long period will furnish a better means of predicting success in school or in different curriculums.

5. Cooperative tests aid in supervision of high schools by State authorities.

6. Test results yield important data for research on methods of instruction, different textbooks and similar subjects.

Improvements which can make the cooperative testing programs more efficient are suggested in the bulletin. Dr. Segel urges that "the application of principles of reasoning rather than factual knowledge" be introduced in more tests and that the tests be given early in a pupil's high school career rather than solely the end.

To Sweep or Dust? Latter Is Preferable

If there must be a choice between sweeping and not dusting one's home—or dusting and letting the sweeping go—choose the latter method, advises S. Agnes Donham, instructor in the Garland School of Homemaking at Boston.

"A dusted house is cleaner than an undusted one which has been swept," writes this authority. "Perfect dusting every day is impossible; choice is often necessary. Still dust, untouched, is harmless."

Dust once and then stop. Do not keep stirring the dust into the air. Still air clears itself in time, as the weight of the dust is sufficient to carry it down.

Dusting should result in the removal of dirt from the house without injury to the person dusting, or to the articles dusted, and with a minimum amount of inconvenience to the occupants of the home.

Since floors catch the most dust, and dust is most often disturbed when we walk, it is wise to devote oneself to keeping the floor clean. It it is well dusted, it keeps dust from other things.

Save Soap Scraps.

Save all scraps of soap. They may be melted down and used for the weekly wash. Or they can be placed in a small wire gadget made for the purpose and swished around in the dish pan.

Walt Mason, Himself

Stung Again.

The statesman, when he's running, for votes and office gunning, declares in every town, that when he is elected our wrongs will be corrected, he'll cut the taxes down. His eloquence convinces, we class him with the princes, he knows the people well; he understands our sorrow, and when he wins tomorrow, there'll be glad tales to tell. If he's among the winners he'll fire the greedy sinners, the gross, tax-eating swine who keep the people busted, he surely may be trusted to chase them out of line. Extravagance he'll hamper, and he will put a damper on every hot-air scheme; at last we've found a fellow who is not crazed or yellow, who has no foolish dream. He wins, in blaze of glory, and then the same old story is sprung on us again; extravagance increases, and not an evil ceases, to cheer the souls of men. The tax collectors flourish and every plan we nourish is taxed into its doom; assessors swarm around us, to worry and confound us; and fill our hearts with gloom. The man who said he'd strip us of all the briefs that grip us forgets the last campaign; he's using all his senses to build some further fences, to get him in again. He's brisk and bright and breezy, he finds the voters easy, they'll fall for any tosh; they'll fall for any story, however false and hoary, for vows that will not wash.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York—An unintentionally ironic gesture of the NRA committee was the erecting of a speaking platform on "Panic Island."

The "island" is a gigantic safety zone, about the size of a lop-sided baseball diamond, in the middle of Times Square. For years it has been a loafing spot for the unemployed, largely idle actors. Here they doze in the sun amid the whirl of the theatrical district.

Now they are kept awake by a shock troop of NRA speakers, urging, through loud speakers, all employers to sign the code. Those NRA ballyhooers are hopeful that their words will reach the ears of employers. The unemployed are hopeful that some employers will come around.

He Was.

Vignette: A truck filled with tombstones was lumbering down Sixth avenue. On the rear end of the truck a laborer was leaning against one of the stones sound asleep. Carved on the stone above his head were the words: "At Rest."

Guests at a Madison avenue hotel are quite startled when they emerge from a taxicab. The doorman there is an absolute twin of Charles Laughton, the movie actor.

Broadway's longest running show, the flea circus, has a new rival in "Hawaiian Joe" and his rattlesnake performers. Snakes are not as smart as the fleas, however. The best the reptiles can do is make a lot of noise.

Among your typical New Yorkers is that Greek florist on downtown Seventh avenue. Sitting in front of his shop smoking a Turkish water pipe, he will tell you about his nine sons, all of them in the United States Navy.

The early season musical shows are being handicapped by a strike among ballet slipper makers. One show had to open with the dancers wearing green slippers with red costumes.

Manhattan shop girls have a new movie heroine. All of them now ask for coiffures to make them look like Katharine Hepburn.

Cecil B. DeMille's niece, Agnes, is departing for London to be dance director for Piccadilly shows.

New York's "Pubs."

Beer garden owners are avoiding that saloon taint about their places by calling them "pubs." Several places in the Fifties are exact reproductions of British "pubs."

The Aquarium has become something of a shrine for the afflicted since word got around that water in which tropical fish have been swimming was a curative for skin diseases. The crowds became so large that the Aquarium is now turning the healing water over to hospitals for experimental purposes.

Sammy Shipman, who writes those lurid melodramas, has a secret desire to compose. He spends as much time studying music as he does writing plays.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

What Some Can Expect.

While the man with high blood pressure is generally unduly alarmed and is not in the immediate danger he thinks he is, it must be admitted that on the average he must pay for his condition. He does not pay in great danger of immediate tribute to any special disease, but something or other is waiting for him down the road. And, whatever it is, it will grab him off some years ahead of the time for shuffling off arranged for men of his group.

Dr. J. H. Kellogg has arranged a table of life expectancies for persons with high blood pressures, basing it on reports of life insurance companies. Such report iron out individual peculiarities by lumping together millions of individuals.

Since diastolic blood pressure is the more important of the three, we give first some expectancies based on abnormalities in that pressure. A person 21 years old, with a normal diastolic pressure, expects to live 45 years longer. If his diastolic pressure is 90 to 100 he can expect only 28 years more of life. If it is 101 to 105 he has only 21 more years coming to him. If it is 106 of over he is entitled to only 13 more years.

The corresponding figures for a man 30 years old are: 37 years, 23 years, 17 years, and 11 years. For one 40 years of age they are respectively, 29 years more, 18, 14, and 9. For one 50 years old, 21, 13, 10, and 6. For one 60 years old they are 14, 9, 7, and 4. For one 70 years of age they are 9, 5½, 4, and 3.

If a man reaches 80 years of age and has a normal diastolic pressure he has a right to plan on five more years on earth. If his diastolic pressure is between 90 and 100 his expectation is reduced to 3 years. If it is 101 to 105 he has failed to retain that endurance which is contemplated by the Bible statement: "If by reason of strength his years shall be four score . . ." and his expectation is reduced to two years.

Since most people mean systolic pressure when they refer to high blood pressure, similar conclusions as to systolic pressures are given in Dr. Kellogg's tables

A person 20 years old has an average systolic pressure of 120 and, if so, he can expect to live 45 more years. If his systolic pressure is 130 he can expect to achieve only 31 more years. If it is 146 his expectancy is 24 years. If 156 it is 18 years.

Corn's Output Is Estimated at 2,284,799,000

Government Places Wheat Crop at 506,567,000 Bushels in 1933.

(Associated Press.)

Corn production totaling 2,284,799,000 bushels and a total production of 506,567,000 bushels of wheat this year were reported yesterday by the Department of Agriculture as being indicated by September 1 conditions.

Indications a month ago were for a corn crop of 2,273,019,000 bushels, as compared with 2,875,570,000 bushels produced last year, and for a total wheat crop of 499,671,000 bushels, as compared with last year's crop of 726,000,000 bushels.

The wheat crop this year as indicated by September 1 conditions includes:

Winter Wheat Crop.

Winter wheat, 340,355,000 bushels, compared with 461,679,000 bushels last year.

Smuggling of Gold Is Border Racket

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Gold smuggling—the newest border industry—has appeared on the Rio Grande. It developed because $20 American gold pieces are worth $22 in Juarez.

Export of golf coins is prohibited, but tourists and Americans working in Juarez have been carrying them across the river to obtain the 10 per cent premium.

Speculators can afford to pay the premium since coins sell at $27.50 on the London market. A Juarez avenue money dealer said he has bought $1,000 in U. S. gold for shipment to the British market.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Copper—After another quiet week it is predicted that some of the large fabricators soon will come into the market for shipments over the last two months of the year. The industry is marking time while difficulties arising from the NRA code are ironed out, but the opinion prevails that prices will rise when the code is established and the weighted average cost of production is determined.

Lead—The past week witnessed distinct improvement in the lead market with purchases from many quarters, notably battery makers and makers of ammunition. Prices have remained stationary for several weeks at 4.50 per pound, New York and 4.35 cents, East St. Louis.

Floor Coverings—Retailers report a good demand for carpets, rugs, linoleum and felt base goods and mills anticipate larger orders next week as a result of the stronger tone of the market.

Clothing—Woolen goods mills have felt the impetus of retail trade and the better sentiment prevailing among sales agents who were openly doubtful a short time ago of a sharp upturn in retail business. Men's wear mills have little on hand for prompt delivery and most mills are operating steadily. Some have stepped up production. Knitters and weavers are covering requirements for weeks ahead as yarn prices rise.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

(Associated Press.)

The position of the Treasury September 8, was: Receipts, $13,823,043.95; expenditures, $12,147,033.91; balance, $1,184,547,825.20; customs duties for month, $7,564,651.49.

Receipts for fiscal year to date (since July 1), $428,293,376.31; expenditures, $671,419,106.86 (including $236,529,045.93 emergency expenditures); excess of expenditures, $243,125,730.56.

PRUNES—Steady; California, 5½@9½; Oregon, 7@8¼.

APRICOTS—Steady; choice, 10¼; extra choice, 11½; fancy, 12.

PEACHES—Steady; standard, 6½; choice, 7½; extra choice, 7½.

RAISINS—Steady; loose muscatels, 3½@4¾; choice to fancy seeded, 4@4¼; seedless, 4½@5½.

Goods Market.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The print cloth primary market was slightly more active today. Prices were unchanged on most of the better selling constructions. Demand for spot woolens and worsteds in the men's and women's divisions is improved through the influence of clothing reorders. Burlap markets here and at Calcutta were quiet and steady. Rayon production now sold ahead, has increased buyers' courage in the case of cloth commitments.

Wool Futures In Top Sales Rise Sharply

New York, Sept. 11 (Spl.).—Prices of wool top futures on the New York Wool Top Exchange advanced sharply during the past week and at the close of Friday showed gains of 37 to 52 points over the close of the previous week.

Trading on the whole was considerably more active, especially on Wednesday when the volume of business transacted reached close to record-breaking proportions for the current year. There was a persistent and strong demand for tops, but offerings were scarce.

Boston spots advanced steadily during the past week to a new record high since the opening of the exchange of 107.0 cents.

With the exception of a short period last summer when the price held stationary, Boston spots have had a steady rise since the middle of April, 1933, when they were quoted at 57.5 cents.

Futures abroad closed irregular. While the Antwerp market showed advances of ⅜ to ¾ of a penny, Roubaix was off 10, to up 10 centimes. Bradford spot quotations were unchanged to up 1 penny.

Following is a summary of quotations on the New York Wool Top Exchange for the week ended Friday:

Bonds Resume Advances In Quiet Trading

Secondary Issues Move Up as Sales Mount to $8,520,000.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Secondary issues moved up rather briskly in the bond market today, apparently reflecting the upturn in stock, but trading activity generally continued at a sluggish level.

Sales totaled $8,520,000, par value, still considerably below a normal day's business, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced three-tenths of a point. This is the first gain in the composite since August 17.

Most corporation maturities were inclined to move indifferently in an extremely narrow groove until late in the session when some buying demand encountered a scarcity of offerings and prices hardened.

United States Government securities were firm throughout. Although the Liberties were somewhat dull, purchases of the Treasuries improved and both the 3⅛s and 3¼s advanced to new heights for the year.

Among lower-priced rails that rallied 1 to 2 or more points were some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Central of Georgia, Central Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Missouri Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Wabash and Western Pacific.

Gainers in the utility and industrial groups included American & Foreign Power 5s, up 3⅜; Goodyear 5s, up 1¼; Goodrich 6s, up 1⅜; International Telephone Debenture 4½s, up 1; Kelly Springfield 6s, up 4; Loew's 6s, up 4⅜; Postal Telegraph 5s, up 2⅛, and Warner Bros. 6s, up 2.

Obligations of Dutch East Indies were off around 3 to 4 points and French and German issues declined 1 to 2 or more. Antwerp City 5s advanced 5¼ points. The turnover in the foreign section, however, was usually small.

Exchange's Head Warns of New Tax

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Picturing a deserted Wall street, Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, today cautioned city authorities against including a stock transfer and broker's tax in their proposed $40,000,000 revenue raising program.

The exchange head, appearing before a crowded board of estimate meeting at City Hall, declared security markets would abandon the famed financial district, the Stock Exchange Building would stand an empty shell, and thousands of clerks would be thrown out of work, if the program went through.

Extra chairs and benches lined the aisles of the crowded Aldermanic chamber while Mayor John P. O'Brien, Samuel Untermyer, the city's financial adviser, and members of the board heard protests against the program.

Paul Blanshard, executive director of the city affairs committee, offered the only defense of the plan. He charged the brokers were "bluffing" when they talked of moving to New Jersey. Whitney replied that Newark, N. J., "has been actively bidding for us to move."

Hop Prices Quiet.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Hops quiet; Pacific Coast, 1932, prime to choice, 45@46; medium to prime, 43@45; 1931, prime to choice, 38@40; medium to prime, 35@39.

Stocks Move Upward In More Active Trading

Fresh Inspiration From Revival of Inflationary Sentiment Credited With Aid to Rise; Sales Increase to 1,910,920 Shares.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Stocks and commodities advanced in more active trading today, thus departing from the slow downswing that had characterized last week's markets.

Fresh inspiration for the rise was given by a revival of inflationary sentiment, partly as a result of remarks on the subject attributed to a Cabinet member. Stocks closed with gains of 1 to around 5 points.

On the stock exchange, buying for the rise seemed to be largely in professional hands. Group movements were especially noticeable in alcohol and motor shares, though the last half hour, which witnessed the day's best display, saw all divisions moving ahead. Sales totaled 1,910,920 shares.

Allied Chemical, Case, Johns-Manville and Delaware & Hudson improved approximately 5 points. Chrysler, enjoying strong sponsorship, gained 5¾ net and reached new high ground for the year. General Motors' advance was nearly 2. U. S. Steel, Western Union, New York Central, Union Pacific, American Telephone, Westinghouse, United Aircraft, Du Pont and Santa Fe were 3 to 4 points higher when the closing gong rang. Among the "wets," which came back to active favor, presumably on expectations that this week's balloting would add to the list of repeal States, National Distillers sprinted 10 points, U. S. Industrial Alcohol 6s and American Commercial Alcohol about 7.

Although many of the heavy industries are still under the influence of summer slackness, Wall street was impressed by the volume of car loadings, which in the last reportable week was around 20 per cent above a year ago when traffic was also rising. Autumn prospects are not yet quite clear, but in the financial community there is discernible an undertone of confidence. Some observers are pointing out that the shift from summer to fall frequently covers a matter of weeks; in any event, there is no magic of the calendar whereby a revival starts immediately after Labor Day.

Strength of the long term Treasury issues appeared to reflect institutional demand, especially from banks which are finding the minute yields on short term investments unsatisfactory. Money markets were dull as ever, if anything, a bit easier, since some dealers lowered time funds.

Stocks' readiness to advance was apparent from the opening. The market last week, notably in the later sessions, had assumed a thoroughly sold-out appearance, for declines only served to dry up the trading. A shortage of offerings was also apparent when the rise got under way, with the result that numerous favorites rose easily on light volume.

Volume of Trade Index Advances Above 1932

For the first time since 1929, the Alexander Hamilton Institute's trade volume index rose above the previous year's level. The current index is 101.0 as compared with 88.2 in the previous month, 82.4 two months ago and 100.0 a year ago.

The institute in analyzing the trade volume of 201 cities finds that 196 are experiencing an upward trend as compared with 188 cities in the previous month and 49 cities in the previous year.

Advances	530	132
Declines	82	188
Unchanged	86	128
Total issues	698	448

Stocks—More active trading sent stocks on a new climb. Advances averaged 3.7 points. Revival of inflationary sentiment was credited with aiding the rise. Sales totaled 1,910,920 shares.

Bonds—Secondary issues moved up and gains averaged three-tenths of a point on the selected list. Trading was sluggish. Sales mounted to $8,520,000.

Curb—Sentiment changed and bullish whims started an advance led by alcohol issues. Gains ranged from 1 to 5 points. Sales increased to 267,000 shares.

Wheat—Active speculative buying caused wheat to rise a maximum of 4¼ cents. It closed 3¼ cents higher. All grains joined the climb, September wheat sold at 84¼; May, at 92⅝.

Rubber—Crude futures closed firm. September sold at 6.91; December, at 7.28@7.29.

Coffee—Spot coffee was quiet. Rio No. 7 sold at 7½; Santos No. 4, at 9.

Cotton—The market followed wheat to higher ground. It closed barely steady, 20 to 23 points up. December sold at 9.09; October, at 8.88.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged at 3.61; refined sold at 4.70.

Silver—Bar silver was firm in New York. It sold ⅜ higher at 37 cents.

Gold—Bar gold sold in the United States at $29.10; in London, at 128 shillings and 9½ pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar lost on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $4.54¾ to the English pound; 5.46 cents to the French franc, and 33.30 cents to the German mark.

Foreign Markets.

Sept. 11 (A.P.).

London—Activity on the stock exchange was small today with prices in most sections showing a tendency to ease. The drop in the price of bar gold depressed gold shares while international issues remained passive lacking any directive impulses from Wall street. German bonds were weaker. The market closed dull.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was dull today with price movements hesitant. Much attention was centered around the exchange market where the dollar and particularly the pound rose above Friday's closing. Oil shares improved slightly. The closing was inactive.

Berlin—Heavy selling of lignite, dye and electric shares sent prices on the boerse lower. The market closed weaker.

Realty Bonds Deposit Rises to $11,500,000

National Surety Guaranteed List Is Received in Nation-Wide Drive.

In excess of $11,500,000 face amount of real estate bonds guaranteed by National Surety Co. have been deposited with the country-wide bondholders committee of which C. Prevost Boyce, Baltimore, is chairman, according to recent announcement.

Coincident with this information is the report of formation of a committee representing bondholders of National Union Mortgage Co. Bonds of this company, it is stated, are secured by collateral which includes $1,136,000 face amount of real estate securities guaranteed by National Surety Co.

The committee reports it will act so that this collateral may be deposited with the committee headed by Mr. Boyce and expresses the opinion that these bonds should be so placed. It is understood this decision on the part of the committee for National Union Mortgage bonds was reached after very careful investigation on its part. The Boyce group regards this indorsement as another evidence of the confidence which the public is showing in it.

The committee is ready to give any information desired in connection with its work. Edward M. Thomas, 6 South Calvert street, Baltimore, Md., is assistant secretary of the committee.

Committee Asks Acceptance.

The committee of the National Union Mortgage bonds, with respect to collateral guaranteed by United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. and Maryland Casualty Co., is recommanding acceptance of the refunding plan offered by these companies.

Approximately 150 dealers, operating in many sections of the country now are actively cooperating with the Boyce committee, its chairman announces. The committee is campaigning to accelerate deposits of bonds, even though it has on deposit more than 25 per cent of the bonds guaranteed by National Surety Co. Mr. Boyce says these dealers are giving cooperation and urging prompt deposits of bonds in order to realize to the fullest extent on the National Surety Co. guarantee as well as to protect the underlying collateral.

Members of the board of consuls of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, for the present school year have been selected, according to announcement yesterday by William H. Laughlin, Washington Loan & Trust Co., chief consul. Stuart S. Ogilvie, Second National Bank, and B. Bruce Frantz, American Security & Trust Co., have been selected as associate chief consuls.

Work of Consuls.

The consuls of Washington banks serve as contact representatives of the institute, assisting in enrolling members for the educational courses and keeping the bank personnel officially informed on all phases of the activities of Washington Chapter.

Officers and governors of the chapter have emphasized the responsibility of this group and Mr. Laughlin stated that his committee is prepared to render the chapter every assistance so as to ensure the success of its educational program.

Members appointed follow: Ethel McOsker, Ralph Mittendof and Donald W. Mowbray, American Security & Trust Co.; John M. Harris, Anacostia Bank; Francis E. Robey, Bank of Commerce & Savings; Joseph D. Curb Market Prices Climb As Wets Lead

Advances Spread to Other Lists; Sales Rise to 267,000 Shares.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Sentiment on the Curb Exchange underwent a change for the better today as renewed bullish whims in the alcohols inspired demand in other divisions. Closing gains ranged to 5 points or more.

Despite the firmness of the market, trading activity was at the recent quiet pace until the last half hour, when the volume stepped up substantially. Transfers approximated 267,000 shares compared with 235,000 for last Friday.

Leading gainers in the "wet" group included Hiram Walker, Distillers Corporation: Seagrams and Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" with final gains of 3 to more than 4 points. Utilities as a group were close behind. American Gas & Electric rose 4 points, while Electric Bond & Share and Commonwealth Edison added about 2 each.

A number of wide advances were scored by various specialties. Celluloid Corporation firmed 4 points in active dealings while the preferred issues soared in lighter trading. Sherwin Williams rose 12 points while General Tire & Rubber annexed 7. Aluminum Co. of America closed 5 higher while Parker Rust Proof and Pan American Airways gained 4 a piece.

Textile Trades Face Test of Public Buying

Higher Prices in Markets Fail to Cut Volume of Retailers.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—First to win the Blue Eagle, the textile industry is now facing a test of consuming ability to pay the higher prices current in primary markets.

Textile activity surged upward phenomenally from March through July, carried forward by the powerful driving force of a threat of advancing quotations. During the past six weeks, however, there has been a moderate recession.

The silk and cotton goods industries have suffered the most pronounced setback, while rayon production is continuing around capacity levels.

Woolens Also Up.

Woolen and worsted goods opreations have also been marching forward with little change of stride.

In the silk industry, labor difficulties have admittedly slowed down production. In the cotton goods trade, however, the pressing problem is to create an adequate consumer demand for their products which are now perforce festooned with higher price tags.

In this connection, the industry has been encouraged by signs of enlarged retail buying. August retail volume in drygoods and apparel was substantially ahead of a year ago. September is expected to show a continuation of this trend.

Federal Processing Tax.

As a result of the new Federal processing tax, which went into effect August 1—as well as the readjustment of working schedules in accord with the NRA code—operating costs of the textile industry have inevitably advanced. Reports show that some mills not heavily supplied with working capital are finding this burdensome.

From the viewpoint of the industry as a whole, however, some leaders feel that this may prove a blessing in disguise inasmuch as the result will be a close adjustment of production to market requirements.

The opinion is general throughout the textile trade that in few other industries is there greater room for benefits from an agreement for fair competition. Long the victim of throat-cutting practices and frequent overproduction, many leaders in the field view the NRA code as a purging process of great value.

Labor Day Rail Trade Reported to Be Good

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 11 (U.P.). Labor Day rail travel was second only to July 4, Stationmaster V. I. Bell, of the Kansas City Union Station, reported. He said business was "almost like old times," with the largest number of ticket windows needed of any date this year. Station red caps reported more luggage carried, and more frequent and larger tips.

Active Buying Drives Wheat To High Level

Maximum Rise Reaches 4⅛ Cents; All Grains Gain in Price.

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—In the most active speculative buying witnessed for weeks, all grains kited toward the zenith today, wheat up a maximum of 4⅛ cents a bushel.

Rumors of France going off the gold standard accompanied the upward flight of prices. Chiefly, however, traders found purchasing incentive in remarks credited to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that the so-called commodity dollar appealed to Washington administration officials as the best if not the only means of controlled inflation, and suggesting that there might be a strong dose of inflation within the next three months.

Profit-taking led to something of a reaction in the late dealings, and wheat closed unsettled, 2⅞ to 3¼ cents above Saturday's finish; corn, 1⅜ to 1⅝ up; oats, 1⅜ to 1¾ advanced, and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Wheat Displays Strength.

Almost from the outset, wheat displayed unusual strength. With a continuous stream of buying orders from near and far pouring into the pit, traders the greater part of the time focused attention on details of Secretary Wallace's reported statement touching the monetary outlook. It was not until shortly before trading ended that talk gained general notice concerning possibility France was approaching a crisis relative to the gold standard.

Contributing impetus to the skyward trend of values were incorrect reports that the Government September crop estimates due after the close might make a bullish showing, especially as to corn. Some stimulus was also derived from expectance of further wet victories in elections touching repeal of the eighteenth amendment. On this account, rye outdid wheat, and rose 4½ cents. Other bullish factors included reports that Canadian threshing had been seriously delayed by rains over south and central areas of the prairie provinces, and that plans were being formulated to subsidize disposal of United States wheat from the Pacific Coast to China.

Corn and oats advanced with wheat and as a result of reports that recent hot weather instead of hurrying corn to maturity had forced stalks to dry up, putting an end to filling of kernels and even in extreme cases destroying the value of corn as fodder.

Provisions held about steady.

Bank Clearings Cut To $3,659,205,000

New York, Sept. 11.—Bank clearings again are somewhat reduced. The total for the first week of September, covering only five business days, for the leading cities in the United States, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., of $3,659,205,000 was 5.9 per cent below that for the comparative five-day week a year ago. At New York City clearings were $2,532,398,000, a decrease of 8.1 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,126,807,000 was 0.5 per cent lower.

The loss mainly is at New York City, as at other key centers the difference in the amount between the two years was trifling. Boston is an exception, however, a substantially larger total appearing this week; likewise St. Louis, Minneapolis and Atlanta. At some other Southern points, there was a further increase, which was hardly equivalent to that shown hitherto.

An important record is the comparison between the two latest weeks, although this is somewhat disappointing. Clearings for the five days this week were $237,627,000 smaller than those for the six days at the end of August, whereas a year ago, there was an increase of $99,732,000 covering practically the same two weeks. The record including the first few days of September may normally be expected to be larger than that for the final week of August.

Figures at leading centers compared with those of last year, are printed herewith; also daily bank clearings each month for the year to date:

Weather Threatens French Wine Crop

Bordeaux, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Too much good weather threatens to make the Bordeaux wine crop one of the smallest in history, but it promises to make 1933 a fine vintage year.

Sun has been beating down almost incessantly on the whole Gironde department. Such famous regions as Pomerol, Fronsac and Loupiac report that in some sections grapes are being virtually cooked on the vine. Since the harvesting begins this month, there is scant hope that late showers will bring the crop to normal.

Continual sunlight, however, prevents mildew and impregnates the grape with all those qualities which make for fine aroma and a rich flavor.

Trust Securities Sink Slightly During Week

New York, Sept. 11.—Investment trust securities were slightly lower during the past week. The average for the common stocks of the five leading management trusts, influenced by the leverage factor, as compiled by Allied-Distributors, Inc., stood at 17.23 as of September 8, compared with 18.94 on September 1. The low for the current year to date was 8.22, on March 31.

The average of the nonleverage stocks stood at 14.26 as of the close September 8, compared with 15.06 at the close on September 1. The average of the mutual funds closed at 11.32, compared with 11.67.

C. & O. Railway Reports Freight Drop in Week

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway reports freight loading for last week at 27,589 cars, compared with 32,635 in the previous week, which included Labor Day, and 25,523 a year ago.

United Cigar's Creditors Get 20 Per Cent

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—Referee Irwin Kurtz today ordered payment of a 20 per cent dividend to all creditors of the bankrupt United Cigar Stores Co. of America.

Hugh Stringheim, of the Irving Trust Co., trustee, reported that the company had $4,486,817 in cash on hand and that after the payment would still have about $2,500,000, which would be ample, he said, for working capital for continuation of business.

In announcing on September 5 the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend on preferred stock of General Mills, Inc., a mistake was made in the date on which the dividend is payable. October 1, being Sunday, payment will be made the following day, October 2.

The official declaration, therefore, should read as follows:

Directors of General Mills, Inc., announce the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share on preferred stock of the company, payable October 2, 1933, to all preferred stockholders of record at the close of business September 14, 1933.

Grain Crops in Ontario Found of Better Quality

Toronto, Ontario, Sept. 11 (U.P.). Although grain crop yields in most counties in Ontario are not expected to be heavy as in normal years, the quality is better than first anticipated.

In many counties threshing is well under way, while in others it is nearing completion. In most cases the yields vary from as little as 15 bushels an acre to 50 bushels, in the same districts. All, however, are below normal in volume.

Lifting Gold Embargo Boosts Mine Revenues 40 Per Cent

New York, Sept. 11.—A 40 per cent increase in the income of gold producing companies of the West is indicated as a result of the recent Presidential order liberalizing gold exports, providing, of course, that production, exchange quotations, &c., continue near current levels, the Bank of America, N. T. & S. A., announces in a weekly report on Far Western business.

Under increased prices, last year's gold, which ran about $51,675,000, would reach $72,000,000 in value.

Higher prices, it is stated further, may be expected to revitalize the gold mining industry. Gold production runs around 2,500,000 fine ounces a year, 55 per cent of which comes from ten Far Western States, California alone producing 20 per cent of the total. This gold has been selling at a statutory price of $20.67 an ounce, whereas the current world price approximates $30.

While the gold output comes largely from small producers, the major companies will benefit substantially. What the ruling may mean to some of the principal national producers is indicated as follows:

	1932 out in fine ozs.	Value at $20.67 an oz.	Value at $29 an oz.
Homestk'eM.	479,500	$9,911,265	$13,903,500
Alaska Jun.	151,600	3,133,520	4,396,000
Empire Star	97,000	2,004,990	2,813,000
U. S. Smelt'g	175,000	3,617,250	5,075,000
Natomas ..	70,000	1,446,900	2,030,000
Idaho. Md.	42,652	984,975	1,372,000

New regulations governing the sale of bullion are slated to become operative at an early date. Until the regulations are clearly defined, mine operators for the most part are holding in abeyance various plans to increase their output.

The report discloses that gold is derived 20.6 per cent from placer, 59.3 per cent from dry mining, 15.6 per cent from copper ores, 3.2 per cent from lead-zinc ores, 1.2 per cent from lead ores and the rest from other types of ores.

Capri's New Port To Be Ready in '35

Capri, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Mediterranean cruising steamers will be able to enter the new port here, now in course of construction. The port, on which work has been proceeding since 1931, should be open for traffic some time in 1935, and then practically any liner will be able to enter the harbor.

This will prove a great advantage for the island, since at present visitors have to land at Naples and cross the bay to Capri in the small steamers.

The new port will have a curved quayside over 320 yards long, on which all the necessary machinery for handling freight and passenger traffic will be found.

England Buys Oregon Wood.

Abany Oreg., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Long-distance merchandising was demonstrated here when Chester Boyes, wood dealer, received an order for firewood from England. The wood was to be delivered at the home of an Albany resident, now sojourning in Europe.

Canada Migration To U. S. Decreases

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 11 (U.P.). The number of Canadians entering the United States this year has dropped sharply as compared with previous years, according to Mrs. Florence P. Alexander, chairman of the Americanism Committee of the D. A. R.

During the fiscal year that ended July 1 only 4,523 Canadians entered, as compared with an average of 50,000 a year immediately preceding 1930.

Bank Deposits In U. S. Exceed 43 Billions

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—Banks of the United States had deposits of $43,445,201,879 and total resources of $54,029,182,993 on June 30, R. N. Sims, secretary, told the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks as the group convened for the thirty-second annual convention today.

Sims' report covered all the States by totals and was the only available report on nonnational banks comparable with the report of the comptroller of the currency for national banks, making possible a total for all banks in the country.

Sims said, "on June 30 there were 17,400 banks, of which 11,513 were State and 5,887 national banks, with a total capital, surplus and undivided profits of $7,156,724,000."

This was a reduction of $1,429,322,774 from December 31, 1931. In the same period the reduction in total deposits was $6,768,990,736 and total resources $9,101,367,971.

Divided, the figures were: Capital, surplus and undivided profits: State banks, $4,347,001,000; National Banks, $2,809,723,000. Deposits: State, $25,642,739,879; National, $17,802,462,000. Resources: State, $31,727,245,993; National, $22,301,927,000.

Nebraska Farm Lands Are Made Barometer

Lincoln, Nebr., Sept. 11 (U.P.). Movement of farm lands is an accepted barometer of Nebraska business. Secretary Walter Whitten, of the Chamber of Commerce here, believes that this barometer indicates that eastern Nebraska is coming out of the low pressure area.

Of late, Whitten reports, numerous inquiries have been received regarding farm land prices and the number of parcels available. This increased interest, he believes, is an indication of much more healthy business conditions.

U. S. Engineer Gets Patent in Russia

Moscow, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Zara Witkin, a California engineer, has been granted a Soviet patent on a new type of pre-cast construction block, which may be extensively used on new building jobs here.

This is the first patent received in the Soviet Union by an American in the construction industry and one of the very few granted to Americans here.

The new building block is of an interlocking type never before used and provides great economies in labor and material while adding to the strength of the structure. It practically eliminates mortar and gives a fitted monolithic wall.

Until his departure for Russia about a year ago, Witkin, who is only 32, was chief engineer for the Baruch Construction Corporation, of Los Angeles, Calif. In that capacity he was in charge of the building of the Hollywood Bowl and scores of other structures.

In Moscow he is acting as chief consultant to Soyuzstroi, the largest construction trust in the country.

New York's Stock List Drops $695,025,000

New York, Sept. 11.—The market value of 50 representative stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange at the close of business for the week ended September 9 was $13,785,302,750, a decrease of $695,025,000, or 4.80 per cent, as compared with the market value of $14,480,327,750 at the close of the preceding week, according to a compilation by Paul H. Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange.

At the close of the corresponding week a year ago, the same 50 stocks had a market value of $11,570,093,750, indicating an increase during the year of $2,215,209,000, or 19.15 per cent.

Cotton Follows Wheat In Rise To High Levels

December Sells at 9.09 as General Market Rises 20 to 23 Points.

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—The cotton market closed barely steady today at net advances of 20 to 23 points after moving upward in sympathy with wheat. Final prices were 8 to 11 points off from the best.

Covering combined with a renewal of trade and commission house buying sent the price of December contracts up to 9.18 or 20 points above Saturday's closing quotations. That delivery closed at 9.09 or 9 points off from the best under realizing.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 3 points. There was considerable selling but the offerings were soon absorbed due to renewed talk of inflationary possibilities, and a more favorable view of the statistical outlook.

Buying Is Stimulated.

Buying was stimulated to some extent by the action of the grain and stock markets and prices reached the best levels of the day in the late trading. May sold at 9.61 with active months showing net gains of 28 to 33 points. A renewal of hedging in the last half-hour checked the advance and brought out some realizing.

Reiterated reports concerning the prospects for continued control of cotton production next season helped the advance, while the relatively small offerings during the middle of the day were regarded as indicating an improvement in the technical position following the selling last week.

The New York Cotton Exchange service has increased its estimate of last season's world's consumption to 14,405,000 bales and reduced its estimate of the carry-over at the beginning of this season to 11,736,000 bales. Exports today, 34,840, making 760,748 so far this season. Port receipts, 42,547. U. S. port stocks, 3,048,239.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firm, closing at net advances of 2 to 16 points on increased covering and commission house buying, promoted by the strength of cotton, the sharp advance in grains, firm stock market and renewed talk of inflation. Sales were 32 contracts. Bleachable spot closed 4.45; September 4.48; December 4.74; January 4.84; March 4.98.

Fishing Season Is Good.

Astoria, Oreg. Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Despite the fact that five weeks of the fishing season were lost in a drastic strike, the 1933 fish pack from the Columbia River area eclipses the 1932 pack both in size and value. Canners packed 256,700 cases in 1932 and 320,250 this year. Value of the pack this year was $3,600,000, of which fishermen received approximately $1,500,000.

Steel Market Regarded as Ready to Rise

Extension of Prices Into Autumn Seen as Index to Better Trend.

Cleveland, Sept. 11 (Magazine Steel).—Extension of current iron and steel prices, except for a few advances, through the fourth quarter and the filing and dissemination of new extras and differentials in conformity with the steel code, have removed most of the artificial barriers which have been restraining trade, according to the magazine, Steel.

In a broad sense, the steel market this week again becomes a free one, and while withdrawals from stocks will prevent specifications exactly synonymous with consumptive requirements, the trend of demand will be significant and provide the first gage of the fall market.

Some portions of the industry remain confident of good fall business; others can find nothing assuring in an analysis of the four leading outlets. But there is a growing enthusiasm for the steel code and its possibilities for rationalizing competition, and an increasingly favorable reaction to NRA on the ground that if it does not work the alternative may be worse.

Two Industries Responsible.

Two industries—container and automobile—largely ran the steel rate up from 14 per cent in late March to a peak of 58 per cent in mid-July. Tin plate mills are booked through October. The automobile industry, however, is ordering only final materials needed to complete runs on present models, and a dead spot in its demand nears.

Improvement this fall thus becomes chiefly the responsibility of the railroads and the construction and pipelines industries. Financing for sizable pipelines is not in sight. The public works program figures more extensively in prospective structural steel tonnage, but private projects are negligible. Some revival of railroad buying is under consideration at Washington, but at least 60 days will elapse before orders would flow back to the mills.

Largest specific business of the week was the Chesapeake & Ohio's formal distribution of 31,481 tons of rails, the United States Steel Corporation closing on 16,380 tons, Inland Steel Co. on 10,672 and Bethlehem Steel Co. on 4,459.

Bids on Bridge.

Under the spur of a quickened public works administration at Washington, bids will be opened late this month on 16,000 tons for Triborough bridge towers in New York; 12,375 tons for the Grand Island bridges at Buffalo on September 14; 9,000 tons of structurals and castings for Mississippi River lock and dam work in addition to 10,000 tons of piling, and 5,000 tons for various Middle West highway bridges. Actual structural awards last week were 6,224 tons.

Sheet specifications have broadened somewhat as buyers are taking out third quarter contracts fully. Pig iron is moving, partially into stock, at not far from the year's peak. In the East, 50,000 tons may be placed within a month for segments for the New York midtown vehicular tunnel. Ten thousand tons of basic iron still is pending in the East.

Rarely have consumers of steel-works scrap abstained so solidly from the market, the result being further sentimental weakness in prices. The advances of 50 cents to $1 in pig iron, however, are bullish factors for the long pull in scrap. Price strength is manifest in coke, despite a slack market.

Drop in Output.

Steel output dropped 3 points last week to 42 per cent. Buffalo increased 7 points to 48 per cent; New England, Detroit and New York held at 85, 55 and 37, respectively; other districts declined 1 to 7 points, Pittsburgh now being 35, Chicago and Youngstown, 45; Birmingham, 50; Cleveland, 56; Wheeling, 75; Lorain, 66.

In the past week No. 10 gage sheets and hotrolled strip were advanced $2 per ton for the fourth quarter, and cold-rolled strip, $3. Heavy finished steel was continued at 1.60c, Pittsburgh, and 1.65c, Chicago, with all other tonnage products likewise extended. Bethlehem last week was made an alloy bar base, at 2.55c, $2 a ton above other basing points.

However, considering the return to full or revised chemical, size and quantity extras, many consumers for the fourth quarter will pay $3 to $5 per ton more than the recent market to them.

Steel's composites are unchanged, at $31.23 for iron and steel, $48.30 for finished steel and $11 for scrap.

Frances Fuller Sought for Appearance at Earle—Extra Matinee for National

Film Debut On Friday Before Hometown Fan

Miss Fuller Now in East; Friday Mat. for Hit; About Showshops.

If efforts now being made in that direction culminate successfully, Washington theatergoers will have an opportunity to see Frances Fuller, the Capital's potential star of both stage and screen, at the Earle Theater, in person, some day next week, in conjunction with first local presentations of "One Sunday Afternoon," the Paramount picturization of the play of the same name, in which she is prominently cast with Gary Cooper and Fay Wray.

Miss Fuller is now in New York rehearsing in the new Klare Kummer play, "Her Master's Voice," due for an early out-of-town opening with Broadway as its immediate objective. Miss Fuller's mother is at present in New Yor', intrusted by the Warner Brothers' local executive with the mission of persuading her talented daughter to come to Washington for at least one day of the picture's run in order to see herself as others see her and permit her home-town admirers to make her more intimate acquaintance.

Widely Acclaimed.

"One Sunday Afternoon" is hailed as one of the most delightful screen releases of the season and to Miss Fuller is given a large measure of credit for the picture's irresistible charm.

Whether or not maternal persuasiveness will be equal to the task of divorcing Miss Fuller from her current Broadway errand, for even so short a time as a single day, will be known definitely on Wednesday.

On that day the Warner panjandrums are screening "One Sunday Afternoon" for the ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the dramatic decks and Mrs. Fuller, who has never seen the picture, will be back in time to view it.

One peek at the interior of the Metropolitan Theater and you would be willing to wager your right eye against a cruller's central vacuity that it will never be ready to reopen on Friday. The place, in short, is a mess. The lobby is torn to shreds, in process of redecoration and change of color scheme; new satin brocaded wall fabrics are being put up; the interior of the auditorium looks like the wake of a tropical hurricane and workmen are falling over each other in their anxiety to get things finished. This is all a sure sign the Met will reopen on Friday as scheduled. In the course of an experience that has witnessed the opening of many a theater, there has never been one that looked as if it could open even an hour before it actually did!

Meyer Goes Comic.

Meyer Davis, the indefatigable promotional genius who, from a modest Washington beginning which consisted of a single orchestra, built up the greatest chain of dance and novelty bands of them all; who has dabbled in all sorts of amusement enterprises from dance marathons to bowling alleys, and from smart society functions to swanky night clubs, has got himself all busied and bothered with a brand new line of activity, for him.

Over on Long Island—or is it up on Long Island (?)—he is putting into cartoon screen-comedy form a few more of the most popular of the newspaper comic strip features. "Tillie, the Toiler" and "Dumb Dora" will be the first Meyer Davis features to be presented via the flickers.

Experts who have sat in at the rushes and initial previews are unanimous in the opinion that these new movie shorts will register in the grand manner with both the elite and hgi-poilloi.

The musical backgrounds for the pictured antics of the cartoon characters are, of course, engaging a vast amount of the old maestro's attention and concentrated activity. Agostin Borguno, formerly one of the better-known Davis conductors in the Capital, and noted for his skill in evolving unusual orchestral settings, is working out trick musical effects to accent the carryings-on of the comics.

Word from Benita Hume, now in London, indicates she will make a three-month tour of southern France before deciding whether she will marry Jack Dunfee or return to Hollywood, where she last appeared opposite Adolphe Menjou in "The Worst Woman in Paris," or both. Miss Hume attained some degree of prevalence in the cinema before departing these shores for her native England, having been seen last here with William Powell in "Private Detective 62." If for no other reason, she should decide to come back because her beauty so closely approximates Mary Astor's. Mr. Dunfee, however, may argue differently and for the same reason!

Turning Back the Clock.

One whose memory goes back in the theater slightly beyond the Noel Coward era might be pardoned for being moved to reminiscence by Joe Laurie, jr.'s "Memory Lane" act, currently headlining the stage bill at Loew's Fox.

For instance, he might be reminded of far-distant days when he used to hasten home from the Chicago Opera House and struggle with a crude simulation of Dave Genaro's cake-walk steps—executed by the 60-odd year old youngster at the Fox as half of the team of Genaro & Bailey, who originated them. What a flash Dave Genaro was in those days!

Or he might heave a sigh at the recollection of Emma Francis, that electric spark who generally was billed as Emma Francis and Her Pickaninnies, a dancer who worked like a flash of lightning and never failed to panic the house. Miss Francis, if her injured ankle has sufficiently recovered—and it was all right last Friday so this is not imagination—still turns the fastest cartwheel on the stage and does a hand-spring with less apparent effort than half of the modern acrobatic dancers half her age.

Famous Song Writer.

And there must be theater fans still living who can hark back to the day when Cole and Johnson were the only colored team that could hold a handle to Williams and Walker. Cole and George Walker were "strutters" that really could strut. Bert Williams, who survived his partner by many years as an active entertainer, is, of course, well remembered by later-day theatergoers, and now up there with the other boys and girls at the Fox is J. Rosamond Johnson, playing the piano and singing again some of the old songs that he and his partner wrote for such of the oldtimers as the late Marie Cahill ("Under the Bamboo Tree"), Eddie Leonard, king of the minstrels, and numerous others.

Anyone in the least familiar with popular-priced amusement during the past quarter century would be moved to reveries of olden days by the appearance of Gus Hill as "world's champion Indian club swinger." Not only is Gus Hill still an adept with the clubs but he is also fresh in mind as producer of many of the comic-strip musical extravaganzas of an earlier day—"The Katzenjammer Kids," "Happy Hooligan," and the like of them. It takes a bit of going back to remember that he gave Weber and Fields their first job, discovered Lillian Russell and more recently was instrumental in getting Mae West into the movies.

Conducted Here.

But of one of the old-timers Joe Laurie has assembled there is a more recent local history.

When Harry Crandall opened the Lincoln Theater, up at Twelfth and U streets, the question of musical conductor presented something of a problem. Intent on securing a "name" director, the founder of the Crandall Theater Circuit—now Warner Brothers—engaged William C. Handy, composer of that series of "blues" numbers dedicated to "Beal Street," "Memphis," "St. Louis" and the rest, to come down and organize the Lincoln's orchestra and personally wield the baton over it—which he did for a considerable season.

As for Annie Hart and Lizzie Wilson, whoever hasn't heard them sing "The Hat Me Dear Old Father Wore" and the famous "Schnitzelbaum" song, respectively, at least a thousand times, just hasn't been around!

Heigh-ho! Boy, see if you can find the records of "After the Ball" and "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay!"

So great has been the demand for seats for Corinne Griffith in the revival of Noel Coward's "Design for Living," with which the National Theater opened its new season last night, that announcement is made by Manager Stephen E. Cochran that an extra matinee performance will be given on Friday afternoon of this week. The combination of a sprightly comedy of known worth, the first appearance on any Washington stage of one of the most beautiful and most gifted stars of the silent cimena and the Capital's natural hunger for substantial dramatic fare at this season of the year, has proved a combination a little too alluring for the capacity of the National to accommodate in a normal week of eight performances. Seats for the extra matinee are now on sale at the box office. But it might be well to hurry, because they won't last!

Siren Signed.

Genevieve Tobin, former stage star and at present one of Hollywood's favorite leading ladies, has been signed by First National Pictures, Inc., to a long-term contract.

Her first role under the new contract with the company, for which she has been working on a free lance basis, will be in "Dark Hazard," Edward G. Robinson's next starring vehicle. Miss Tobin will have the leading feminine role in the picture, which has been based on W. R. Burnett's Book-of-the-Month for September. After "Dark Hazard" she will appear in a leading role in "Easy To Love."

This popular player's most recent work was in "I Loved a Woman," the recently completed Robinson starring picture to reopen the Metropolitan Friday. In it she divides leading feminine honors with Kay Francis.

She also had a leading role in "Goodbye Again," recently seen at the Earle.

Those who enjoyed better luck than this column and were privileged to preview "I Loved a Woman" in the Warner Brothers' private projection room yesterday afternoon, report it as just barely possible that Miss Tobin not only "shared honors" with the other feminine members of the cast, but even went so far as boldly to "steal' the picture. Stranger things have happened. That is practically what Miss Tobin did to "Goodbye Again," if you remember.

Speaking of Corinne Griffith in "Design for Living," as we assuredly were back a few blocks, first nights, deadlines and the general hurly-burly of a new season's opening being what they are, the review of Miss Griffith's first performance in Washington will be found on another page of today's issue of The Post—perhaps one up a little nearer the front.

Under the heading of "An American 'Scoop;' How a Newsreel Topical Was Faked," the following appears over the signatory initials, "R. B. M." in the last issue of the London Era to reach this desk:

"English newsreel companies were not allowed to make a record of the king's opening speech at the World Economic Conference; the filming and recording of this extra-important event was strictly forbidden. But that did not disturb the American film-news snatchers. They just sat down and listened in to the B. B. C. broadcast and made a sound film of the speech from the relayed transmission.

"The film, which I have seen, has been shown to milions of people throughout America, but it can not be shown publicly here.

"It opens with a view of the Geological Museum—taken from a picture post card. An enthusiastic commentator is very thrilled about the place. Then the king, nicely dressed in military uniform, is flashed on the screen. He is smiling gaily, and the commentator would have the public believe that this is his majesty arriving to open the conference, when—in point of fact, the pictures are cut from a film taken at least ten years ago.

"A huge crowd is shown. Then the king's voice is heard. This is the only genuine thing about the film. The crowd scenes are of a demonstration in Hyde Park! It is an enormous crowd, far larger than the one that actually welcomed His Majesty and the delegates. There is no mistaking the trees of Hyde Park.

"All together, we have the king's voice, stolen from the B. B. C., and a hash of unauthentic scenes at the conference.

"Mr. Sander, editor of Pathe News in London, will make no comments on the film. He thinks it speaks for itself."

And to think that Pathe rooster stood right up on his hind legs and crew after that one!

Also, lest you get the wrong impression from history's sketchy outlines, the Battle of Bunker Hill was all done with mirrors!

The Orchidaceous Miss Griffith Opens Season

Corinne Griffith, former star of the silent screen, who last night made her first appearance on any Washington stage as inaugural attraction of the new season of legitimate drama at the National Theater. Her appearance in the revival of Noel Coward's "Design for Living"—a complete review of which will be found on another page of today's Post—has aroused such intense interest that an extra matinee performance for Friday has been announced by the management.

Here's Second Star to Name In Post Puzzle

Famous Film Lover Will Be Revealed if Pieces Are Joined.

Here you are, movie fans! Here is the second of the stars of the "Star" contest. Can you recognize him all cut up like that?

The Washington Post and Warner Bros. Metropolitan Theater are offering cash prizes and theater guest tickets for the neatest and most original entries submitted in this new contest which started yesterday and which will end Thursday midnight with the last puzzle printed in Wednesday's issue of The Post.

This Star Well-Known.

The star and diamond-shaped pieces herewith, when properly placed together, will reveal the picture of one of the screen's greatest character actors who has become one of the screen's great lovers in his latest starring picture, "I Loved a Woman," which on Friday, September 15, reopens Warner Bros. Metropolitan Theater. Featured in this picture are Kay Francis, Genevieve Tobin and Edward G. Robinson.

First prize, $15, and second prize, $10, will be given for the two neatest and most original entries. Twenty-five pairs of guest tickets for "I Loved a Woman" will be given for the next twenty-five winning entries.

In case of ties, duplicate awards will be given each tying contestant. Deadline for entries will be Thursday at midnight. Winners will be announced in Saturday's issue of The Post.

Picture Powerful Drama.

"I Loved a Woman" is the drama which concerns the intimate affairs of a wealthy meat baron and a grand opera star.

Get busy on this contest! Save all three entries until the end of the contest and mail them to Contest Editor, Warner Bros. Theaters, Earle Building. Each must be properly identified.

Gayety

"TRU-BLU GIRLS." Jimmy Lake presents Al Golden and his burlesque troupe in a musical extravaganza in two acts, starring Al Golden and featuring Joe DeRita, Phil Stone and Marcie Yetman. Zuleka and Lillian Dixon guest stars. Reviewed Monday night.

Al Golden and his "Tru-Blu Girls" usher in the second week of the season at the Ninth street emporium of burlesque with a sparkling, fast-moving show that augurs well for the coming weeks.

A chorus that is much above the ordinary in pulchritude and the perfection of their dance routines provides a splendid background for the sensational numbers of Miss Zuleka and other exponents of the art of Terpsichore.

Phil Stone, Abe Sher and Joe DeRita, aided and abetted by Al Golden in the straight role, provide some rollicking moments of comedy, but the rotund Happy Hyatt, with his interpretation of a "specialty" girl, is easily the hit of the show.

The charming and exquisitely proportioned Lillian Dixon, together with Frances McAvoy, Margie Yetman and Kitty Seifert, provide that portion of the entertainment that has come to be considered the foundation of modern burlesque, and the volume of applause for their acts again upheld the Jimmy Lake reputation for pleasing his Washington audiences.

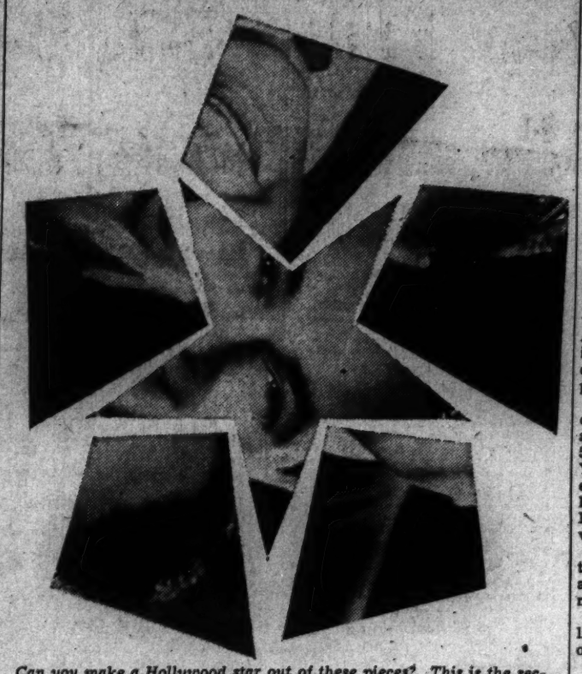
Although the entire production is worthy of commendation, the beauty of scene in "Dream Boat," "Silver Ballet" and "Song of India" are in themselves sufficient to stamp "Tru-Blu Girls" as one of the worthiest presentations the popular Gayety stage can boast.

Maniac Seized in Woods After Reign of Terror

Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 11 (AP).—A man, about 25, believed to be an escaped maniac, was captured in a woods near Hanover, Ill., today after he had terrorized the neighborhood since early Saturday.

He was carrying an ax with three neckties wrapped about the handle, an empty ether can and a bottle half full of ammonia.

New Star Puzzle in Post Contest



Can you make a Hollywood star out of these pieces? This is the second puzzle in the "Star-of-Stars" contest, sponsored by The Post and Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater. The pieces, when correctly assembled, form a star picture of a famous motion picture actor.

Actor Puzzles By Study Plan

Stars Fail to Understand Rejection of Big Money to Get an Education.

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 11 (AP).—The strange case of Charles Laughton, who is forsaking temporarily a promising movie career and many movie dollars while he obtains a "classical stage education," is something of a puzzle to most of Hollywood.

Laughton, portly English comedian who has been featured in a half dozen films here, soon will turn his back on pictures for at least eight months. During that period he will head an English repertory company, earning the not imposing salary of £20 weekly.

Although he has had offers from virtually every company for a salary around £550, or about $2,500 a week, Laughton feels that while he is still young he should look after his "education."

Most of the comedian's coworkers, whose aim is to "get the money now," look upon Laughton's decision as foolish.

Texas Youth Gets Chair For Murder of Girl

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 11 (AP).—A district court jury after brief deliberation today sentenced Bluitt Burkley, 19, colored, to death in the electric chair for the murder of Miss Katherlyn Prince, 19-year-old white girl who was attacked and slain.

Film World's Eyes Focused On D.C. Today

Fireworks Are Expected at First Hearing on Code for Industry.

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—The eyes of Hollywood and New York film circles will be focused upon Washington tomorrow to witness the verbal fireworks expected when Sol A. Rosenblatt, deputy NRA administrator, convenes the first hearing on the NRA code for the motion picture industry.

John Howard Lawson, president of the Screen Writers Guild, heads a committee of four to represent 500 writers; Max D. Steuer, New York attorney, will represent an emergency committee of 2,000 Hollywood actors and actresses, and Frank Joyce, of Joyce & Selznick, will speak for the agents.

Strong protest will be voiced by the Screen Writers Guild against articles 9 and 10 in the code submitted.

"They are outrageous attempts to limit the financial and artistic rights of the creative artist," Lawson said.

Train Kills 8 in Bus.

Castiglion Fiorentino, Italy, Sept. 11 (AP).—Seven passengers and the driver of an autobus were killed today by an express train at a grade crossing near here. The bus stalled.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

COME what may this evening when Barney Ross throws his championship bauble into the ring against Tony Canzoneri at the Polo Grounds, Ross will be a unique figure in the modern history of the prize ring.

"I'll be a fighting champion." After "Hello, Momma," those are the first words the modern-day champ shouts into the microphone that is part of the trappings of the title bout in this day and age. And then they go on tour, fighting none but sparring partners in exhibition bouts. Nobody believed them, anyway.

Is a Fighting Champion.

But this Ross, apparently, is different. It was hardly two months ago that he stripped the crown from Canzoneri out in Chicago and now he is tossing it back into competition against the very man who figures to give him the best battle for it. Win, lose or draw this evening, Ross will go down in boxing annals a fighting champ.

Ross is a rare champion in another respect. He is one of that small company of former amateur champions who reached the pinnacle as a professional. The only other two fellows to step out of amateur ranks and make good in a large way among the paid performers are Fidel La Barba and Frankie Genaro.

Nats Need 8 More Wins.

Calling it a pennant race these days is pure flattery to the Yankees. A 9½ game lead at this stage of the campaign for the Nats makes the unfurling of the 1933 pennant in Griffith Stadium simply a formality.

Just supposin', for example, that the Yankees win all of their remaining 18 games, which would indeed be a very commendable finish for a team that is playing 597 ball; then the Nats will clinch the pennant in any event if they but win half of their remaining 16 games.

In other words, the Nats, who have just won 9 of their last 10 starts, need win only 8 more games to lead Old Man Mathematical Certainty by the halter into the Capital.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

The best bet in the National amateur golf tournament at Cincinnati is that the winner will be wearing long pants . . . knickers and golf stars began to part company in 1932 . . . and now the bloomer boys are as scarce as Swiss admirals . . . not that it matters, but every team in the American League with the exception of the Nats and the Yankees are mathematically out of the pennant race . . . Joe Kuhel has received more intentional walks this season than during his entire big-league career . . . opposing pitchers take a look at Kuhel's .325 batting average and decided that Ossie Bluege would be a better gamble . . . for the pitchers . . . the statistics aren't at hand, but it is a good bet that the Giants will win the pennant this year with fewer runs scored than any team since the Hitless Wonder White Sox of 1906 . . . If Monte Pearson pitches for the Indians today Washington fans will be viewing the rookie that Walter Johnson says is the best pitcher to break into the big leagues since Monte Weaver . . . but a young fellow named Johnny Marcum yesterday pitched his second shutout in his second start for the Athletics . . . umpires take pride in their work if the "Time of Game" is under two hours . . . nobody else cares.

Hubbell Star As Giants Win, 3-1

Mound Ace, in Relief Role, Stops Reds in Close Battle.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 11 (AP).—Carl Hubbell, ace of the National League southpaws, stepped forth as a rescue pitcher again today and hurling scoreless ball for three innings saved a game for Herman Bell, as the New York Giants won their fourth successive game from the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 1.

In winning their fifth straight game, the Giants increased their lead over the idle Cubs and Pirates to 8 and 8½ games, respectively. The Giants now need only 10 more victories in their remaining 19 games to gain the pennant, even if the Cubs win all of their remaining 16 contests.

Hubbell to Rescue.

Hubbell, who pitched the last three innings of the first game of a double-header yesterday and a complete game against the Pirates Friday, stepped into the breach in the seventh when Red Lucas opened the inning with a sharp single, with the Giants leading, 3 to 1. He retired the Reds without allowing another runner to reach first and gave only one hit, a single by Harry Rice in the eighth, in the two remaining innings.

Subpar Cards Set Course Record

Jack Munger, 18, Pulls Biggest Surprise in Tying Champion.

Dunlap, With 71, Is 2d; 7, Including Goodman, Are Tied for 3d.

By Dave Herman
(Post Staff Correspondent).

KENWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 11.—While the fluffy traps and deceptive greens were swallowing up the hopes of some of the Nation's leading golfers, Defending Champion C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, Canada's gift to the links, and 18-year-old Jack Munger, of Dallas, Tex., interscholastic champion, ripped off par-smashing scores of 70, each, today, to sweep into the lead by a one-stroke margin as the first half of the 36-hole qualifying round of the National Amateur Championship passed into history.

Withstanding the challenge of a field of 152 stars assembled here from 32 States, the steel-nerved, close-mouthed Canadian, and his unheralded rival not only had the honor of running abreast for medal honors, but also established a new record for this difficult 6,780-yard course.

Munger Is Surprise.

Munger, playing in his second national amateur, provided the surprise of the opening day with his round of 34—36, one below par, that was touched off by a spectacular eagle three on the 562-yard third hole. A senior at Hill School, Philadelphia, the 150-pound youngster won his first important championship at Greenwich, Conn., in June, by beating Maury Nee, of Washington, D. C., 2 and 1, in the interscholastic finals.

The personification of steadiness, Somerville left the imprint of four birdies on the sun-baked turf, matching his first nine score of 35 on the stretch and nailing a 30-footer on the home green that enabled him to tie the Texan for the medal leadership.

Dunlap Is Second.

With an army of high school and college lads basking in the limelight, George T. Dunlap, former Princeton star, roared home late in the evening with an even par, 36—35—71, that temporarily clinched for him second-place honors.

No one else in the field, not even the bronzed Johnny (Jock) Goodman, national open champion and 1932 amateur finalist, was able to equal, much less puncture, par. With a gallery of some 1,000 strong, that later was increased to 1,500 when he rounded the turn, trailing his every step, Goodman pounded away for a 37—35—72 and found himself locked in a tie with six others for third place.

Included in this circle were Johnny Fischer, home-town boy and 1932 amateur medalist, whose eagle deuce on the 445-yard ninth was the day's greatest shot; Willie Turnesa, 18-year-old metropolitan champion and member of the famous golfing brothers of Elmsford, N. Y.; Pat Sawyer, of Minneapolis; Gus Moreland, of Dallas, Tex., Walker Cup star; Don Edwards, little-known entry from San Jose, Calif., and W. R. Long, jr., a bank clerk from Austin, Tex. With 73s each, next came John Florio, of Columbus, Ohio; F. J. Wright, jr., of Boston; Craig Krayenbuhl, Louisville, Ky., and the bespectacled Eugene Homans, Englewood, N. J., who was the victim of Bob Jones in the 1930 classic that saw the Atlantan complete his "grand slam" of golf.

Their Paths Cross Tonight in Bout for World Lightweight Title

Peacock's 79 Leads D. C. Entrants

Is Only One of 5 Given Chance to Qualify in Title Amateur Play.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

KENWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 11.—Washington golfers fared poorly in the opening round of the National Amateur Championship today, and tonight little hope was held for their recovery.

Roger Peacock, 22-year-old Indian Spring star, who missed qualifying for match play by two strokes in 1932, led the District contingent into the second day's firing with a 79, 8 over par, and appeared to be the only one of the five who had a possible chance of making the match play grade.

Two others, Luther Steward, jr., slim Congressional golfer, and Martin F. McCarthy, strong-armed Beaver Dam ace, cracked up badly on the first nine and had to rally to finish with scores of 80 each.

Stevinson Off Badly.

The veteran of the lot, Miller B. Stevinson, starting off with a disastrous eight on the first hole, staggered around for a total of 45—41—86, and was completely out of the running.

Dick Lunn, 18-year-old Chevy Chase champion, looked upon as a possible qualifier, was erratic with his tee shots, took 18 shots for the first three holes, a 44 for the first nine, and picked up on the seventeenth hole after a bumpy second nine voyage.

Peacock was even par until he struck the sixth hole, where he ran into trouble and took a six.

The youngster took a 5 on the par 4 ninth and was lucky to get it after a bad tee shot and an equally bad second. He rounded the turn in 39, three over par.

Failure to judge his approach shots on the eleventh and thirteenth cost Peacock a 6 and a 5, and on the fifteenth his drive caught a ditch and he used up 5 more shots. More trouble followed. He was to the right of the trap with his drive on the short sixteenth, and took a 4, and a trapped tee shot forced him to imbibe a 6 on the seventeenth. His 41 on the last nine was 6 over par.

Steward Putts Well.

Steward, out in 41, gave an uncanny exhibition of putting on the stretch. Here he ran into a flock of traps, recovered and had a streak of six one-putt greens. Out in 43 after a bad kick cost him a 7 on the third, McCarthy came home brilliantly on the last nine for a 37, barely missing a tiny putt on the eighteenth that would have given him a 36.

If Peacock, Steward and McCarthy hope to qualify, they will have to shoot something like 71 tomorrow, because so many 72's, 73's and 74's were posted today.

Crowder Seeks 23d Victory Today

MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON recalled two rookies yesterday from the Toledo Club, Pitcher Thornton Lee, a southpaw, and First-baseman Hal Trosky. He used the latter in yesterday's game and there is a possibility that he will call on the pitcher, the only southpaw on his club, this afternoon.

Johnson had in mind using his precocious rookie, Monte Pearson, but he turned an ankle chasing flies before yesterday's game and there is some doubt as to his availability for today, although Trainer Lefty Weisman says the hurt is not serious. The Tribe will be seeking to break an evil spell which has run into six successive losses, equalling a winning stretch of the same length which ended last week. If Pearson is incapacitated and Lee does not get the call, Clint Brown likely will toil on the hill. He beat the Nats early this season for the first time in four years of play.

"General" Al Crowder, who has won more games than any other pitcher in the majors, will try to add another victory to his total, which now is 22.

John Phipps, former North Carolina U. shortstop, has been signed by the Nats and Skipper Joe Cronin will judge whether he has a chance of succeeding him when the team goes to training camp next spring. Off-hand, it might be said that a rookie's job is doubly hard when it happens that he is seeking the position held by his boss.

Tonight's Ross-Canzoneri Bout At New York Has No Favorite

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP).—Barney Ross, sturdy, swift little fellow from the battle lands of Chicago, swings tomorrow night, with the superstitious citizens of the boxing world pointing warning fingers at him.

Barney will tackle Tony Canzoneri, the brilliant Italian boy, a bit shopworn now after eight years of warfare, but made more dangerous than ever by the rancor that has gripped him since June 23, when he lost the championship to Ross in a 10-round bout he thought he had won easily in Chicago.

With fair weather promised and the warriors in splendid fettle at the 135-pound class limit, more interest has developed in the battle being staged by Tim Mara than in any lightweight title tussle here since the days of Benny Leonard. Expectations are that a crowd of 30,000 will pay better than $100,000 at the gate to see the promoters' "natural," the duel of a Jewish boy and an Italian.

The tremendous racial followings of each man have about offset each other in the wagering, with the odds at even money and the gamblers offering 9 to 10 against your choice.

Most of the critics give Ross whatever edge there is on the basis of his youth and stamina. He is only 22 years old, an indomitable little fellow, who fought his way up through the amateurs to a golden gloves title, turned professional and in his forty-ninth bout won the lightweight championship of the world. He has all the equipment Canzoneri boasts—a cutting left hand, fine left hook and hefty right cross.

Experience With Tony.

Ross lacks only the polish, the fire, showmanship and ring generalship that through the years and the wearing of both the featherweight and lightweight titles have brought Canzoneri recognition as one of the greatest little fellows in ring history. But though he's only 25, the clock seems to be running down for the one-time bootblack from New Orleans. The experts fear the long campaigns have robbed Tony of some of his stamina, stolen away some of his resistance. He has always been noted for winning the "hard" way, tying into slugging matches for the thrills he got and the tingles he gave the spectators when he could have cantered home on boxing ability alone.

Canzoneri is so confident of winning back his title, however, that he has wagered $3,000 on himself. He believes he took Ross too lightly in their first match and thinks that, even so, he should have gotten the decision.

The bout will not be broadcast.

Single In 9th Robs Hurler of Shutout

Nats Get 9 Hits, Tribe 8; Ferrell Fails in 8th With Bases Full.

Goslin, With Three Runs and Three Safeties, Leads in Attack.

PROF. MONTE WEAVER, the eminent schoolmaster from Virginia, declared an eight-inning recess for the Cleveland Indians yesterday while the Nats were scoring runs off and on to win the ball game, 5 to 1.

Thus Washington advanced on the pennant at double-quick time, for the Yankees up in New York saw their six-game winning streak expire from an overdose of Fred Marberry, who held them to four hits and led the Tigers away with a 5-1 triumph that sweetened the proceedings in Washington.

Lead by 9½ Games.

The upshot of the matter was that the Nats expanded their league lead to 9½ games, equaling the former new high, an advantage which, at this stage of the race, is tantamount to a strangle hold on that valuable baseball commodity variously described as pennant, gonfalon, bunting, or rag.

The Redskins bit the dust without great resistance against Prof. Weaver's fast ball, which had the dark, overcast afternoon as an ideal background, and only the last out of the game stood between Weaver and a shutout victory. Dick Porter then knocked all shut-out notions from Weaver's cranium with a single to center that drove Burnett home.

Going into the eighth inning, Weaver had a four-hit game in his possession by dint of some grand larceny catches behind him, but his 3-0 lead was threatened when Wesley Ferrell appeared at bat with the bases full. Nothing eventuated except Schulte's perfunctory catch of Ferrell's easy fly.

It was a nine-hit ball game that Mel Harder and Willis Hudlin pitched for the Indians, but they were scattering their hits less judiciously and the Nats took a one-run lead at the outset, scored twice more against Harder in the third inning and put two more runs together as a parting shot to Hudlin in the eighth.

Goslin Bat Star.

Goose Goslin, who was getting on base all afternoon with three hits and was scoring three-fifths of the Nats' runs, put the Nats in a position to score when he beat out a hit to Knickerbocker with one out in the first inning. Manush grounded to Hale and when the second baseman attempted to tag Goslin on the baselines, the Goose knocked the ball from his hand and both runners were safe. Fred Schulte lopped a drooping double into right field and the Nats had their one-run lead.

Goslin also started off the two-run uprising in the third by beating out another hit to Knickerbocker. But there was nothing tainted in the hit that followed—a triple by Heinie Manush that whistled between Ferrell and Averill out in left-center field. Goslin scored and Manush trotted home when Cronin bashed a single into left.

Made Good in Eighth.

The boys virtually ceased firing thereafter until the eighth. Both clubs made only two hits. After Weaver disposed of the Tribe threat in the eighth, when singles by Knickerbocker and Hale and a walk filled the bags, the Nats retaliated with a threat on which they made good.

Willis Hudlin was the victim. Goslin smacked his third single of the day and Manush rapped a double down the third base line. A walk to Cronin filled the bases and Goslin scored when Schulte lined a long fly to Averill. Kuhel grounded out, Manush taking third, and then Hudlin uncorked a wild pitch against the screen and Manush meandered home with the second run of the inning.

Weaver's shutout dreams vanished in the ninth after Burnett led off the inning with a single to right, took second on Galatzer's bounce to Kuhel, went to third unmolested and scored on Porter's safe smash to center.

Yankees Held To 4 Hits By Marberry

Tigers Win, 5-1, as Ruffing Is Pounded for 11 Safeties.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP).—With Fred Marberry pitching four-hit ball, the Detroit Tigers staged a three-run uprising in the seventh inning to defeat the New York Yankees, 5 to 1, and break the champions' winning streak, which had extended to six games, today. The defeat, coupled with Washington's victory, sent the Yanks 9½ games behind the league leaders.

Gift of Roses Spurts to Win Over Princess Camelia in Lincoln Fields Feature

Evergold 3d; Runs Out In Stretch

$11.42 Paid by Victor; High Quest Scores at Belmont.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (AP).—Gift of Roses, cleverly ridden by Jockey W. D. Wright, won the Blue Eagle Purse in a spectacular stretch finish with Princess Camelia at Lincoln Fields today. Three-quarters of a length separated the two on the post in the three-quarter sprint.

Evergold, favorite, finished third. The latter when making his charge down the stretch ran out and lost whatever chances he had to score.

Gift of Roses, racing in the colors of J. P. Ebelhardt, of Lexington, Ky., always in close pursuit of Princess Camelia, the early pace-maker, overtook the leader in the final jumps to the wire. The winner ran the distance in 1:11 3-5 and paid $11.42 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Belmont Park Race Track, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—Mrs. Dodge Sloane's colt, High Quest, which finished a heavily backed second to Bazaar in the Hopeful, regained his winning form here today when he scored impressively in the Futurity trial, 6-furlong straightaway dash.

No one in the world, not the greatest families in Europe, nor even the Emperor of Japan himself, has records to prove so long and noted a line of ancestors as Dr. H. H. Kung, who traces his lineage back through 75 generations direct to the great Kung Fu-Tse, who is known throughout the world as Confucius.

Dr. Kung holds an LL.D. degree from Oberlin. In his early youth he was converted to Christianity. In China he has extensive interests in mining, manufacturing and other commercial enterprises.

The strange tree of Patagonia, in the southern extremity of South America, is known there as the "alpatico," which is an Indian word meaning, literally, "tree upside down." It has well-defined roots, trunk and branches—but it grows entirely beneath the surface of the soil.

The only evidence of its presence is a mound of earth which has been pushed up by the underground growth. Under the mound may be found the tree, with its roots radiating in all directions from the trunk.

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Lincoln Fields, Sept. 11.

The Bennings' back-slapping machine was left in the hangar tonight. Searched the program for a spot on which I could elaborate, but without success. The only redeeming feature was that the great Bennings was not shut-out. We had a winner in Spud, even if he did pay off with a tinfoil mutuel. But it's going to take more than Spuds to fill those coal bins and buy those overcoats this winter. Feeling that Bennings has run his course at this track, I shipped Friend Mike to Havre de Grace tonight where he will arise early each morning and get the lowdown on some of the early arrivals at the Maryland oval. You know, I'm transferring the Bennings' curse to the Graw next week.

First Race—Victorium is in fine form now and the stable means to win purses while the sun shines. John Mill appears the best place bet. The sleeper of the gang may be St. Nazaire. This one turned in a whale of a race today, and I understand he will be sent right back.

Second race—Yankee Waters gets in this test with only 102 pounds, and, this way rigged, should give a good account of himself. He has Social Service and Chief Bunting as leading rivals.

Third race—Let's give Bill Orange another chance. After providing us with a victory, he ran far back the other day. I don't believe that race. LeFlore couldn't beat Louie Dear here last week, but appears ready to take the place in this heat. Fiddler for the show.

Fourth race—Her Elegance is a hard-worked maiden and should graduate in a field of this caliber. Mr. Swift breaks from the rail and may make it an interesting race for the top one. Dr. Klein gets a field more to his liking here, but he's still off my top list.

Fifth race—Yonkel gets the Bennings call over this fair band of sprinters. He can't make any mistakes, however. Once Chance and Fanfern are at top form. Looks like a hoss race from every angle.

Sixth race—I don't expect to get that $100 mutuel that we barely missed the last time Prince Drake ran. However, I do believe we will receive a substantial pay-off. Asking a lot to make this one beat Domino Player, but stranger things are happening here every day. Cotton Club to show.

Seventh race—His Last doesn't fancy opposition any stronger than this and will have to be geared right up to the minute to get home. I understand they will take a shot at this field. Laher is the one to beat. The ancient Clyde Van Dusen has been working well. May edge into the money.

Navy Football Prospects Are Bright With Much Experienced Talent Available

Big Problem Is to Name Regulars

At Least One Letterman or Tried Sophomore for Every Berth.

By Staff Correspondent.

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 11.—Mr. E. E. ("Rip") Miller, head football coach of the Navy, has assumed a Gloomy Gil Dobieish attitude as he toils under the boiling sun with his 88 young stalwarts in preparation for the coming football grind. And Mr. "Rip," of the Notre Dame Millers, has assumed this very attitude publicly because Campbell, a very fine but lately departed full back—departed through graduation exercises—as well as three nifty ball players—Capt. Jim Reedy, an extraordinarily good guard; Pray, a sterling wing man, and Kane, an outstanding tackle—have left glaring gaps in the otherwise calm and collected Navy wall.

Privately, "Rip" has taken on his gloomy mannerism simply because he has so much talent available among the reserves of last year and the up-and-coming sophomores, really and truly a noble lot, that he is more puzzled than worried as to which ones should be labeled regulars.

On this year's team Coach Miller will be able to muster a letter man or a second-year man who has beaten out a regular at every position. Let's take the ends.

Murray Fixture At End.

Capt. Fid Murray is a certain fixture at the left terminal. During every minute of last season, the Newnan, Ga., lad was in there fighting the whole way. He's a natural born leader and an A-1 scholar and last season ranked high both on defense and offense with the best in the East. Paired opposite the Middy captain will be found Bob Dornin, who was quite a sensation during the spring drills. Dave Miller will be Dornin's chief understudy. Other likely looking endmen are Shot and Holman.

A transplanted center, Slade Cutter, is scheduled to occupy one of the tackle posts with Ed King, out with injuries all of last season, on the other side of the line. Bill Brooks, a certain starter until laid low with ear trouble, has been given up as helplessly out of the picture.

Bob Johnston, a 189-pound bludgeon of charging dynamite, is scheduled to start the season at the departed Jim Reedy's guard post. The coach's praise of Johnston is so pronounced that much is expected of him. Three fine sophomores of close to equal ability are Springer, Zabrisie, and Arnold. Dick Burns, a regular of last season and weighing but 162 pounds, will take care of the other guard berth.

No Worry About Center.

There are no worries about the center post, for the Midshipmen will have Butch Harbold back again. He was an all-Eastern selection last year and is one of the foremost candidates for all-American honors.

The writer forecasts that Dick Pratt, a Washington sophomore, will edge two alternating quarter backs of 1932, Bud Slack and Larry Becht, to the bench. He is a triple-threat artists and one of the best-looking backs on the squad. He prepped at Severn.

Outstanding among the half back material are Chung-Hoon, the famous barefoot kicking Hawaiian; Buzz Borries and Ben Walkup, who will battle it out for the right half post to pair with the Pacific Islander. Bolt Rankin, a star of the Plebe outfit, rounds out an impressive quartet.

There is a possibility that Bill Clark and Harold Larsen will alternate at full. Both are letter men, but Clarke, the best punter on the team for the past two seasons, has the nod. Jack Waybright also looks good.

Pegler

Wanders Into Fight Club Office on Eve of Ross-Canzoneri Bout.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (Spl.).—The telephone jangled all day in the office of Tim Mara's prize-fight club, the Aram A. C. The name of the A. C. is pure inspiration. It is Mr. Mara's name in reverse. The author of the name probably would not come up with another such happy invention in a lifetime.

The sordidly commercial aspects of the fight tomorrow evening between Barney Ross, the lightweight champion, and Tony Canzoneri at the Polo Grounds were being handled in this office. In this place the atmosphere was quite different from the simple innocence of the rural camps where the boxers trained. There were no pitchers of milk on any tables, fresh from the cow. There was no cow. This was on Broadway, in the building known as the Cave of the Winds, where prize-fight managers hold desk room and sit all day and exhale large conversation.

Far From Mother Nature.

There was no ax with which to pose a fighter in "a characteristic training stunt," chopping down a tree. There was no tree. There was no wheelbarrow, either, with which to pose a gladiator trundling his mother or a couple of sparring partners and "laughing gaily in a moment of relaxation from the grind."

This was the place where they sold the tickets and did the business. Even in a church there are books to be kept and receipts to be handled.

The man at the ticket window was assuring a determined caller who refused to state his business that Mr. Mara wasn't hiding any where on the premises.

"He positively isn't in—positively," he said. "I don't know where he is. Maybe down town. Maybe up town. He is terribly busy. Please, my friend, stand aside and let these gentlemen spend a little money."

Hurry, My Friend.

Mr. Weil, the fat match-maker, was answering two phones at once.

"Helloi," Mr. Weil would yell into one. "Holloi. Yes, we got plently left. Not too plenty but you can get good ones yet. I advise you to hurry my friend."

"Holloi," into the other phone. "Yeh, listen Sam. Listen, you like I told you. You go on over there and say I said he should give you two. Say I said so personally."

"Holloi, Sholem, Irving, yes positively good ones, yes, personally. I picked them out personsally. No, not a sell-out. We should sell out these days. I am crying when you mention sell out these days. But we will go to the Polo grounds with $70,000 sold. If good weather, maybe $150,000.

"Holloi——"

Fort Fights Off; Try Friday Night

Fort Washington Athletic Association officials are beginning to believe that a jinx is on their trail, for early evening rains last night for the umpteenth time forced a postponement of their scheduled second boxing card of the season. An effort will be made to stage the card Friday night, starting at 8:30 o'clock in the Fort's arena.

With Hook And Line . . .

By Jean Monk

I HAVE been asked if I would write an article on the tides and make it clear what it's all about. In my humble way, if that is the correct word, I'll try to do just that.

First, let's call on a local fishing columnist. The date is September 9. He says: "When they finally reached S. W. Middles they found the tide almost ebb, and to chum properly one must have a strong tide." (Did he mean "almost slack?")

What did the writer say, if anything? It appears that he was trying to say something instructive on the subject of chumming vs. tides, but just what? He says the fishermen were disappointed when they found the tide "almost ebb," for they wanted a "strong" current. He thus says, indirectly, that there is no strong current during ebb tide, and leaves us to conclude that flood tide carries the strong current.

We are sorry, but we say no.

Is Just as Strong.

The current, under normal conditions, is just as strong during ebb tide as it is during flood tide. When the tide is flooding the waters rush up the bay and the rivers with such force, causing a current as they rush along. When flood tide reaches its highest point it immediately, without the loss of a second, reverses itself and becomes ebb tide, and the same waters rush back down the bay and the rivers with the same force reversed, again causing a current as they rush along.

Our informant, beyond all doubt, was trying to say that when these fishermen reached Southwest Middles they found the tide would soon be ebbing and, therefore, there would be no current. And why no current during ebb tide? There's where his fuses were blown, leaving us in total darkness. He says the tide was "almost ebb;" therefore it was still flooding. Bad backlash there.

Battling Against Tide.

I happen to know, however, that a northeaster was blowing, for I know the men who made the trip. He says there was no current, although flood tide was running. And he says there would be no current when ebb tide set in. More backlash.

Here's the situation: The northeaster was battling against the tide and, by so doing, killed the current and produced a state of comparatively slack water.

Our columnist, however, seems to have ebb tide and slack water which follows ebb (also flood) tide confounded. The tide floods about 6 hours and ebbs about 6 hours. At the highest point of flood tide there is a momentary slack water period. And the same slack water period occurs at the lowest point of ebb tide.

It's just as you or I might drive a car slowly up a hill for six minutes, then stop, put the gears in reverse, and back down the hill for six minutes. We would be imitating flood tide going up and ebb tide backing down—and the slack water periods when the car was stopped while the gears were being reversed.

Will Stop Currents.

One might imagine a wind strong enough to hold a car motionless on a hillside. A strong wind will stop the currents caused by the tides just that way. And strong winds sometimes change ebb tide to flood and flood tide to ebb again, reversing the currents also.

The currents under normal conditions always run with the tide. But a current may be weak, medium or strong, depending on wind or other conditions. There are times when, for no apparent reason, there is no current—slack water. This year, in June, I fished all day near the channel of the bay, out from Tilghman Island, and the tide was ebb at 8 o'clock in the morning, and it remained ebb until 5 p. m., when we left. And the bay was calm. This happens frequently near the channel of the bay, but seldom in shallow water.

In the rivers we have something else again. The river has its own current caused by the waters rushing down its channel. In nontidal rivers the current runs always in the same direction—downstream. But in tidal waters we meet that something else.

Twelve Miles an Hour.

It takes, or would take, the tide eight hours to travel from Point Lookout to Washington, if flood tide were eight hours instead of six. In other words, when we are starting on the last two hours of ebb tide here at Washington, flood tide is just getting under way at Point Lookout. It is about 100 miles by water to Point Lookout, so the tide travels about twelve miles an hour up the Potomac.

If the river current is flowing downstream, let us say at twelve miles an hour, and the tidal current is coming upstream at twelve miles an hour, the two currents will tend to balance each other, producing a period of slack water during the six hours of flood tide.

But—when flood tide turns and becomes ebb, and the tidal current starts down the river at twelve miles an hour and unites with the river current, which, also is traveling twelve miles an hour—there's your "strong current," and on ebb tide.

Mrs. Pray's 90 Wins Gross Honors

THE fall season of the District Women's Golf Association opened yesterday at Chevy Chase with the staging of a handicap tournament.

First low net prize went to Mrs. A. Stanton Merrill, with a score of 92—12—80. Mrs. L. G. Pray continued her winning way by spreadeagling the field to win low gross honors with a score of 90. Three were tied for second low net, with 96. They were Mrs. Donald Scott, Mrs. L. O. Cameron and the youthful Helen Dettweiler.

Other scores were: Mrs. Brunson, 106—21—85; Mrs. MacMyers, 99—13—86; Mrs. Howard Stinon, 99—13—86; Mrs. R. H. Lee, 108—21—87; Mrs. F. R. Keefer, 108—20—88; Mrs. Harvey Cooper, 118—30—88.

Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, District women's and Middle Atlantic title holder, arrived in the city yesterday from her summer vacation.

She will defend her Columbia Club women's title, which starts today with an 18-hole qualifying round, to be followed by match play rounds for the rest of the week.

Medal pairings:

9:15, Mrs. Beller and Mrs. Frost; 9:19, Mrs. Stobler and Mrs. McGinty; 9:23, Mrs. Deling and Mrs. Kane; 9:27, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Marr; 9:31, Miss Reilly and Miss McNally; 9:35, Mrs. Knowlton and Mrs. Brooks; 9:39, Mrs. Lacey and Mrs. Brundage.

9:43, Mrs. Haynes and Mrs. Quinter; 9:47, Miss Minnix and Mrs. MacKenzie; 9:51, Mrs. Little and Mrs. Gardiner; 9:55, Mrs. DeParges and Mrs. Amick; 9:59, Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. Bryan; 10:03, Mrs. Glover and Miss Quirk; 10:07, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Poole; 10:11, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Lun.

Mrs. Martinez Triumphs in Net Finals

MRS. RUTH MARTINEZ, Washington's outstanding woman racqueter, yesterday made a clean sweep in the Women's Tennis League tournament finals, played on the Columbia Country Club courts. In the singles, she disposed of Miss Dorette Miller, 6—2 and 6—3, and then paired with Miss Bobsy Turney to beat Misses Mary Ryan and Helen Philpitt, 6—3, 6—3, for the doubles title.

While Mrs. Martinez was doing all this at Columbia, Miss Betty Kronman was winning consolation honors at the Henry Park courts, defeating Miss Betty Whitfield, 6—4, 1—6, 6—3.

Macks' Rookie Adds Second Shutout

Marcum Wins Over Chisox, 8-0, After Grove Takes Opener, 5-3.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11 (AP).—Johnny Marcum, rookie right-hander from Louisville, who broke into the big leagues with a shutout win last week, duplicated the feat today in the Athletics' double-header victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Boosting his big-league record to 18 scoreless innings, the newcomer to the majors hurled the A's to an 8-to-0 triumph in the nightcap after Lefty Grove turned in his twenty-first win with a 5-to-3 victory in the opener.

Gain Third Place.

The double conquest pushed the Athletics into third place over the Cleveland Indians, the first club to fall victim to Marcum's slants.

Eric McNair hit a homer in the second game to figure in the victory, while Max Bishop's three safeties in the opener and Pinky Higgins and Dib Williams doing the same thing in the second game, were big factors in the twin win.

Marcum allowed only five hits, none of them for extra bases, and collected three strikeouts, fanning the dangerous Al Simmons twice.

Two Casualties Mark G. U. Grid Drill

WITH cooler weather on tap, Coach Jack Hagerty could not resist the temptation of taking advantage of it, the result being a hot scrimmage session for the Georgetown University football hopefuls yesterday afternoon. Before the finish a casualty list of two had been started.

Walter Voigt, a tackle, was the first to suffer from the unusual wear and tear. He received cuts over his right eye which probably will keep him out of practice for a few days, at least. Paul Kennedy, the midget quarter back, was the other put on the inactive list. He suffered a shoulder injury which was painful, but not particularly serious. However, he will be missing for a few days.

Soccer Meet.

The Columbia Heights Grays Soccer Team will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at 637 Farragut street northwest.

Zbyszko, Shikat Straightaway Rasslers

Will Meet Thursday Night; Garibaldi-Slagel Are Different Types.

REPORTED to have discarded old-fashioned stolidity in favor of a certain flair for showmanship and also to have dieted and worked himself into good physical trim, Wladek Zbyszko, a big league wrestler for many years, returns here Thursday night.

He comes here to meet Herr Richard Shikat, one of the mat's greatest, in one end of Joe Turner's double windup.

Gino Garibaldi and Sol Slagel bruise it out in the other windup.

Both Former Champs.

Both former world champions and still numbered among the key men of their profession, Zbyszko and Shikat should furnish Washingtonians with some of the finest straightaway wrestling seen here in years.

In direct contrast will be the Garibaldi-Slagel brawl. Strong-armers and free-for-all in their tactics, these two should provide one of the liveliest and most picturesque matches of the summer season.

Equal Division Of Car Stock Is Proposed

Details of Merger Plan Are Revealed; Public Hearing Called.

The city's street railway merger plan proposes equal division of stock between Capital Traction Co. and Washington Railway & Electric Co. stockholders.

Details of the proposal were revealed for the first time yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission when it announced that a public hearing on the plan will be held at 10 a. m. Monday.

The announcement came from Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, which yesterday afternoon considered the joint proposal of the traction companies.

Equal Stock Division.

According to the proposed set-up, Gen. Patrick said, the new company—the Capital Transit Co.—will divide its 240,000 shares of stock equally between stockholders of the two companies.

In other words, he said, to the stockholders of each company will go 120,000 shares. This stock will have a par value of $100 per share.

The new company will have a total stock and bond liability of $38,000,000, the commission head indicated the plan provided. The two present companies now have aggregate stock and bond liability of $49,000,000.

The bonded indebtedness of $5,800,000 of the Capital Traction Co. and of $8,600,000 of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. will be assumed by the new firm, Gen. Patrick said.

Interest Charges.

Annual interest charges of the new company will be $667,000 as compared with aggregate charges of $900,000 per year for the two companies as they now exist, Gen. Patrick said.

He indicated that the proposal included the leasing without charge of power producing and transmitting facilities of the two firms to the Potomac Electric Power Co. Taxes on this leased transmission property will be met by the proposed new corporation, he said.

The agreement has a clause by which the street railway will buy power from the Potomac Electric Power Co. at a rate of $445,000 per year on a base of 75,000,000 kilowatt hours.

Would Be Modified.

This rate, according to the proposed agreement, Gen. Patrick said, would be modified with the variance in the price of coal and the amount of power consumption.

The rate, the general said, figures out at about 5.7 mills per kilowatt hour, which gives the power company a 7 per cent profit and in no way taxes the other users of power. It is customary in other cities, he said, to give street railway firms special rates for power.

Gen. Patrick or other members of the commission gave no indication of their reaction to the proposal of the two companies. However, it is thought that they are satisfied with the agreement.

'Alice' Makes Bow At Sylvan Tonight

Enhanced by ballets and musical divertissements by the famous characters of Louis Carroll, "Alice in Wonderland" will make its bow at Sylvan Theater at 8 p. m. today.

Three ballets by the Lisa Gardiner dancers will be included in the fantasy. The dances and all incidental music will be played by the Bernheimer Trio, conducted by Clara Moran Bernheimer.

A half-hour festival concert by the U. S. Army Band will precede the performance. In case of inclement weather, Alice and her companions will appear at the theater Wednesday. If it rains Wednesday, the performance will be given that night at Central High School auditorium.

James McLaughlin, 71, I. C. C. Employe, Dies

James McLaughlin, 71, an employe of the Interstate Commerce Commission since 1927, died late Sunday in Providence Hospital.

Mr. McLaughlin had lived in Washington since 1915. His home was at 2622 University place northwest. He is survived by a brother, Francis McLaughlin, of Baltimore, Md. Funeral services will be held in Baltimore. Arrangements have not been completed.

Eugene Meyer to Head Unit in Chest Campaign

Eugene Meyer, former governor of the Federal Reserve Board and now publisher of The Washington Post, has accepted the chairmanship of the national corporations unit in the Community Chest campaign this fall.

Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Frank J. Hogan, chairman of the campaign committee for the coming drive.

Utilities Body Asks Rent Cut In 3 Instances

Commission Plan Veiled If Landlords Refuse Reduction.

As a result of its study of rent conditions as authorized by the Senate, the Public Utilities Commission yesterday recommended reduction in rent charges in three individual cases.

These recommendations were turned over to James Ring, rent research assistant to the commission. He will bring the commission's decision to the three landlords.

What action will be taken if the landlords refuse to accept the commission's decision could not be learned.

Anacostia River Hunt Called Off

Search for a body or object purported to have been dropped from a plane Sunday night somewhere in the Northeast section, southeast of the Anacostia River, was discontinued yesterday.

Police were inclined to believe either witnesses were "seeing things" or that it is a practical joke.

Half a dozen persons told police Sunday night that they saw an object, resembling a body, pitch out of a low-flying airplane. A search until yesterday afternoon revealed nothing.

Tile Company Files Bankruptcy Petition

Petitions for voluntary bankruptcy were filed yesterday in District Supreme Court by the Georgia Tile & Marble Co., Inc., 3224 Georgia avenue northwest, and the company's president, Andrea N. Ascosi, 2410 Otis place northeast.

The petitions were filed through Attorney Charles Walker. Liabilities were listed at $8,480 and assets, $241. The individual petition of Ascosi gave liabilities of $2,469 and no assets.

Woman, 60, Jailed In Police Rum Sale

Purveying a half pint of "colored liquor" to a plain clothesman from the vice squad yesterday landed a 60-year-old woman in custody on charges of making the sale and also possession of six half-gallon jars of the fluid.

The woman is Mrs. Annie Streeks, 1418 North Carolina avenue northeast.

Take a Seat!

Driverless Auto Attempts to Enter Home, Gets to Front Porch.

Imagine the surprise of Walter Valentine, 3321 Eighteenth street northeast, and his family, last night when an automobile crashed into the front porch, as though trying to enter the door.

Then imagine their second surprise when they discovered the car was driverless.

Investigation revealed the car coasted about three blocks without mishap before turning in at the Valentine home.

It belonged to Mrs. Edith N. Thompson, 1229 Fifteenth street northwest, who parked it at a theater near Eighteenth and Kearney streets northeast. It started its rampage when the brakes slipped.

Woman Slayer Held for Jury

Love Rival Mentioned as She Sobs at Inquest.

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Mrs. Mary Irene Buccolo, 38, Civil Service Commission clerk, who shot her husband, Rudolph, 35, to death last week, to be committed to the District Jail to await grand jury action. She is held on a technical charge of murder.

Throughout the coroner's inquest Mrs. Buccolo sobbed convulsively. She did not take the witness stand.

Mrs. Buccolo's mother, Mrs. Carrie Mack, named Florence Gallagher, who Mrs. Mack said lived in the 300 block of Virginia avenue, as the rival of Mrs. Buccolo for Buccolo's affections.

Mrs. Mack said that frequently Buccolo threatened to kill "Florence, his wife and himself."

First Play Announced By Pierce Hall Group

The Pierce Hall Players announced last night that their first play for public performance would be "The Truth About Blayds," by A. A. Milne, to be presented next month. Tryouts will be held in Pierce Hall tomorrow night and Thursday night. The tryouts are open to all interested.

Woman Injured in Fall Down Basement Steps

Mrs. Daviette C. Flickner, 54, 2810 Connecticut avenue, was injured last night when she fell down the basement steps of her home.

She was taken to Emergency Hospital by the Fire Rescue Squad.

U. S. Building Strike Takes Serious Turn

75 Carpenters Now Out at New I. C. C. and Labor Structures.

With 75 carpenters on strike, labor troubles at the Labor and Interstate Commerce Commission building under construction assumed serious proportions yesterday.

The carpenters' walkout, which started September 1, is in contest with the steel workers over which trade shall install radiator inclosures in the new structures.

Edward A. Burnap, 3213 Jocelyn street northwest, construction superintendent, said last night that not only was no settlement in sight but further steps to that end are undecided. The American Federation of Labor has failed to break the deadlock and the Labor Department is without authority to settle the dispute.

Installation of the radiator inclosures is at a standstill. If work is not resumed soon, about 100 bricklayers will have to be laid off. Other tradesmen will be similarly affected.

3 Traffic Damage Suits Seek $55,000

Couple Asks $25,000 for Accident Injuries.

Damages of $55,000 as results of traffic mishaps were asked yesterday in three suits filed in District Supreme Court.

Eugene A. Schneider, seeking $15,000 damages, and Eva A. Schneider, requesting $10,000 damages, both of 1309 Eleventh street northwest, sued Harry Saidman, 1331 G street northwest. They claim they were crossing New York avenue and K street northwest last March 13, when they were felled by a car operated by an agent of the defendant and seriously injured. Fred C. Rice is their attorney.

Grace A. Thompson, Sixteenth and M street northwest, sued the Independent Taxi Owners Association and John C. Harper, cab owner, 44 I street northwest, for $20,000 damages. She complained, through Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer, that she was crossing Sixteenth and K streets northwest, on January 1, 1932, when struck by a Diamond Cab operated by an agent of the defendants.

Printer Loses Job for Acting Against Slash

Federal Office Report Refutes Church Bias in Another Case.

One Government Printing Office employe was discharged yesterday and the fate of another was placed in the hands of Public Printer George H. Carter as two separate investigations within the plant were closed.

Lewis H. Smith, 2611 Twenty-second street northeast, a linotype operator, was dismissed for his part in soliciting funds to fight the economy act order which curtailed employes' earned leave.

At the same time, Mr. Carter received a report from the board of discipline stating there was no evidence that Samuel Snyder was suspended because of religious discrimination. It recommended, however, that superiors in the printing plant refrain from remarks alluding to the creeds or beliefs of their subordinates.

Second Penalty.

Testimony was given that Mrs. Caroline Murray, Snyder's supervisor in the Division of Public Documents shipping section, asked why the Jewish boys didn't plan to take part in the NRA parade August 29.

Snyder was suspended August 23, for inattentiveness to duty. He was dealt similar discipline just a year ago for the same cause, the Public Printer said yesterday.

Withholding his decision, pending study of the report, Carter intimated Snyder would be reinstated.

The Board of Discipline is composed of all assistant superintendents in the plant. They are J. Thomas Ford, M. H. Phillips, John Watterson, Edward A. Kerr, D. Beckwith, Josephine G. Adams, Abraam B. Batton and W. J. Cassiday.

Two "Lobby" Actions.

Smith was accused of having joined in the "lobby" to save employes' earned leave, denied them by the economy act, by soliciting funds to carry the fight to the courts.

The printer was suspended July 20. Department of Justice agents investigating, heard 58 witnesses. Smith denied the charges. He became an employe of the G. P. O. in 1924, resigned in 1928, and was reinstated two years later.

Smith was the second employe discharged as a result of the investigation. Another printer was suspended for 30 days.

Razor Blades, Teeth Stolen

Scrap Brass and Shaving Cream in Varied Loot of Night Prowler.

Thieves did a selective and varied business early yesterday.

One burglar, with an apparent passion for shaving, took 3,100 razor blades, 100 stroppers and a large quantity of styptic pencils and shaving cream from one place.

Ed Schweitzer, 211 Atlas Building, reported the theft.

Another burglar stole $200 worth of scrap brass and brass fittings from a plumbing shop at 1100 Fifth street northeast. John M. Bean reported the theft.

Still another thief got away with a four-tooth gold and porcelain bridge from the office of Dr. Aaron Russell, 602 K street northwest.

Allentown Man Fined $100 in Speeding Case

Charged with speeding through Laurel, Md., and improper license plates, Warren C. Kistler, Allentown, Pa., was fined $100 in Hyattsville police court yesterday. He was arrested by Officer W. K. May, Maryland State police.

Society Girl Faces Jury Today In Fatal Auto Accident Probe

Miss Hume, Bride-to-Be, to Describe Sullivan Death at Inquest.

Miss Elise Gardiner Hume, attractive young society woman, will appear this morning before a coroner's jury sitting at the District Morgue in the death Sunday night of Edward Sullivan, 33, struck by a car she was driving.

Sullivan was not identified until late yesterday. A man who was with him just before the fatal accident, William Bailey, 25, was located by Detective Sergt. William J. Liverman, of the homicide squad.

Bailey, and a prisoner on the Occoquan wharf, who knew Sullivan, identified the body. Bailey was then arrested and held as a Government witness pending the inquest. Police said he fled the accident scene.

Miss Hume, who is to be married to John Redman Walsh, jr., on Saturday, was accompanied by her fiance and her sister, Miss Marian Hume, when the accident took place. All will testify.

Miss Hume was released by the coroner in custody of her parents, Maj. and Mrs. Alan Phillips Hume, pending the inquest.

Flood Damage Heavy at Air Base of Navy

Toll of High Waters at Anacostia Station Is Over $100,000.

Though it may require six months to repair and check the damage, officers at the Anacostia Naval Air Station yesterday expressed belief the toll of the flood, which inundated the station on August 23, will run well over $100,000.

Repair and machine shops at the station have been working full time since the flood to restore to service the 30 planes damaged.

Parts of the electrical system of the station still are out of order. The heating plant was also badly damaged, as were other facilities. The heaviest financial loss was suffered by the photographic laboratories.

Bolling Field escaped with little damage.

Virginia Engineer Given Public Works Position

(Associated Press.)

Richard Sutton Buck, of Crozet, Albemarle County, Va., now practicing as a consulting engineer in New York City, yesterday was appointed a member of the Public Works technical board of review.

Buck was a civilian Army employe from 1887 to 1890, and later was chief engineer of several large bridges, including the Manhattan-Queensboro span.

Fishing Trip Crash Kills Capital Man

One Injured, Two Bruised as Car Hits Tree.

A week-end fishing trip in the lower Potomac ended fatally for one Washingtonian, another was injured, and two escaped with minor bruises, when their automobile crashed a pole and tree on the Crain Highway, near Waldorf, Charles County, Md., early yesterday.

Dale E. Cropp, 204 Channing street northeast, who was driving, was killed. His skull was fractured. Edward Collins, 659 I street northeast, is in Casualty Hospital. He has a compound fracture of the left knee.

Charles E. Mills, 655 F street northeast, and Tony Garufi, 335 I street northeast, escaped serious injury. Garufi was in the front seat with Cropp and Collins and Mills in the rear seat.

Increase Shown In Work of Clinic

The Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital Clinic in August treated 4,517 patients, a report to the Community Chest yesterday showed. This compares with 4,332 in July and 4,075 in August, 1932.

Of the patients in August, 1,403 were new cases. A total of 1,222 children, 999 of whom were of school age, and 223 infants and preschool children were treated.

In addition to the patients treated in the clinics, the hospital gave 720 days of free treatment to patients in the hospital during August.

Beverage Dealers Open Office Here

The National Association of Retail Beverage Dealers, organized recently in view of the probable repeal of prohibition, has established permanent headquarters in the National Press Building, it was announced yesterday.

Frank Clark, former representative from Florida, and member of the Tariff Commission, is president. Former Representative S. Wallace Dempsey, of New York, is general counsel. Harry N. Price, Washington newspaperman, is general secretary and treasurer.

Hamilton Bank To Open Soon; All Stock Sold

$51,000 United Shares, Lost by Withdrawals, Now Resubscribed.

Announcing yesterday that the proposed Hamilton National Bank will open within two weeks, President Edwin C. Graham said the $51,000 stock lost to the new bank through exclusion of United States Savings Bank from the Hamilton merger, had been secured in new subscriptions.

New stock has been pledged in cash purchases and additional charges for stock authorized against depositors' accounts.

The original $1,250,000 stock to open Hamilton National Bank was oversubscribed. When it appeared three days ago the contract permitting the United States Savings Bank to join the Hamilton merger might be disapproved, Hamilton bank officials began securing the difference between the oversubscription of original stock and the amount to be lost through the exclusion move.

The withdrawal of the United Bank was formally announced in District Supreme Court yesterday when George P. Barse and Charles E. M. Wainwright, attorneys for the Treasury Department, went before Justice Jennings Bailey and asked him to withdraw the petition they had presented for the ratification of the contract which would have enabled the United to join the amalgamation.

Meanwhile, the opening of the Hamilton, fortified by sanctioned contracts of the present seven member banks, is being rushed.

Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the United, has indicated he will make every effort to open his bank as an independent. It was his fight that forestalled the joining of the United with the seven others.

New Aviation Committee To Aid Commerce Body

A committee of three was appointed yesterday by the Commerce Department's Business Advisory and Planning Council to cooperate with the department on questions of aeronautical policy.

Only Pacifists Urged As Commissioners

Resolutions asking the President to appoint pacifists as District Commissioners, and protesting against giving the jobs to military men were left at the White House yesterday by the Washington Provisional Committee Against War.

The committee also requested that if a city manager be appointed, he should be a person opposed to war.
